

DEATH RECORD OF THE DAY

John McPherson, Former Well Known Citizen Died in Chicago and Will be Buried in Keokuk.

HE HAD MANY FRIENDS

William Spencer, While Visiting in the City, Passed Away at the Home of His Daughter, Mrs. Merrick.

John McPherson, one of the best liked citizens of Keokuk and a man who made everyone happy while he was in his presence, died yesterday morning at his home in Chicago, and will be brought here for burial tomorrow.

His many friends here will remember him as a "prince of good fellows" for he was a most congenial man of a sunny disposition and full of good nature.

He left Keokuk after the close of the Coey pork packing plant, being engineer at the plant when it was closed and went to Hammond, Ind., where he was employed in the Hammond Packing Co. plant, removing from there to Chicago where he made his home and where his death took place.

He was 42 years of age at the time of his death and was born in Ireland. He married Miss Mary Ryan in 1877, and is survived by his wife and two children, Mary and John, besides his brother, Alexander McPherson of Keokuk, and two sisters in Ireland.

He was a member of St. Peter's church, from which the funeral will be held tomorrow morning, the remains arriving at 8:40 o'clock in the morning and taken direct to the church.

William Spencer.

William Spencer of Bunker Hill, Ill., died here yesterday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. E. Merrick in West Keokuk.

He came here last May, intending to spend a year with his daughter and had been sick most of the time since arriving. For the last three weeks he had been confined to his bed and passed away yesterday evening from acute stomach trouble.

He was born in England on October 16, 1828, and was a member of the Methodist church and of the Masonic fraternity.

Besides the daughter in Keokuk he has another daughter, Mrs. Adolph Burmann of Bunker Hill, Ill., a son O. C. Spencer of The Dalles, Oregon, and a brother in Wisconsin. His wife died seven years ago.

The remains have been taken to Bunker Hill, Ill., for interment.

CITY NEWS

On Thursday evening, the republican ward primaries will be held in each ward of the city. J. G. Ford is having considerable trouble with a sore thumb and has had to have it lanced. A minor Clark accepted a position in the office of Architect H. E. Ratcliffe assuming his duties this morning.

The republican ward primaries will be held on Thursday evening in each ward. The city convention will be held on Friday. Dr. Gavin Herbert went to Chicago this afternoon to remain a month and will then return to Keokuk to locate permanently. The pretty post office lawn on southeast side of the government building was raked and cleaned up this afternoon to let the grass grow. Early this morning the city jail was empty. There was a sleeper in there during the night but after he was let loose, silence reigned in the city jail.

Circulars have been received at the Keokuk police station giving a description of Willie Whittle, the boy who was kidnapped, together with descriptions of the two men who abducted him.

ROOSEVELT OFF FOR BIG HUNT

Italians Make a Gift.

Arriving at Long Island station the father and son hurried aboard the waiting ferry, and a quick trip was made by the ferry and the automobile of Douglas Robinson to the train which took them to Hoboken. When he arrived at the Hamburg pier a great throng cheered wildly. Doffing his slouch hat he hurried aboard the steamer. His suite had been decorated with flowers, chiefly roses, the gift of William McAdoo, head of the Hudson Tunnel Company. After he was settled in the state room he announced he would see his friends and then the crush started. Probably never has Roosevelt received so many enthusiastic well wishes. A big bronze was presented to him by a big delegation of leading Italians in honor of the aid granted as president, to the earthquake sufferers. As the form of the colonel was sighted at the top of the gangway a terrible rush of humanity set in toward the point. Women and small children were knocked down and trampled under foot, but quiet was finally restored. Dr. A. E. Barch started to make a final speech in behalf of the Italians, but was quickly checked by Roosevelt who said:

"Have not time for formal speech making, I appreciate your kindness. I have not the words to express my gratitude. Please send the bronze to Mrs. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay."

Wild cheers greeted the statement. He then met and said a few words to the delegation from Pittsburgh.

