

TOMORROW IS ELECTION DAY

Every Voter in Keokuk, Lee County and the State Should go to the Polls Early and Cast a Ballot.

INTEREST IN ELECTION

Gate City Office Will Receive Returns From City Wards, County, State and Cities Throughout Country.

Election day is tomorrow. Nearly every state in the union will hold an election, and political camps are astir on the eve of it. Unusual interest has been manifested in Iowa, Lee county and Keokuk, and a heavy vote is predicted.

Every Keokuk voter should go to the polls early and cast his ballot. The polls, one in each ward, will open at 7 o'clock in the morning and remain open until 7 o'clock in the evening. The voting places are as follows: First ward—25 North Fourth street. Second ward—17 South Fifth street. Third ward—915 Main street. Fourth ward—228 B street. Fifth ward—314 North Fourteenth street. Sixth ward—26 South Twelfth street.

The Gate City office has made arrangements to receive complete returns from all over the county Tuesday evening and will also have the city returns in immediately after the vote has been announced at the various wards. Bulletins will be received from cities throughout the country, while returns will come from Des Moines which will give the vote in counties of Iowa.

MISLAID HIS CITIZENSHIP

Fort Madison Postmaster in Awkward Plight, and Now Cannot Vote.

Probably there never was a more flabbergasted man in Fort Madison than was Deputy Postmaster Alexander Laird over an incident that has just come to public notice. According to the records, as far as a diligent search could disclose, Mr. Laird is not an American citizen. The circumstances are reported as follows in a dispatch from Fort Madison:

After coming to America from Scotland, the land of his birth, Mr. Laird, on Sept. 1, 1881, went before the proper tribunal in New York City and declared his intention to become an American citizen, which fact is attested by the records of the court in which he declared his intent. Later, after the law-provided lapse of time, Mr. Laird, so he avers and makes affidavit to, again went before a proper court, in Topeka, Kan., and perfected his citizenship, but the court records bear nothing of the event, at least, as above stated, the record can not be found, nor can Mr. Laird find the papers granted him though he says they were given him. To prove that they were issued he has offered the affidavit of a friend who was with him when the papers were granted and who acted as a witness at the time.

The lack of record was disclosed a few months ago when, by order of the United States civil service commission, it was made necessary that all naturalized citizens in the service should fill out blanks showing the process of their naturalization, with dates, etc. Writing to New York, and Topeka to obtain the desired information, Mr. Laird was informed no record or completion of naturalization at Topeka could be found, though the New York court reported that his intent had been properly recorded.

After correspondence, which proved futile as to the desired result, he appeared before the clerk of the court in Fort Madison and made application for the necessary second paper. As this document can not be issued by the court until after the lapse of a certain time Mr. Laird can not officially become an American citizen until some time during the next January term of court, though he has been acting as an actual citizen for many years, has been holding federal office for several years and has voted regularly since the time his second paper was issued to him at Topeka.

Local democrats think it quite a joke that he will be unable to vote at the election Tuesday.

Prosecute Candy Lottery.

To the Editor of The Gate City: Religion and the Bible, (because the latter is so universally considered a theological book) have no place in the public schools, but surely no one could object to the inculcation of universally recognized moral principles. Thou shalt not steal; thou shalt not lie; thou shalt not gamble! It is not the duty of the schools to urge and impress these injunctions upon the children placed in their charge! And it is not the duty of the school board to insist that the work of the schools in this regard is not neutralized by outside influences! So-called trade slot machines that pay the worth of the money with a chance for more and the candy lottery schemes that pretend to pay the worth of the penny paid for the chance to get a quarter's worth of candy for nothing are gambling devices and playing the games is gambling. Now that the head of the police department has sold out his pool room, should he not see to it that the kid school children are protected against the pool room gambling vice. Section 237 of the Revised Ordinance of 1899 not only prohibits pool room keepers permitting minors to play therein, but it provides that they shall not "permit or suffer any minor * * * to frequent, remain at, or to be harbored in or about the room where such tables are kept." The ordinance equally applies to bowling alleys.

Pittsburg is pretty rotten as a graft center, but it has regard for its children. The following dispatch shows how its department of public safety looks upon the candy schemes:

PITTSBURG, Oct. 27.—All dealers who are conducting candy lotteries and encouraging children to spend from 1 to 15 cents on the chance of winning a box of candy are to be prosecuted by the Pittsburg police bureau.

Superintendent of Police Thomas A. McQuaid, acting under orders from Director John M. Morin, of the department of public safety, has detailed detectives to gather the information and prosecutions will follow.

Controller E. S. Morrow's attention was called to the matter a few days ago by a candy manufacturer and the controller looked up the law and then had a talk with McQuaid. The police bureau had already taken the matter up and work started to stop the practice of teaching children to gamble.

"If there is anything I detest it is gambling," said Controller Morrow, "and when it comes to enticing innocent children to gamble in this way the limit is reached. The men who promote these enterprises should be punished according to the law, and there is sufficient law on this subject. There is too much of this sort of thing going on. If children are to be encouraged in this sort of thing, dear pity the future generation. If we are going to teach the children to gamble, what is going to become of the rest of the race? You give me the children to rear in the way that they should go and I will give you men and women to be proud of."—W. J. ROBERTS, School Director.

CAPTAIN M'INTYRE SLEEPS PEACEFULLY

One of Keokuk's Best Beloved Citizens, Passed Away Today at Ripe Old Age of Eighty-Three.

