

CARNEGIE IS WITH PRESIDENT

He Calls Taft the Foremost Apostle of Peace That This World Has Ever Known.

INTERESTING INTERVIEW

is For World Peace and Says America Has no Enemies and No One Wants to Attack Us.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Andrew Carnegie, the man who recently gave $10,000,000 for the cause of international peace is today the warmest advocate that can be found of President Taft's new policy of peace through arbitration agreements.

Not in years has anything so aroused the enthusiasm of the "Laird of Skibo" and he is in almost communication with President Taft whom he characterizes as "the foremost apostle of peace that the world has ever seen."

In an interview with the United Press today Carnegie gave full approval to the views recently expressed by Lord Admiral Charles Beresford through the United Press that America and England working together could come near to making war between great powers impossible.

"If Great Britain and America should enter into such a treaty, Carnegie declared, it banishes the possibility of war within the wide boundaries of the English speaking races, because we have faith in each other and we know that as we have lived nearly a century and settled all disputes that have arisen the treaty will be adhered to, to a certainty."

"Now assuming that our race has abolished war—as it has private war—duelling—the effect upon other nations would be overwhelming. It must be overwhelming. Our noble president the foremost apostle of peace that the world has ever seen announces that already another of the great powers has officially informed him that it was prepared to enter into such a treaty."

Indeed, this is significant, but it is only what I have expected—that one power will be followed by others, one after the other. The fact is that if this treaty is adopted by the senate overwhelmingly, it will so impress the world that other nations will do as the one nation has done already—ask to be allowed to enter the brotherhood of peace."

"Why should America lead in this movement?" Carnegie was asked. "That goes without saying," he replied with enthusiastic incisiveness. "What nation has led the world in government of the people, for the people and by the people? Where is the nation in which man's privilege is every man's right under the law? We are the first child of triumphant democracy and we are false to our mission if we do not only occupy the leading position but push on still further toward perfection, for there is no limit to man's ascent on the earth."

"God didn't create man in his own likeness to go backward. Man is the product of the lower orders and has already become as Shakespeare says: 'In form how infinite, in apprehension how like a god.'"

"I already know many men and women on earth who are so angelic, so forgetful of self, so careful of others, so exceedingly good that if they were much better they would be good for nothing."

"I see in the United Press that Admiral Dewey is quoted as saying: 'I am for arbitration, heart and soul. I don't believe however, that we shall see in our day substantial peace established on that basis.'"

"I wish to say that for a naval officer that is a remarkably creditable statement. It is the best thing I have heard from Admiral Dewey in many a day. I can only put my belief against his and I am so full of faith that I hazard the prediction that if this treaty combining the English speaking races to peace be executed Admiral Dewey will himself live to see a realization of his wish."

"Assuming that several of the nations have agreed to such a treaty and that it was broken, we would immediately stop the mails. We would consider that one of the members of the human family had violated the rules and proprieties of the club and decline to have further intercourse with it.

Asked whether he thought the fact that the government had succeeded in mobilizing only 10,000 troops in Texas in two weeks argued against America's preparedness for war, Carnegie replied:

"If it were only 1,000 soldiers I would consider the nation invincible and armed against all possible enemies. We have no enemies. 'Nobody wants to attack our republic and we don't want to attack anybody.'"

I had a gentleman visit me today from Japan, a leading citizen who is grieving that a portion of the American people seem to be demented on the subject of Japan's hostility and he declared that if there is one nation in the world Japan wants to be friendly with that nation is our own.

Any man who mistrusts his country so much as to believe that it could be successfully invaded should never venture out without a lightning rod down his back to protect him from a stroke, of which there is ten times more probability than there is of an attempt to invade his country."

The Picture Without a Name

Manager Worley was in Fort Madison last evening to witness the "Katie Did" production. He reports it one of the very best on the road, intensely funny and up-to-date in every particular, and that the Fort Madison people were delighted. Other Keokuk people who saw the play were profuse in their appreciation.

The Keokuk Grand opera house should be filled this evening when the "Katie Did" company appears. The seat sale has been very satisfactory but a number of good seats can be secured. In the company will be found such well-known names as May Vokes, Bert Baker, Josie Intropidi, Violet Colby, Florence May, Anna Wilkes and Adelaide with J. J. Hughes.

The new musical production which is under the management of Jos. M. Gaites, the successful young manager and producer of "Three Twins," "Bright Eyes" and "The Girl of My Dreams," is called "Katie Did," and is a musical version of "My Friend From India," with music by Karl Hoselma, book by W. C. Duncan and lyrics by Frank Smithson; the latter has also produced the piece which has been given a most satisfying production, both from a scenic, costume and electrical point of view.

Some of the song hits of the piece are: "Save Up Your Kisses For a Rainy Day," "I'm Walking in My Sleep," "Katie Did," "Love, Love," "The Light of My Eyes," "Come a Little Closer," "I Met My Girl," "In the Swim" and "Out With the Owl."

The "Nameless" Tonight. At Dodge's theatre tonight the feature attraction will be "The Picture Without a Name." The audience will have a chance at naming the picture tonight and the person suggesting the most appropriate name will receive a free pass to Dodge's, good for one month.