Roosevelt finally made his way from the pier back to the boat. By this time the crowd was beyond all bounds and the police found it difficult to keep people from being killed by being forced into the water. Roosevelt returned to his stateroom and found a delegation of old associates from Little Hungary. When the bell sounded the warning "all ashore" Roosevelt came outside the stateroom and shook hands with a party of personal friends. This was a signal for others and the crowd came forward with extended hands. The colonel turned to Kermit and said: "I certainly seem to have a large and extensive acquaintance."

Final farewells were quickly said and the gang was hauled in. The last to shake hands with Roosevelt were Root, Lodge, Garfield and Loeb. Three rounds cheered led by a big dock workman were given. A special messenger brought to the pier just before the Hamburg sailed the farewell greeting of President Taft, which was not made public and a gold pencil inscribed, "Good luck, good-bye, Taft."

Amidst the shrieking of sirens the Hamburg slowly backed out the slip with a tug alongside and started down the North river toward the open sea. Roosevelt stood on the bridge with the captain with a big Khaki overcoat wrapped about him. He was shouting the last good-bye to the enthusiastic crowd on the shore but no one could distinguish the words which came from his lips.

DOLLIVER GIVES WAY TO CUMMINS

Senior Senator is Magnanimous to the Junior Senator and Makes a Place for Him.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 23.—Much interest is being taken here over the action of Senator Dolliver in withdrawing from the interstate commerce committee that his colleague, Senator Cummins might have that important place. It is believed by some here that this sacrifice by Dolliver is a peace offering of his colleague, whom he fought so bitterly in the Allison-Cummins campaign, and that they have formed an alliance for the perpetuation of each other in office. At any rate, Cummins expresses himself as exceedingly grateful to Dolliver for his place on the interstate commerce committee, which he so much desired, but which he admits he could not have obtained but for Dolliver's voluntary retirement from it.

WILLIE WHITLA WITH HIS PAPA

(Continued from Page 1. his childish lips. He could not remember every place he had been but he gave an idea of his travels so that it will be possible for the police to cover part of the trail made by the kidnapers.

"Papa," said the boy in a tone of childish prattle, "I've been buggy riding, been on cars and in a nice big white house that looked like a hospital. I've been treated nice and had lots of good things to eat." He told of a man calling for him at school, how he went buggy riding with the man, how, at the man's request, he addressed a letter to his papa, which the man mailed in a box. "He was awful kind," said Willie.

At the place a man said was Warren, the man left the buggy in the road and boarded an electric car. He fell asleep on the car. When they got to New Castle they went to a big white building, where he was turned over to a woman. The people told him if he did not obey them they would send him to the smallpox hospital.

Walked Chalk Line.

"I walked the chalk line like a good boy, papa; like you have told me to," said Willie. Saturday they went to Asantubula, he thought, but returned to the big white house early the next morning. Willie said he acted nice and had a good time playing about the house. The father sat as if in a trance listening to the child's tale; interrupted occasionally by the little one stopping his narrative to hug and kiss his papa.

At the conclusion of the boy's story the father and son knelt and prayed, and then the little fellow was tucked into his bed by his father. He was asleep in a few minutes.

Admitted Paying Money.

Before retiring Willie admitted that he had paid the $10,000 to a woman in the candy store. It was in currency and bills. The woman he believed, did not count the money. Willie believes the woman was an Italian but he refuses to disclose her identity.

Billy Gets Warm Greeting.

CLEVELAND, March 23.—Billy Whittle and his father were up early this morning and spent little of the night in sleep. They sat down to breakfast at the Hollenden hotel, a crowd gathering in the dining room and on walks outside the window. A woman crossed the floor and kissed Billy and said: "God bless you, little man." The crowd outside made such a commotion that Billy stood up and bowed. Everybody cheered. Billy said to his father: "Everybody is staring at me so I can't eat."

The mob jammed at the door when they left the hotel. All the way to the station men jumped on the steps of their taxi-cab and insisted on wringing the boy's hand. The police this morning sent out the first general alarm for a peck-marked elderly woman. From the boy's story they believe the kidnapers put him in charge of such a woman. The boy does not know where.

Newspaper Offers Reward.

Information reached the police today that a peck-marked woman called in the business place of William Kintzler today and telephoned to Sharon.

The Scripps-McRae League of newspapers today offered $2,500 reward for the first information leading to the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers.