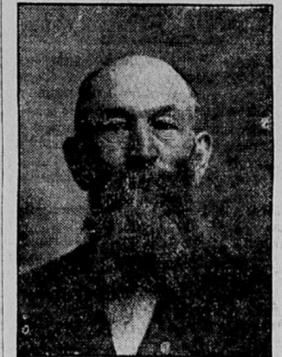

HERE FOR MANY YEARS

Active Old Gentleman Gave up Life After Two Weeks Confinement to his Bed With LaGrippe.

At twenty minutes past two o'clock this morning Captain Benjamin F. McIntyre passed peacefully away at the family residence, 513 High street. For many weeks it has been known that this aged gentleman could not long survive, his health having gradually failed him during the summer passed, and ailments accompanying one of his advanced years, called him away from the life that he had loved and made nobler by his being.

Two weeks ago Captain McIntyre suffered a paralytic stroke, and since then has been confined to his bed. LaGrippe and other complications hastened his passing and today Keokuk mourns the death of one of the city's grand old veterans. The deceased, with the hope and sweet faith of a child, entered his last, long sleep without pain, and those attending him were unaware that he had passed into the better world.

All Knew Captain McIntyre. Even though his unassumingness had taken him but little distance from the home he loved for many years, Captain B. F. McIntyre was well known by hundreds of citizens. Always a quiet, unpretentious gentleman, of bright, active mind, and of healthful poise, he led a life that exemplified the purity and sturdiness of the south, in which he was born.

Benjamin F. McIntyre came into this world September 15th, 1827. A resident of Maysville, Kentucky, he came to Keokuk when this city was but a small settlement, Captain McIntyre being but a man of twenty summers when first coming her from the south in 1847.

Remaining not quite a year, a little over nine months, Captain McIntyre, again returned to Maysville, and in 1848, he was united in marriage to Miss Emmeline M. Williams, who was also born and reared in the south.

One of the Oldest Odd Fellows.

Of all life pleasures, the greatest love for any one of them, was that which he held for his lodge, the great order of Odd Fellowship. It was on the 23d of February, 1853, that Captain McIntyre became a member of the Odd Fellows lodge at Maysville. It was about that same year that he came to Keokuk and was one of the oldest members of I. O. O. F. lodge No. 13, in Keokuk.

Seven years ago, on the event of his fiftieth anniversary as a member of the Odd Fellow lodge, Captain McIntyre received one of the beautiful gold, diamond set medals given to half century members. Of this the deceased was justly proud, the emblem of the order being one of magnificence, and one of the most highly

In the Great Conquest. It was at the outset of the war of the rebellion that B. F. McIntyre enlisted in Company A of the Nineteenth Iowa Volunteers, as private. Through gallantry and able service he was promoted to the rank of sergeant August 5th, 1862. Not quite five months later the rank of second lieutenant was tendered the faithful warrior, and on August 12th, 1864, Captain McIntyre became first lieutenant of his company. In that office he was mustered out in August, a year later, at Mobile, Ala., at the close of the long war, and his final discharge came at Davenport.

As a mark of the high esteem in which he has been held through the many years, the title of "lieutenant" was discarded by the friends of the beloved soldier and citizen, and the sobriquet, "Captain" has clung to him. Captain McIntyre was born and reared a Presbyterian. A student of the Bible from the earliest days of his youth the deceased was a christian whose life was spent in giving the best that was in him to his fellow men. The Odd Fellow lodge which is founded on the Book of Books, was the order and Christly teachings of which, the honored old citizen took zealous interest and followed reverently.

Spending practically sixty years of his life in this city, Captain McIntyre was naturally one of the best informed regarding Keokuk's topography. He had seen it grow from the smallest frontier village to the thriving city that it now is, and his contentment in making Keokuk his home was full of great pleasure and interest for him.

September 15th, this fall, Captain McIntyre, enjoying the quiet comforts of his home, passed the eighty-third mile stone of his long and useful life. The day was like many others to him, as it was spent in realization of the sweet peace with which he was surrounded and but few of his friends realized that the Captain was without any special observance, entering upon the eighty-fourth year of his nativity.

Those Who Survive.

Three daughters survive, Captain McIntyre, all of this city: Mrs. Mary E. Jenkins and the Misses Emma B. and Kate M. McIntyre, one granddaughter and five grandsons: Mrs. H. L. Walker of Aledo, Ill., and Messrs. Glen F., of Muscatine, Irving of Keokuk, James R., of Portland, George C. and B. M. Jenkins, of Quincy, Ill.

Last of His Family.

Captain B. F. McIntyre was the last and youngest member of the McIntyre family. He was the son of James and Ellen McIntyre, the father formerly having been an Ohioan, but later removing to Kentucky. In the death today of Captain McIntyre, a long lineage of strong and noble birth has passed away. It is very probable that funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon, though arrangements are not yet complete. Relatives have been notified of the death of Captain McIntyre and are expected to arrive some time today or tomorrow.

Entire Community Mourns.

In the death of Captain McIntyre, sorrow arises from every quarter of the city, as the beloved, aged citizen was well known to many. To the bereaved family, the sympathy of all Keokuk is extended, and though at a time like this, words are inadequate to express these feelings of deepest, heartfelt condolence, the passing of Captain McIntyre is keenly felt.
