LITTLE BOY BLUE.

The little toy dog is covered with dust, But sturdy and staunch he stands;

"Now don't you go till I come," he said,

"And don't you make any noise!"

So, toddling off to his trundle bed,

He dreamt of the pretty toys;

And, as he was dreaming, an angel song

Awakened our Little Boy Blue—

Oh! the years are many, the years are long,

But the little toy friends are true.

AY, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand.

Each in the same old place,

Awaiting the touch of a little hand,

The smile of a little face;

And they wonder, as waiting the long years through

In the dust of that little chair,

What has become of our Little Boy Blue,

Since he kissed them and put them there.

The Burlington Hawk-Eye refers to the booster meeting held at Keokuk Thursday evening as the "Big Dam Meeting."

It is safe to say that no one ever saw a more beautiful sight than has been witnessed in this vicinity during the past two days as the result of the recent storm.

The celebration of the birthday anniversary of General Robert E. Lee throughout the south, the meeting of the Dominion forest conservation conference in Quebec, the annual negro conference at the Tuskegee normal and industrial institute, the national convention of the United Mine Workers of America in Columbus, Ohio, and the meeting of the Union of American Hebrew congregations in New York City will be among the leading events that will contribute to the news of the present week.

It is worthy of remark that Lillian Russell has not come to Keokuk in her "Search for a Sinner."

The Coon Rapids Enterprise, one of the leading weekly newspapers in the state, agrees that there should be a special primary to name Dolliver's successor.

The senior senator was named by a primary, especially framed for his benefit, why not let the people thus name the junior senator?

In a review of "The Trysting Tree," a poetic play recently written by Miss Nann Clark Barr of this city, the Burlington Hawk-Eye assumes that the young lady was named after Sam Clark, the long-time editor of The Gate City.

When the Iowa legislature convenes tomorrow Senator J. U. Sammis of Plymouth county will introduce a bill providing for the establishment of a public service commission to have power over all utility corporations such as water companies, gas, telephones, etc.

Senator Sammis' bill will provide that the commission shall be composed of five members, three of whom shall be the three present railroad commissioners until the expiration of their terms of office, such expiration extended by the bill sufficiently to make the terminal of office uniform.

It provides the other two members shall be appointed by the governor. It provides the commission shall meet at the capitol of the state and organize by electing a chairman, and shall enter upon the performance of their duties July 1, 1911.

The bill provides that the governor shall appoint the two new members of the commission before the adjournment of the present general assembly for the approval of the senate.

It provides that these two shall not be of the same political party. It is then provided that at each succeeding general assembly the governor shall appoint members of the commission for the term of six years.

The bill provides that the governor may at any time remove any member for inefficiency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office. The salaries fixed for commissioners is $2,500 per annum. The jurisdiction, supervision, powers and duties of the public service commission are to extend under this act to all railroads, interurban railroads, express companies, car companies, sleeping car companies, freight line companies, any common carrier, city railroads, gas companies, electric companies, light, heat, or power companies and water works companies.

The measure also gives the commission power to appoint an attorney and counsellor at law, a secretary, clerk, inspector, experts and employees. It provides all proceedings, documents and records shall be public records. It gives the commission power to subpoena and compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of books, papers, records, and documents, as courts of record, and witnesses shall be paid the same fees as for attendance thereat.

The measure provides that public companies coming under the provisions of the law shall file with the commission schedules showing the tariffs, rates, tolls, and charges here in the state for all commodities on service furnished the public. It also provides that each corporation or municipality under its control must file annually a statement showing the amount of its authorized capital stock and the amount thereof issued and outstanding; the amount of its bonded indebtedness, and the amount of its bonds and other forms of indebtedness issued and outstanding; its receipts and expenditures during the preceding year; the amount paid as dividends upon its stock and interest upon its bonds; the amount paid as salaries to its officers; and the amount paid as wages to its employees; and full description of its property and all other facts or information pertaining to the operation and maintenance of the plant and system.

The commission may institute action upon its own volition or upon being served with a certified copy of a resolution adopted by the council of any city or town in the state, including those acting under special charter and on the commission plan.

Any person who violates any provisions of the bill to be introduced by Senator Sammis, if it becomes a law, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

It is believed that this or some similar measure stands a good chance of becoming a law.

IT IS UP TO KEOKUK. Speaking for the water power company and outlining its policy in his address to the people of Keokuk in the Grand opera house last Thursday evening, Engineer Hugh L. Cooper said:

"If we can find in this immediate vicinity a well roused public spirit, represented by an organized force of strong, brainy men, working to bring new factories into the territory, it is our policy to reserve for this vicinity the largest amount of power that is salable and commensurate with the activities that your people put in force."

"It will be one of my greatest business grieves if we do not find in the future a vast increase in industrial life in this vicinity."

Here we have the situation placed before us clearly and the proposition put up to us frankly and fairly that the amount of power that will be reserved for use in this immediate vicinity depends wholly on the efforts we make to bring new factories here and the market they afford for what the water power company has to sell.

