COMMANDS BELL SYSTEM TO RESTORE SERVICE

Judge W. G. Clements Ruled on Application for Temporary Writ of Injunction Late This Afternoon in District Court.

SEVERAL THOUSAND PHONES INVOLVED

Means That Former Relationship Between Mississippi Valley Company and Western Illinois Company Will be Renewed.

In the district court late this afternoon Judge W. G. Clements granted a temporary writ of injunction in the important telephone litigation, commanding the Mississippi Valley Telephone company to restore wire connections with the Western Illinois Telephone company, which had heretofore existed, and were severed by the defendant company some time ago.

The decision is of great interest to the people of Keokuk and western Illinois, for it will have the effect of restoring in service by long distance several thousand phones.

Judge Clements' Opinion.

The court's opinion in brief, is given as follows: The plaintiff asks for a temporary writ of injunction, requiring the defendant telephone company to connect with plaintiff company. It is alleged in plaintiff's petition that prior to 1908, plaintiff and defendant company maintained connections by virtue of a contract and that during 1908, the defendant wrongfully severed connections and refused to connect its wires with the wires of defendant company.

While it is true it is not alleged that the contract specified any length of time that defendant company should maintain connections with the system of plaintiff company. Yet such connections had been maintained and operated for some length of time prior to the time that the systems were severed by defendant. The defendant did not give notice of its intention to cut out the telephone system of the plaintiff, but summarily, and without notice, ceased to operate the wires of plaintiff's system.

In the opinion of the court this is an invasion of a right which plaintiff had and a violation of the contract, and plaintiff is being injured and damaged, the defendant having connected its wires with that of the plaintiff and operated the same, must have been, by virtue of some contract, expressed or implied, and the public, being interested in the maintenance of the connections, the defendant could not terminate the contract at its will and pleasure to the damage of plaintiff.

Therefore, an order is entered for a temporary writ of injunction commanding the defendant to maintain the telephone service heretofore existing between the plaintiff and defendant company.

The temporary writ is effective immediately, but case will come up on final hearing for a permanent injunction at later date.

Jury Still Out.

At a late hour this afternoon the twelve jurors in the Fightmaster case were still out. They were instructed yesterday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock by Judge Clements and retired to the jury room. If they remain until the same hour this afternoon twenty-four hours will have passed. It is said the jury is tiring of the long seige and many predict that it will hang. Judge Clements has not decided yet to call them in. Early last evening it is believed the jury reached a verdict of seven for conviction and five for acquittal, and that after several hours of arguing one more juror had been drawn over for conviction. Very little progress is thought to have been made during today's session. The jury has been out longer than any on a case in this city for several years.

Will Entertain Judge Clements.

The Keokuk Bar Association will entertain Judge W. G. Clements this evening at 6:30 o'clock dinner at the Hotel Keokuk. The invitation was extended this morning and the esteemed jurist has decided to remain over for it.

Judge Clements has made friends during his four weeks of reign on the district court bench here. Judge Felix T. Hughes made a neat little speech of appreciation this morning when court convened for the last morning session. He said that members of the bar were glad that he had been here and attorneys would welcome him back if he were ever sent again. Judge Clements replied that Lee county might be justly proud of the history of its bar for in it the legal history of this part of the state had its beginning. He assured the attorneys that he was equally pleased to have presided during the March term.

SHERIFF BEHIND THE STEEL BARS

Queer Yet Singular Position of J. J. Crimmins This Morning at the Y. M. C. A. Building.

Now and then one hears of an officer of the law, himself being arrested and thrust behind steel bars after a warrant has been served on him, but such was not the case of Deputy Sheriff John J. Crimmins, who this morning found himself as securely pent up in a steel cage without escape as any of the houses of correction of the country.

It all happened when the genial officer of the law sought to take a ride up through the shaft of the elevator in the metal carriage of the Y. M. C. A.'s "lift." All went well for a few feet up, when of a sudden the elevator stopped midway between the first and second floors and there was no alternative but to await the resumption of power in the wires.

