HOLD ALL ANIMALS SACRED

Natives of Dutch East Indies Have Scruples Against Killing Any of Brute Creation.

"The natives of the island of Bali in the Dutch East Indies have peculiar superstitions about animals," says a writer in the Wide World Magazine. "Dogs, for instance, are never destroyed, and, much to the annoyance of the European residents, the pariahs are allowed to increase to an unlimited extent. According to Balinese ideas, dogs are the reincarnation of those of their poorer brethren who were buried after death instead of being cremated, which is the more luxurious method of getting rid of the dead. To kill a dog, therefore, is as great a sin as killing a poor fellow creature. With regard to the tiger, the natives believe that that animal is also the reincarnation of another caste of the community, and nothing will induce them to shoot it.

"They tell, with great impressiveness, the story of an old Balinese man who once came face to face with a tiger in the jungle. Gazing at the monster fixedly he addressed it as follows: 'What have I done to thee that thou lookest so ferociously at me? Have I ever done thee any harm; and art thou not my brother clad in the skin of a tiger? I pray thee go thy way in peace, and leave me alone.' Whereupon it is said, the tiger turned tail and walked away majestically into the depths of the jungle."

Warning

Do not be persuaded into taking anything but Foley's Honey and Tar for chronic coughs, bronchitis, hay fever, asthma, and lung trouble, as it stops the cough and heals the lungs. Wilkinson & Co.

Left Over.

Barbara, aged four, had always been allowed to make small cakes out of the scraps of dough left from the morning's baking, so one morning after being sent to gather eggs, she came running in with a very tiny one and exclaimed, "Oh, mamma! see this little egg, it must be that's all the dough the hen had left."—Delineator.

A Hurry-Up Medicine.

Every housekeeper recognizes the need of effective remedies to be used in emergencies—when something must be done right away. Such a remedy is Perry Davis' Painkiller, for sprains and bruises, for strained muscles and for the aches and pains resulting from blows and falls. Burns and cuts are instantly relieved by it and helped to healing. Its mission of mercy began seventy years ago. It is used in all countries and millions of bottles are sold annually. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Have you seen the new large 35c size?

HER HAPPIEST TIME OF LIFE

When the Dutch Housewife Sees Life with Her Own Instead of Husband's Eyes.

No, not even for the Tartles would I care to be a Dutchwoman, unless, from the very beginning, I could be an elderly Dutch widow with a fortune. One day I went to lunch with such a lady, and I think, when I myself am very old, and memories of earth are growing hazy in the sunset which lights the way to that other land beyond, I still shall see that tiny old Dutch Mevrouw standing in one of the rooms of her large old merchant mansion, her dress of fine black cloth, her little apron of silk with a flounce of rare old lace, her eyes bright and merry as a girl's, her face eager with the joy of living, her voice laughing out her welcome.

These old Dutch ladies make one marvel. They are like pearls kept close that they may mellow when brought to the light. When their men, as they call their husbands, are too old or too wise with years to bother over everything as they do in their youth, or are gone to a country where for once their "jans" and "neens" are second, these ladies seem to develop and expand, and their understanding to blossom. They are then very spontaneous. They laugh much, they chuckle over stories they could not have even whispered in their youth, they talk most entertainingly in many languages and often play the piano with skill and lively enjoyment. The dust-rags have ceased to interest them, the perambulators are empty, and they seem to be taking a joyful inspection of the world and its life which they have heretofore seen only through the eyes of a husband.—Harper's Weekly.

The Lurid Glow of Doom was seen in the red face, hands and body of the little son of H. M. Adams, of Henrietta, Pa. His awful plight from eczema had, for five years, defied all remedies and baffled the best doctors, who said the poisoned blood had affected his lungs and nothing could save him. "But," writes his mother, "seven bottles of Electric Bitters completely cured him." For Eruptions, Eczema, Salt Rheum, Sores and all Blood Disorders, and Rheumatism Electric Bitters is supreme. Only 50c. Guaranteed by Wilkinson & Co., J. F. Kiedaisch & Son.

"Imperial Decree" for Prayer. Here is an "imperial decree" from the North China Daily News: "Decree commanding Princes Tsai Hsun, Tsai Tao, Pu Lun, etc., to offer up incense in the temple of the Great Exalted One and other shrines as a plentiful shower of rain has not resulted from former prayers offered up."
