During the last two weeks the Indians have displayed a fighting spirit and an ability to fight for an uphill game which has commanded the attention of not only the home fans but visiting players. It is this great fighting spirit that made possible several of the team's recent victories and came mighty near triumphing over the Pathfinders in that double bill Sunday afternoon. From whence this fighting spirit comes is hard to say; it seems as if every member on the team has become a part of it and no particular man, not even Frank Belt seems to be the live wire, but under his able management and masterful direction the team has displayed a courage that means success on the ball field. The aggregation of ball players assembled by Belt have within their power the winning of battles against tremendous odds and they may be likened to a college baseball team on which the giants are not fighting for money but for glory both for themselves and for their school. The Keokuk Indians seem to be fighting for Keokuk and this one trait alone augurs well for the team and Keokuk looks like a pennant winner in the present stage of the fighting. It will be remembered that Keokuk's games have not been

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty of Them in Keokuk, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy, After days of backache suffering, Days of misery, nights of unrest, The distress of urinary trouble, She finds relief and cure? No reason why any Keokuk reader Should suffer in the fact of evidence like this:

Mrs. M. Betts, 1826 High street, Keokuk, Iowa, says: "About eight years ago when I was suffering from kidney trouble, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Wilkinson & Co.'s drug store and they cured me. I have had occasion to resort to their use but once since. About two years ago my back became very lame, as a result of a cold which settled in my kidneys. I at once procured Doan's Kidney Pills and they brought prompt relief. I have previously endorsed this remedy publicly and now willingly confirm all I have ever said about it."

won by strategy on the ball field, but at bat and on the bases.

Mier will help the Indians considerable in the pennant race. The big fellow is not a perfect fielding catcher by any means but has a valuable arm and can be taught something of the game under the direction of Frank Belt. Belt is in need of just such a man as has been obtained, for he has found the working a trifle too strong when he attempted to remain behind the bat day after day. There was a time last season when Mier was going well and was a target for considerable praise, but at Quincy he has not had the chance. He has shown some weakness in receiving thrown balls, but with a team that does not go up in the air he should have little trouble with men on bases as he has in the past. It is likely also that he will commence to bring the ball and while slow on bases, will be about as valuable a man with the stick as other backstops in the association.

There is about an even chance that Corriden may make good with St. Louis next year, but much depends upon his improvement and his condition. There is little doubt but that he will be in excellent condition when next season opens as he is a player of good habits and plenty of sense. But then he has not yet learned to move to the right nor to the left and block a drive, many of which he might knock down if he made the attempt. This seems his only weakness and if he overcomes it, may land with St. Louis for keeps. He has the ear marks of a real batsman and steps into their ball and follows it well. On handling bunts it can safely be said that he is without a peer in the minor leagues and it is a rare instance when a man, even a left hander bunts to third, and gets away with it.

Hughie Miller has pleased Scott McGuire greatly during the past week and the ex-Boston catcher was impressed with the tall first baseman's work. He remarked that he was one of the best fielding first sackers in the minors and has an ideal build for the majors. As a fielder and judge of timing a throw with a base runner coming down the line and his ability to use but one hand Miller is a success. His one weakness has been in hitting the ball and should he bat 300 or around that mark for a season he would probably lead the league in baserunning. It looks as if Miller fails to follow the ball with his eye and does not step into it enough. As he is tall a little crouch might help things as this method of standing at the plate has a tendency of improving a player's sight for the ball.

Sporting Tips

Mertens made good with Quincy yesterday, his bingle in the third inning winning the game.

Grodnick will probably be kept in the game as long as he is able to keep up his present fast gait.

Gasper pitched a three hit game against Boston yesterday, Cincinnati winning the game by the score of 5 to 0.

Maxwell, the whirlwind pitcher from Lincoln, is not a star with Quincy. Hofer was evidently gold bricked in the deal.

The next game in Keokuk will be on August 2 with Hannibal, this date being on a Monday. That makes the team away for the next two Sundays.

Quincy does not like "Pa" Wright. It is a hard matter to find an ump that the Gems are satisfied with, especially when the aggregation is on the tobaggan.

Zeke Moore, formerly a big leaguer, and more recently a minor league umpire, was in Quincy yesterday, and is seeking an appointment as an official in the Central Association.

Mier will be in uniform this afternoon and may possibly work. If he is not in the game this afternoon he will have plenty of chances to display his ability on the road.

Reichle has slumped wonderfully during the past two weeks, but says he always looks for it in the two July months. And then things have been breaking bad for him.

Today is the last game in Keokuk for some time. The team goes to Jacksonville for four easy games with Bert's men and then to Quincy for a better break of luck than during the last series at home. A double bill will probably be on in Quincy next Sunday and Keokuk fans can make the trip. The team then goes to Hannibal for four.

Quincy Whig: J. T. McGuire, representing the Cleveland club of the American league, is scouting for promising young material in this section of the country and watched yesterday's game between Kewanee and Quincy. He thinks well of the work of Kavanaugh and also speaks highly of Rouse's ability as a twirler. Davis also was given a mighty flattering mention by the big league representative for the high class flinging he showed in yesterday's game. McGuire was manager of the Boston club in 1907 and 1908 and was one of the leading catchers of the big league for years.

An injury to Keokuk. Burlington Gazette: From the reports that the visitors from Burlington bring back, it will be quite a season before another such a delegation takes such a trip.

The Keokuk audience gave an exhibition of such indecent abuse of Burlington players, that in contrast with the treatment accorded the Keokuk club when it visits this city that it was simply nauseating to every genuine baseball fan. The mouthings of the rowdies, who were much in evidence, was an exhibition of indecent degeneracy that has few parallels. A Burlington audience, should such a disgraceful affair occur on our home grounds, would have risen and thrown such despicable sounds over the fence. It is to be regretted, for the sake of the decent people of Keokuk, that it should harbor such a nest of dirty blackguards.

DEATH OF AGED COLORED WOMAN
Mrs. Pompey Pollard Passed Away Yesterday Afternoon at Her Home, From Heart Trouble.
Yesterday afternoon at four o'clock at her residence, No. 1727 Palcan street, occurred the death of Mrs. Pompey Pollard, an old and respected colored citizen of Keokuk. Death was due to heart failure.
The deceased was 69 years of age at the time of her death and came to Keokuk in 1864, from Jacksonville, Miss., the place of her birth. She was a slave and remembered many of the old war days, having an excellent memory of those times. She came to Keokuk near the close of the war and had resided here ever since.
She was a member of the Pilgrim's Rest church. Those who survive her are her husband, Pompey Pollard, and two children, Fred and Mrs. Maimie Bender. Seven grand children survive her.
Funeral services will be held from the Pilgrim's Rest Baptist church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.