This was some time, and in the meanwhile the elevator boy and the deputy sheriff had endeavored to crawl out from beneath the door of the elevator and alight on the first floor, after a jump of ten or more feet. Then they tried to climb out on the second floor, but this method of escape from their prison would not work either. A crowd collected and a telephone girl, noting the several hundred people collected around the front exit of the Y. M. C. A. building and said that an excited mob was howling about the big building.

To relieve the trying situation the power suddenly shot on with the adjustment of some part in the collar, beneath the shaft and the sheriff and the boy came down, the former's face quite rosy in color from the embarrassment of being caught in a place very much like a state prison.

The Girls' club of Warsaw will give a dance this evening in Odd Fellows' hall at Warsaw. The Agne orchestra will play for the affair.

Those present were the following: Misses Flossie Haish, Fannie Bennett, Corda Howell, Bonnie Jeffers, Madeline Nelson, Minnie Elgerber, Katie Mears, Maggie Howell, Susie Howell, Nellie Sherrill, Minnie Howell; Messrs. Supreme Court Decision.

The supreme court of Iowa has affirmed the decision of Judge H. Bank, Jr., in the case of Keokuk Electric Railway and Power company vs. Charles F. Weismann, executor under the will of J. C. Hubinger, deceased.

This news was contained in a telegram received this morning by the law firm of Hollingsworth and Blood, which represented the electric light company.

The case is a very interesting one and involved the right of way over lots of the Hubinger estate on Grand avenue. Suit was brought by the Keokuk Electric Light and Power Company as plaintiff to enjoin J. C. Hubinger from barricading certain right of way over the property and used by the company's employees as a passage way; also to enjoin the destruction by defendant of a certain lead of poles and wires crossing the property. The suit was brought after Mr. Hubinger had disposed of his interests to the Electric Light Co. The defendant by a cross bill sought to enjoin the plaintiff and its employees from crossing his property or maintaining a line of poles and wires thereon.

The passageway across the property is well known to people who have visited the pretty grounds. It is better understood as the asphalt sidewalk which extends from the Avenue at Twelfth street across the property just at the head of the lake, and joins the steps which lead down to the electric light plant. The lead of wires and poles cross the property at Eleventh street. The case was decided by Judge Bank nearly two years ago and appealed to the supreme court by Attorneys W. C. Howell and W. J. Roberts, representing the defendant. By the decision of Judge Bank the defendant was enjoined from interfering with the electric light company.

MEDICAL SCHOOL WILL SHUT DOWN

Branch of Drake University Will be Closed as Result of too Strict Requirements

TRUST AT WORK AGAIN

American Medical Society Requires an Expenditure of $20,000 and also Big Endowment.

The latest news from Des Moines has it that the Drake University Medical school, which recently absorbed the Keokuk Medical college, will shut its doors at the close of the present school year.

At a meeting of the trustees it was decided that the requirements of the American Medical society were too stringent and could not be fulfilled.

The society calls for an expenditure of $20,000, which also means that they must have an endowment of $500,000. This it seems they cannot procure.

According to one of the men who was connected in an official capacity with the Keokuk Medical college when it was here, this is just another attempt of the great school trust to wipe out the smaller schools and the name of this trust is "The American Medical Society."

It is claimed that this association, when it wishes to crush a small school, publishes the school's name in its publication, The Journal, with the statement that the school will in all probability die out on account of lack of pecuniary support. This scares away students, who would otherwise have patronized the school.

The society wants to kill all but the great Eastern Medical schools which are inordinately expensive and to which the average student cannot afford to attend. It is believed by this same person after the lapse of some years there will be no regular doctors in some of the less populous sections of our country for the reason fewer and fewer of our young men are taking up the medical colleges are so high priced that it is beyond their means to go. Old women with their quaint and curious natural remedies will be the only medium through which we can gain succor from pain.
