SWITCHMAN KING SAVED A LIFE

William King, Rock Island Employee at Foot of Main Street, Pulled Old Man From the Tracks.

LEG WAS CUT OFF

Character Who Has Lived Here Number of Years, Helplessly Staggered in Path of the Cars.

William A. King, the Rock Island switchman in the railroad yards at the foot of Main street, proved himself an exceptionally cool person and a good man in an emergency yesterday afternoon when Steve Brunt, the elderly man, had his leg cut off. Bystanders who saw the happening and turned away from the sight because they expected Brunt's body to be cut in two, say that Switchman King's act in pulling the injured man out of danger as much as possible, was a heroic one.

Today Brunt who is very low at the hospital, owes his life to Mr. King as death would have been certain had the string of cars pushed by the "Q" switch engine, struck him.

Brunt had been down at the river front and one of the fishermen there had given him a fish to take home. It is said he was under the influence of liquor at the time and while on the north side of Main at Water street, started in the direction of the tracks on which the cars were being switched at the time.

Seeing the condition of the man, Mr. King shouted to Brunt to stop. The old man halted himself and then without warning ran staggering toward the tracks when the moving cars were within ten feet of him.

Noting the plight of Brunt and knowing that he would be run down, King ran thirty feet and seizing Brunt by the arm, jerked him all but the right leg from the path of the cars. Brunt was limp in his limbs and it is supposed he was unable to pull the right one from the tracks in the excitement.

As it was the escape of both men from being run down was miraculous as the cars brushed past just as King pulled his man out of the way.

Leg Amputated.

The ambulance was immediately called and Brunt was taken to Graham hospital where amputation of the right leg was found necessary, the limb having been mashed from all semblance of shape just below the knee by two of the car wheels. On account of loss of blood and shock, it was not expected last night that Brunt would live because of his advanced years.

Terrible Picture of Suffering

Clinton, Ky.—Mrs. M. C. McElroy, in a letter from Clinton, writes: "For six years, I was a sufferer from female troubles. I could not eat, and could not stand on my feet, without suffering great pain. Three of the best doctors in the state said I was in a critical condition, and going down hill. I lost hope. After using Cardui a week, I began to improve. Now I feel better than in six years." Fifty years of success, in actual practice, is positive proof that Cardui can always be relied on, for relieving female weakness and disease. Why not test it for yourself. Sold by all druggists.

GUILTY OF VIOLATING THE PURE FOOD ACTS

The S. P. Pond Company and Anderson Canning Company of Keokuk Were Fined by Judge McPherson Today.

MAXIMUM PENALTY WAS IMPOSED

Burlington Company Also Found Guilty, but Fine Assessed was Only $50—Uncle Sam's Experts Testify.

For two hours in the United States District court this morning Judge Smith McPherson listened to nearly a score of government experts testify against The Anderson Canning company, The S. P. Pond company and the Burlington Vinegar and Pickle Works in pure food cases, and at the end of that time the court became convinced that the defendants were guilty of flagrant violations and he fined the two Keokuk firms the maximum, which is $200, and the Burlington company $50, owing to extenuating circumstances in the case.

Some of the testimony was the most technical that has been heard in the federal court here for a long time. Dr. B. J. Howard, chief of the Micro Chemical laboratory for the government at Washington, was Uncle Sam's leading witness, and he scored point after point against the defendants in a manner that showed careful preparation for the case and a thorough knowledge of the subjects at hand. During the arguments in which William Ballinger, Charles S. Pond and Mr. Weinick of Burlington testified in their own behalf nearly everything which had to do with pure butter and process butter, and with tomato catsup was touched upon.

When the cases were called shortly after court convened at 10 o'clock the defendants entered a plea of guilty and the discussion that followed was for the benefit of Judge McPherson in assessing the fine.

The Charges.

The Anderson Canning Company of Keokuk was charged with violation of the pure food act in the shipment of tomato catsup on March 9 from this city to Nave-McCoid Mercantile Company of St. Joseph, Mo. The label was false, according to the information, because the product was adulterated, containing filthy, decomposed or putrid animal or vegetable matter.

The Burlington Vinegar and Pickle Works was charged with false labeling of tomato catsup shipped to Allen Brothers at Omaha. The S. P. Pond Company of Keokuk was charged with false labeling of butter shipped to Philadelphia. The information set out that the words "Process Butter," was hidden and could not be seen until the package was broken. The outside label represented the butter to be pure.

The informations against the companies were filed by Merceus L. Temple, United States attorney.

Mr. Weinick is Heard.

When the pure food cases were called the Anderson Canning company and the S. P. Pond company entered pleas of guilty to the charges, but not so immediately with Mr. Weinick, of the Burlington company. Mr. Weinick is very hard of hearing and when he addressed court did so in a very loud voice. He stated that the charge against him was a sudden one and entirely unexpected. He stated that he had had his catsup examined by a chemist at St. Louis who said it would pass government examination. Mr. Weinick stated that in shipping the product to Omaha it had been chilled by a big fall in temperature and had been frost bitten. In consequence of this it made a poor showing. He said the chemist who examined the catsup would bear him out in this. He said that it had not been his intention to misrepresent things.

