Such is Life.

After from ten to 14 years of hard work in school, college and professional courses, with big money spent upon his education, a man can begin life as a lawyer or doctor and wait half a generation before he is sure of earning what an ignorant, incompetent, half-civilized immigrant laborer can get the day he steps ashore here from the steerage.—New York Press.

Because It Had Wings.

Little Ben's father caught a bat in the barn and brought it in to show to his small son, asking him what he thought it was. "Oh, papa!" said little Ben, "it's an angel mouse!"—The Delinquent.

The Important Problem

confronting anyone in need of a laxative is not a question of a single action only, but of permanently beneficial effects, which will follow proper efforts to live in a healthful way, with the assistance of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, whenever it is required, as it cleanses the system gently yet promptly, without irritation and will therefore always have the preference of all who wish the best of family laxatives.

The combination has the approval of physicians because it is known to be truly beneficial, and because it has given satisfaction to the millions of well-informed families who have used it for many years past.

To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

THE "THIRD DEGREE"

Ethics of the Process as Defined by Inspector Byrnes.

"The 'third degree,' said Inspector Byrnes, the former chief of detectives, 'should be a psychic rather than a physical process. It is not remorse brought about by continual thought upon the heinousness of his crime that drives a guilty man to confession. It is the nervous strain involved in a long effort to maintain his pretense of innocence, while he is in constant fear that the police are in possession of evidence that may prove his guilt. Something like a prizefighter who should surmise that his antagonist was playing with him in the ring while capable of sending in a knockout blow at any time he felt so inclined. Apprehension of the nature of which he was unaware would eventually weaken the man in that case. Tell a suspected man who is guilty that you have evidence of his guilt and that he will get nothing to eat or will not be permitted to sleep until he confesses, and unless he is a particularly stupid fellow he will know that you have no proof against him and are only trying to get it. For instance, show him ostentatiously the weapon with which he may have killed a man and tell him that you know all about the crime and he would better confess it. He will say to himself, 'They haven't got sufficient evidence to convict me and are trying to make me furnish it, for if they had the evidence they wouldn't care whether I confessed or not,' and thus he will be encouraged to hold out. Also, if he does confess under duress, he makes a false confession, which he knows it will be impossible to corroborate."

"Now, a guilty man in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred is not sure that he has covered every trace of his crime, and he may readily be put into the state of mind of the man in Poe's story of 'The Telltale Heart,' wherein he can't help believing that proof of his guilt has been discovered and that his cross examiners are mocking him by pretending not to be aware of it. Let the guilty man catch sight of an implement with which his crime is associated in the possession of the police, which he believes has been unintentionally left where he sees it, and it throws him into a panic, because he does not know how they came by the weapon nor what else they may have discovered demonstrating his guilt in getting hold of it. Perhaps he has concocted a story in his mind which the discovery of this weapon renders implausible, and he mentally puts together and rejects one sequence of lies after another, wondering whether it is safe to take chances on this bit of information or that being not in the possession of the police. Then he is overwhelmed every few moments by the thought that everything is known and all his efforts are useless. The guilty man in this condition is no longer normal, and his collapse is only a matter of time."—Frank Marshall White in Harper's Weekly.

He Had Reformed.

A young man who was an enthusiastic lover of nature went to the seaside for a holiday and, approaching a typical fisherman, said: "Ah, my friend, how well you must know the face of nature and know it in its many moods! Have you ever seen the sun sinking in such a glare of glory that it swallows up the horizon with fire? Have you not seen the mist gliding down the shrinking hillside like a specter?"

And, very excited and throwing out his arms, he continued: "Have you never seen, my man, the moon struggling to shake off the ragged, rugged storm cloud?"

The fisherman replied, "No, sir; I have not since I signed the pledge."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Little Ambiguous.

The Ingrahams were entertaining two friends at dinner. After Mr. Ingraham had helped them to roast beef he happened to glance at the other end of the table, where his wife sat, and observed, to his horror, that the sugar bowl was the old one, with both handles broken off, that usually graced the dining table on wash days.