If those efforts are feeble, indecisive and ineffective the water power company, as a commercial organization seeking legitimate returns for its investment, will have no alternative but to market its power elsewhere.

The power MUST be sold somewhere. The company would prefer to sell it in Keokuk and vicinity, and will do so if opportunity is afforded. It is up to Keokuk to afford the opportunity.

A committee of fifteen representative citizens will shortly address itself to the task of deciding how this can best be done. Whatever the findings and recommendations of that committee, they should have the united and enthusiastic endorsement of the people of Keokuk.

It is only by concerted thought and effort supplemented by fervency and zeal that the great work that is before Keokuk can be accomplished. The water power project is one of exceptional magnitude and importance. It is up to Keokuk to develop a dynamic force in keeping with it in every respect.

SUNDAY POSTOFFICE CLOSING. The Jacksonville Courier, in a recent issue, noted the fact that the movement calculated to result in general closing of postoffices on Sunday appears to be gaining ground faster than has any similar movement in which the public is not vitally interested.

It suggested in the same connection that the general public is not vitally interested in the matter of a Sunday mail; that ninety-nine out of each hundred patrons of the local office would find that they were not inconvenienced as a result of not receiving on Sunday morning the little mail they may occasionally or frequently receive on that day.

The Courier further suggested that we merely are used to the Sunday mail—that's all. We do not need it any more than we need Sunday groceries or Sunday hardware.

In a later reference to the subject the same paper declares that the Sunday distribution of mail for the public lacks a heap of being a case of ox in the ditch; aside from this and all religious or sentimental feeling, there is no getting away from the fact that postal employees are as much entitled to the entire day to use as they may determine as are other government or private employes. In conclusion this is said:

"There is little necessity for Sunday hours at the postoffices. A few years ago and there was no Sunday mail. People, however, have become accustomed to the accommodation and doubtless some of them will object to giving it up. On the other hand, with a large majority of the patrons of the postoffice would cheerfully second the move to grant the full day to the busy postoffice employes and the mail carriers."

NOTES AND COMMENT. The Iowa Brick and Tile Association will convene at Boone, Jan. 25.

Abe Martin has noticed that folks that stay at home and mind their own business never have to come back.

It has not escaped the observation of the Sioux City Journal that the Chicago Tribune is supplying plenty of grease for the Lorimer skids.

"There is nothing of the stump speech in the message. It is all business," says the Cedar Rapids Republican, speaking of the governor's message. "It is as a business governor that Mr. Carroll has succeeded in office. He has been faithful to all the details of the office. He has attended to the state's business as a man would attend to his own business. He has held the state down to reasonable economy. These things all stand out in the message. They run through it like a thread that can be traced."

A Nebraska woman killed her baby to please her husband. The Council Bluffs Nonpareil suggests that husbands must be rather exacting in that state.

The Tama News has remarked that there are two stages in a man's life when he acts like a dunce. Once when he is a boy—the second when he has a boy.

"When you get through reading the governor's message you will be convinced that Carroll deserves the title of a business governor," says the Iowa City Citizen.

The Charles City Intelligencer says a brief view of the Iowa political field is sufficient to convince the most optimistic that the future of the Republican party is not as roscate as it might be.

A Talented Keokuk Girl. The Trysting Tree, a Poetic Play, by Nann Clark Barr.

Burlington Hawk-Eye: Nann Clark Barr was but a little girl only a few years ago. She is the daughter of Dr. G. Walter Barr, of Keokuk. Dr. Barr named her after his great newspaper friend, Sam Clark.

Whether or not the name was an influence in Miss Nann's life or whether from the gifted father sprang her clever literary talent, the writer cannot say. At all events, Nann Clark Barr has in the last few years of her life grown up to be a woman who will soon take a place of command in literary fields.

When she was the little girl of only a short time ago she wrote poetry so good that St. Nicholas was glad to print it. Many of her little efforts saw the light in that publication. In those days Albert Bigelow Paine was editor of the young folks' department of St. Nicholas. He discovered Miss Barr and he developed her talent, often writing her letters of encouragement. Now Paine is the official biographer and literary executor of the late Samuel L. Clemens, but he still takes an interest in the little woman who is doing such good work with her pen and her brain.

Miss Barr is now a student at the Western College, at Oxford, Ohio. In the midst of her studies, she has continued her literary work, and has found time to write a poetic play of considerable proportions. The story of the poem has to do with the time of Robin Hood, and its telling is in blank verse. There are a dozen or more characters who speak and sing throughout the play—Earl Tancred, Gertrude his lady, Gareth their son, Herman a minstrel, Robin Hood, chief of the outlaws, and the members of his merry band, Alison, Robin Hood's ward; Guy, Alison's outlaw lover; and others of a minor part. The story is a simple one of the love of Gareth for the orphan girl, Alison, the ward of Robin Hood. The two have met in the forest by accident. At first, Gareth's father seeks to slay Robin Hood and his outlaws for killing his deer. He expects his son, Gareth, to assist him in the enterprise. When Gareth learns of his father's plans, based on the treachery of the outlaw, Guy, whom Alison had refused to wed, he hastens to the robber chief and gives himself up as a hostage. The father goes to secure his son, and meets Alison face to face, and loves her for his son's sake, and in yielding to their young romance, gives freedom to the outlaw band.