Judge McPherson told him that the present question was one whether he should plead guilty or not guilty. The Burlington man was not represented by an attorney and after a short conference with Clerk McArthur decided to enter a plea similar to the defendants in the other cases.

The court said he was running into this kind of catsup everywhere. There was a second case against the Anderson Canning company, but it was dismissed when a plea of guilty was made in the other case.

Testimony of Government Men. The first case in which the government men were asked to give expert testimony was in that against the S. P. Pond Company. They said that they had made the analysis and found that the butter was process butter of fair quality. Court asked that they designate between pure butter and process butter and one of the witnesses plunged into a lengthy explanation.

Pure butter, it was said, is purer than process butter, but a fair grade of process butter is better than a poor grade of pure butter. Henry Norwood, another government expert, who was the inspector responsible for the seizure of the butter at Camden, N. J. testified as to the label which misrepresented the product.

Attorney Sawyer representing the Pond Company explained to the court the manner in which the wrong label had been sent out by the Pond people. For a number of years the Keokuk firm has done business with the Philadelphia company, and the latter has always sent its own wrappers to be put upon the butter shipped to it. This continued for sometime and with-out the company knowing it was changed and permitted to be put on butter without the error being discovered here in Keokuk. It was pointed out that there had been no attempt on the part of the Keokuk company to deceive.

Charles S. Pond also spoke briefly upon how the mistake in wrapping the butter had been made. The Catsup Case. The second case called was that against the Anderson Canning company. Dr. Howard was called to testify in this and in his opening remarks summed up the findings that had been made during the analysis, later answering many questions put to him both by the court and by the defendant company. Dr. Howard said that he had found in the catsup decomposed substances, yeast and spores, and bacteria, giving the amount in each instance. He plunged into a technical explanation of how decay is brought about. He said that he found too much benzoate of soda in the product and this was practically the violation which the Keokuk company was found guilty of. How this was brought about was explained by Mr. Ballinger. Often in factories the pulp which goes into the tomato catsup is purchased from another factory. This was the case in this instance and the Keokuk company put in 1-10 of 1 per cent benzoate of soda as permitted by the government. However, before receiving the company sending it had put in a quantity of this preservative, which was found upon test by the government chemists.

Mr. Ballinger stated that catsup in time will very often spoil, but Dr. Howard said that if properly sterilized it will not spoil for years, even though the air gets to it. Up to this time the discussion between the two gentlemen had been as to the condition of the catsup with regard to germs, etc. Judge McPherson asked the pointed question of how the benzoate of soda had gotten in in such a large quantity. Mr. Ballinger said he was guilty on this count, although he gave a good explanation of the manner in which the condition was brought about. Judge McPherson pointed out to the head of the local canning company that it would be an easy manner to employ some high school boy to make the proper tests.

he had ever tested. The tomatoes used in it were more or less decayed. Mr. Weinick again referred to the freezing which the catsup had been subjected to, but this was no defense in face of the testimony brought to bear by the Washington man. He held that no active change had taken place in the product since it was manufactured and the freezing could have had nothing to do with its condition. Inspector Evans who seized the goods at Omaha, told of the condition in which it was received, and of the label thereon. It was four days en route from Burlington to Omaha.

Sentence Imposed. Before imposing sentence Judge McPherson gave a brief summary. He said that the pure food acts had been in existence for nearly five years and that Secretary Wilson had been very lenient hoping to educate the people. Courts have been lenient, he said, fining offenders only $5 or $10.

The Burlington case is an old story, he said. The Pond story is still older, saying the matter was entrusted to girls, who wrapped the butter, the managers being asleep, and failing to take notice of the kind of wrappers that went on the butter.

In the Anderson Canning company case the most stress was put on the benzoate of soda by Judge McPherson. The pure food laws are for the purpose of enabling the consumer to get that for which he pays.

These firms, continued the court, are of high character, and thus the offence is the greater, because from firms of high character we expect to get the best for what we pay.

Thereupon the fines were assessed $200 in the Keokuk cases and $50 against Burlington defendant.

Grand Jury Reported. The grand jury made its report this morning, returning only one indictment. In this indictment the person is not under arrest and the name of the party was not given out for publication.

This afternoon Judge McPherson heard a few minor matters and then adjourned court. The next session will convene at Davenport in two weeks.

BOUGHT REMAINDER OF J. L. ROOT FARM

Mrs. Emma Rockenbach Buys That Part of Land Not Taken by Water Power Co.

A real estate deal has recently been closed by which Mrs. Otto Rockenbach becomes the owner of all that part of the J. L. Root farm not taken over by the Water Power Company. The tract comprises approximately seventy acres and lies a short distance above the Illinois end of the dam. Considerable of this farm will be overflowed by the building of the dam and the power company has paid for the land it will damage by the building of the dam. The remainder is the part bought by Mrs. Rockenbach. It is a fine investment and is delightfully located.