Billy in His Mother's Arms.

SHARON, Pa., March 23.—Willie Whittle, his father, mother and sister are together again. At 12:09 p. m. thousands of people were at the station here and gave a cheer as the train bearing Billy and his father arrived. They were whirled along the street in a closed carriage. When the father and son approached the house both sides of the street were lined with a crowd. Factory whistles blew and the crowd yelled. Billy was soon clasped in his mother's arms.

Kidnaping Life Imprisonment.

DES MOINES, March 23.—Representative Cooper today introduced a bill in the legislature making kidnaping a life imprisonment instead of five years as now.

What Pat Crowe Thinks.

CLEVELAND, March 23.—Pat Crowe believes that unless the Whittle kidnapers are caught soon they will pull off another job. He said: "Now comes a man hunt. Anybody can kidnap a boy but it takes a shrewd man to collect the ransom. The hardest task of all is to escape the hunt. Three weeks, taking inconspicuous leave of the city, singly, locating in some distant city. As a guess, I would say Seattle. One year there, holed up from light, gradually changing the money into other bills and then—another big job for a big stake—a hundred thousand or more."

Safe home at Last.

SHARON, March 23.—Nearly three hundred persons were at the Erie depot at Cleveland to see Billy off. The father and Billy stood on the back platform of the train. Billy smiled and waved his hand, while his father made a short speech. The entire trip to Sharon was a remarkable tribute to the manly American boy and mercenary fatherhood and motherhood.

Whittle held Billy on his lap part of the trip. The rest of the time Billy sat facing his father. They both read newspaper account of the kidnaping. Billy asked his father to give him a pin, given to him by the kidnapers last night as a souvenir of his experiences. He took the pin proudly and fastened it to his blouse. The pin had an amethyst setting. Whittle said: "It was nice of Billy's kidnapper, Mr. Jones, to give Billy a pin, but I really believe I could have purchased quite a few like it out of the ten thousand." Billy noticed his shoe string unfastened and bending over, fastened it in a secure bow. Whittle said: "That's one thing Jones taught Billy. Before he was kidnaped, he couldn't tie his shoe string."

Writing Autographs.

Passengers of the train came from all the coaches to call on Billy and his father. A great many had the boy write an autograph for them. The train was met by a great crowd at Warren, Niles and Youngstown. Fully two-thirds of the citizens of Sharon met the train. The street were jammed in all directions. A squad of police made a passageway for the carriage. Mrs. Whittle, who was waiting on the porch, rushed down the steps, clasped Billy in her arms, and knelt beside him and smothered him with kisses. His grandmother and grandfather Whittle forgot their age and feebleness and hurried to Billy's side and kissed him. They then took Billy into the house. He was tired but happy.

The reports caused great excitement in the scientific circles. The Gazette sticks to the statement, though members of the geographical society say Shackleton was compelled to turn back when within 125 miles of the pole. The Nimrod expedition left England in 1907, carrying a motor sleigh, Siberian ponies and dogs were to be used in the final dash.

FREE OF ICE TO LAKE PEPIN

River Emptied of Icebergs on Sunday Afternoon at Dubuque.

The river is free of ice now as far north as Lake Pepin. A Dubuque paper says of the breaking up of the river there:

With a roar and boom like the explosion of cannons, the ice in the Mississippi around Eagle Point broke Sunday afternoon and the winter coat that has held on so tightly for the past several months, has been cast off.

The big stream is now entirely open and is filled from shore to shore with huge floating chunks. Just above the railroad bridge, where the ice has hung on so tenaciously, the breaking up of it was a grand sight. When the heavy volume of it let go above Eagle Point it was only a short time until the effect was noted at Dubuque.

Around the piers of the railroad and draw bridges a gorge formed for a time but it was swept away and it was then that the grand exodus began. Huge chunks a half mile long, would crash into the piers and shatter themselves into a million pieces. The news of the moving of the ice spread about the streets, near the river, with the result that hundreds of people lined the banks and bridges and for hours the grand spectacle continued.

With Sunday's break the Mississippi is now open practically to Lake Pepin and rafters can now operate as far north as that point.