Every picture on the program tonight will be comedy and it promises to be the biggest fun show of the season. Only two shows will be given tonight at the regular hours, 7:45 and 9:00 o'clock. The program tonight is made up of the following comedies:

"The Picture Without a Name," "Her Words Come True," "After a Hundred Years," "Hank and Lank," "The Jilted Joker."

This is one of the best programs that has been shown this season and the management was very fortunate in securing an all comedy bill. Mr. Reese will sing two of the latest song hits of the season. This popular singer has won a home in the hearts of the Dodge patrons and every song he features has been a decided hit.

The feature attraction for next Monday night will be a Biograph picture called "The Lonedale Operator," showing how a brave girl outwitted a couple of tramps. It is one of the most thrilling melodramatic stories ever produced in motion pictures and the railroad runs are most exciting. In detail the production is extreme, the leading actor who plays the engineer being a locomotive engineer, aside from his professional talents.

Two complete shows will be given Monday night at the regular hours.

theatre tonight, Marion Leonard and Little Mary will both appear tonight. They are Keokuk's favorite picture stars and every one will turn out to see them. Marion Leonard will be seen in a great Reliance drama "The Last Laugh," synopsis as follows:

The Last Laugh—George Waring becomes infatuated with Miss Lowe and his wife divorces him. While driving, Miss Lowe's horse runs away and she is heroically rescued by Dick Watts, a handsome youth who falls in love with her. Miss Lowe, attired in her bridal gown, is about to marry Waring when Watts rushes in and tempestuously exhorts her not to marry Waring, and as she has really learned to love Watts she accedes to his wishes. Waring is furious at having his bride snatched from his hands at the very altar, but resigns himself to his fate. Watts marries Miss Lowe, and, alone, seeks his fortune in Alaska. Meantime Mrs. Waring has met a childhood sweetheart, Paul Durkin, a soldier of fortune and a gambler, marries him and drifts to the Alaskan gold fields. Watts makes a rich strike and prepares to return home, but meets Durkin who fleeces him. He attempts suicide, and is found badly wounded by Mrs. Durkin who nurses him back to health, and, touched by his story, persuades Durkin to give back the gold and sends for his wife. When she arrives Mrs. Durkin learns that she has befriended the husband of the girl who wrecked her home, and struck by the humor of the situation bursts into hysterical laughter, in which she is gradually joined by the motley crowd of picturesquely attired men from many lands, forming a tableau of irresistible humor.

Little Mary appears in a great Imp comedy, supported by Owen Moore, the Imp Company's great actor. Two other pictures will be shown, a scenic picture of Norwegian waterfalls, and a comedy, making it a feature program that no one should miss. Everybody knows Marion Leonard and Little Mary. See them tonight.

MISREPRESENTATION IN INSURANCE

Neal of Washington County Would Regulate Hail Companies in the State.

Senator Neal of Washington introduced a bill to regulate hail companies in the state. The bill provides for the regulation of hail companies and the protection of policyholders.

The bill is designed to prevent the kind of misrepresentation that has been common in the hail insurance business, and to ensure that policyholders receive the benefits they are entitled to.

The bill also provides for the establishment of a hail insurance fund, which would be used to pay claims in the event of a hail storm.

The bill is expected to pass the legislature in the near future, and will be a significant step toward the regulation of the hail insurance industry.

Item Welcomed By Many Men

This recipe can be filled at home, so that no one need know of another's troubles, as the ingredients can be obtained separately at any well stocked drug store. They are in regular use and many different prescriptions are constantly being filled with them.

This will prove a welcome bit of information for all those who are overworked, gloomy, despondent, nervous and have trembling limbs, heart palpitation, dizziness, fear without cause, timidity, in venturing and general inability to act naturally and rationally as others do, because the treatment can be prepared secretly at home and taken without any knowledge.

Overworked office men and the many victims of society's late hours and dissipation will, it is said, find the restoratives they are in need of.

If the reader decides to try it, get three ounces of ordinary syrup sarsaparilla compound and one ounce compound fluid balsam; mix and let stand two hours; then get one ounce compound essence cadomene and one ounce tincture cardamom compound (not cardamom), mix all together, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring.

A certain well known medical expert asserts that thousands of men and many women are suffering all because of dormant circulation of the blood and a consequent impairment of the nervous force, which begets the most dreadful symptoms and untold misery.

duced a bill in the senate yesterday afternoon which is calculated to prevent misrepresentations by agents of mutual hail insurance companies. The measure provides specifically that any person who takes out a policy upon the misrepresentation of an agent as to the standing of the company or as to the previous cost of the insurance, can have his policy cancelled.

Warning to Railroad Men. Look out for severe and even dangerous kidney and bladder troubles resulting from years of railroad. Geo. E. Bell, 639 Third St., Fort Wayne, Ind., was many years a conductor on the Nickel Plate. He says: "Twenty years of railroading left my kidneys in terrible condition. There was a continual pain across my back and hips and my kidneys gave me much distress, and the action of my bladder was frequent and most painful. I got a supply of Foley Kidney Pills and the first bottle made a wonderful improvement and four bottles cured me completely. Since being cured I have recommended Foley Kidney Pills to many of my railroad friends." Wilkinson & Co.