The poem is a charming one, beautifully written and full of light and fervor. It is to be given by the college this spring, and is sure to be a brilliant success. It stamps Miss Barr as a young woman of high literary gifts.

Cooper's Pool. Burlington Saturday Evening Post: Hugh Cooper, the man who first dreamed a power dam at Keokuk, and who now is constructing the dam in concrete, belongs in the class with those who make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before. In carrying forward his great project for developing the water power at the Des Moines Rapids, Hugh Cooper becomes a benefactor of his race like—well, like Henry Bessemer, who made the first steel rails, or Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton machinery. Mr. Cooper no doubt will derive large wealth from this enterprise, but there are other rewards for merit that are more enduring than wealth and more to be desired. The great work should in some way be linked with Mr. Cooper's name. The creation of a great pool, or lake, extending up stream a distance of over forty miles to Burlington. On this pool the largest craft will be able to float. One of Uncle Sam's battleships, or a transatlantic liner, could cruise about in this pool, calling at will at such modest little ports as Dallas City, Montrose or Pontoosuc. This pool will be a fine, large body of water, and good business heads predict that within twenty years after the dam is completed there will be a continuous city along either shore and that we will have here a real manufacturing district rivaling Pittsburg or that taking form now around the south point of Lake Michigan. Such a noble and important body of water, tenanted throughout its course with so many agents of complex civilization, is worthy of a name. It should be called Cooper's Lake, or Cooper's Pool, thus associating for all coming time the name of a really great promoter, acting a useful part in the betterment of mankind, with the material abiding results of his genius.

"Lake Birge." Nauvoo Independent: It is reported that the lake which will be formed by the water power dam will be named Lake Birge in honor of the first president of the Keokuk and Hamilton Water Power Company, who is now deceased. Mr. Birge was one of Keokuk's leading business men and one of the original boosters for the water power dam. To name the lake in his honor would be a fitting recognition of the services he rendered and a lasting tribute and eulogium to his memory. We had suggested Lake Cooper, to honor the man who brought about the final consummation of the great project; or Lake Logan, with its pleasing alliteration, in honor of Judge Logan, who has been one of Keokuk's foremost and persistent boosters for the big dam. But if Mr. Cooper and Judge Logan and the Keokuk people want the lake named Lake Birge, Lake Birge it shall be. The name is very appropriate and it no doubt will be entirely agreeable to the people of this community.

Foley Kidney Pills Are tonic in action, quick in results. A special medicine for all kidney and bladder disorders. Mary C. Abbott, Wolfboro, N. H., says: "I was afflicted with a bad case of rheumatism, due to uric acid that my kidneys failed to clear out of my blood. I was so lame in my feet, joints, and back that it was agony for me to step. I used Foley Kidney Pills for three days when I was able to get up and move about and the pains were gone. This great change in condition I owe to Foley Kidney Pills and recommend them to anyone suffering as I did." Wilkinson & Co.

State of Iowa, Lee County—ss. In District Court. To all whom it may concern: Notice is hereby given, that on the seventh day of January A. D. 1911, a paper was opened and read by the Clerk of the District Court of Lee County, Iowa, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of William Fiedler late of Lee county, in the State of Iowa, deceased; and that proof of the genuineness of said instrument will be heard in the District Court of said County at Keokuk, on the thirteenth day of March, A. D. 1911, at the hour of two o'clock p. m. of said day, being the first day of the March Term, 1911 of said court, when all persons interested in said will are required to be present and make their objections to the same, if any they have.

In witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand this seventh day of January 1911.

ROBBER CATARRH Steals Energy and Will Power From Its Victim. Catarrh robs its victim of energy—some physicians say of will power. That may be the reason why thousands of catarrh sufferers haven't ambition enough to accept this fair and square offer by Wilkinson & Co., which they make without any why's and wherefores or red tape of any kind.

Wilkinson & Co., says: "We guarantee HYOMEI to cure catarrh, acute or chronic, or money back," and that offer is open to every reader of The Gate City.

HYOMEI (pronounced High-o-me) is the purest Australian Eucalyptus combined with Thymol and other germ killing antiseptics.

Four a few drops into the small vest pocket HYOMEI inhaler and breathe it into the lungs over the inflamed membrane infested with catarrh germs.

It is pleasant to use—it kills the germs, soothes the sore membrane, and cures catarrh; if it doesn't your money back.

A bottle of HYOMEI costs 50 cents at Wilkinson & Co. and druggists everywhere. A complete outfit, which includes a bottle of HYOMEI, a hard rubber inhaler and simple instructions for use costs $1.00.