In vain he endeavored by mysterious nods and winks to direct Mrs. Ingraham's attention to it. She either did not see or would not see the mutilated piece of queensware, and his patience gave way at last.

"Cornelia," he said, with some sharpness, "do you think we ought to use a sugar bowl when we have company without ears on?"—Youth's Companion.

Suspicious.

"Let me show you 'Love Letters of Wise Men,'" said the clerk in the book emporium.

"Are they signed?" asked the cautious bookworm.

"Yes, indeed, every one of them."

"Then they must be forgeries. Wise men never sign their names to love letters."—Chicago News.

WHEN ROOSEVELT IS IN ST. PAUL

Will be Just as Carefully Guarded by the Police as he Was When He Was President of the U. S.

THERE ON SEPT. FIFTH

Will Deliver Public Speech at Fair Grounds Besides the One at the Conservation Congress.

SAINT PAUL, Minn., Aug. 4.—When Theodore Roosevelt arrives in Saint Paul on September 5th, to speak at the second National Conservation Congress, he will be guarded by the police as carefully as he would be if he were still president. Every precaution will be taken to see that he is fully protected from the crowd that will be near him all the time during his stay in the city.

As president, Col. Roosevelt always was under the eyes of at least four secret service men whenever he was surrounded by a crowd. He didn't like the idea of being guarded and used to try to avoid it, but the keen-eyed sleuths stuck closely to him and were ever alert for his safety. Now that he is a private citizen, he does not have this body-guard and it falls to the lot of the police of the cities he visits to furnish proper protection.

Following a conference with members of the local committee on arrangements, Chief of police John J. O'Connor of Saint Paul began working on a plan which, when perfected, will result in Col. Roosevelt being under the care of the guardians of the law from the minute he steps into Saint Paul until the minute he leaves the city. The best men on the city's force will be on hand all the time. They will not be in evidence as they will be in citizen's clothes, but it will be their duty to see that there is a clear passage for the former president. These precautions are not taken with any thought of danger of attack on Col. Roosevelt who is a favorite in Saint Paul, but there are always people in great crowds who want to shake the hand of the former president. There are others who would have a word or two with him on some subject or other. Should he stop ten seconds, with each of these, there would be little time left for him to speak and attend the functions planned for him.

Upon his arrival in Saint Paul, Col. Roosevelt will be met at the Union station by Governor Eberhart, as many of the Governors of other states as have arrived, cabinet members, Gifford Pinchot, the reception committee of the National Conservation Congress and the welcoming committee composed of members of Saint Paul's commercial and civic organizations.

While these dignitaries and organizations will attract attention, the center of interest will be in the original Roosevelt Club, a Saint Paul organization which is known all over the country. Every member of the club has promised to be present to welcome the former chief of executive and act as his escort wherever he goes.

The plans as now made include a visit by Col. Roosevelt to the Minnesota State Fair grounds where he will make a brief speech. Then he will return to the new Saint Paul Hotel.

FASHION HINTS

Our sketch shows a somewhat extreme but popular type of gown just at present. Soft silks or sheer materials are best for this style. The hat is one of the Oriental turban affairs, the sole trimming being a butterfly bow of velvet at the side.

Clothes cost so much nowadays that you can't afford to have them ruined in the laundry. The Saving way—the Safest way to wash them is in a good stiff suds of Peosta Soap. Then you won't need to scrub and rub. Boiling is unnecessary too. Peosta gets the dirt out—not the scrub-board and somebody's knuckles. Ask your grocer for Peosta—no other will do so well. 5c a cake. where a suite will have been specially prepared for him. In the afternoon he will deliver the main speech before the congress in the auditorium. After he has delivered his address Col. Roosevelt will return to the Saint Paul Hotel, where, if present plans are carried out, an informal reception will be held. In the evening he will depart for Milwaukee.
