

HIS DEFINITION OF SOCIALISM

Forceful Address Delivered at District Court Room Last Evening by James Collins of Chicago.

UNION MEN PRESENT

Was Here Under Auspices of Local Socialist Party, But Talk Greatly Interests Laboring People.

Socialism means that each must receive the full social value of his toil, less the running expense of the institutions of the country. Each must pay his part. It means to liberate the women and children who work in the factories, who die by tuberculosis, and place them in the home, school and playgrounds.

John M. Collins, socialist, of Chicago, gave the above definition of socialism in the district court room before a fair sized audience last evening. Mr. Collins was brought here under the auspices of the local socialist party and was sent by the state office, which has had the speaker in Iowa for the past three months. Chairman of the meeting was Dr. S. M. Gaston.

In opening his address, Speaker Collins gave a description of the socialists as they have been pictured with long hair and daggers, contrasting it to the present standing of the socialists, who are now regarded as ordinary people. The working of the party was explained. No corporations donate to it and the support comes from the due paying system.

In sarcasm he spoke of the liberality of the other two leading parties. They are liberal to the working man—before an election. The socialist party is for the working people all of the time. Lectures are arranged and interesting and instructive literature is distributed among the people. The movement is one with a world-wide scope, taking in Japan, England, France and many other foreign countries in addition to our own.

The speaker told of the changes which have been brought about by the trade unions. He cited transformations that have taken place in the working man's condition in both England and the United States. The union fights the battle of its own and of the unorganized. But it loses power in one direction, and that is when they fail to co-operate and work together. Political power must be used and the battle faced in a political manner.

Mr. Collins referred to the McNamara, Moyer and Nebs affairs. The first one he characterized as a frame-up against the Structural Iron workers; the second as a frame-up against the Western Federation of Miners, and the third as a frame-up against the A. R. U.

FRIEND'S TRIBUTE TO MARTIN FOLEY

Was Honorable, Big Hearted, Whole Souled Fellow, Faithful to His Friends.

To the Editor of The Gate City: Death, the great transformer, is always fruitful of thought and lingering memories. When we behold the cold and lifeless body of a friend who but yesterday was among us in all the naturalness and vigor of life, it is not strange that memory should direct us again to the many graces and virtues of which we took small notice in life, yet which, in death are emphasized and revived.

Away off from his native hills and beloved Keokuk Martin Foley died the other day. Like a thousand others who pursue the even tenor of their way in obscurity, his death was chronicled in a brief dispatch, and he was buried today from St. Peter's. There was nothing for comment in his death; there had been nothing in his life greatly to interest folks. Just an ordinary, honorable, big hearted, whole-souled fellow was gathered to his fathers, and that happens every day in a thousand places unnoticed and unheeded.

man a true friend is perhaps the greatest. It is strange and yet a fact that the majority have not the qualities that make for true friendship. True friendship causes to live, in fact is never born in the heart where suspicion dwells and selfishness abides. Perhaps therein lies the scarcity of friends.

Nearly fifty years of knocking around this old world has given me a great insight into men and I have had friends in every walk of life, men of influence and power have I numbered as my friends, but none shall I prize more truly than that of "Red" Foley—he was a true friend, one who would give up his last penny if you were in need, and would stay with you to the last if you were in trouble.

His life, while it stirred no ripple upon the vast and surging sea of life, was not in vain, for it was a lesson in true and faithful friendship.

This is but the homely tribute of a friend who played with him as a boy, and knew him well as he grew into manhood and journeyed toward life's twilight. It is not a labored eulogy that seeks to gloss over faults with the charity of sorrow. Martin Foley was not faultless, for he was human and it is human to err. His faults were so much lesser than mine that of them I have nothing to say, but his virtues were so infinitely greater than mine that of them I would speak.

His better qualities that made men trust and honor him were so preponderating in his life that they crowd out of the mind all other memories. He took life and its responsibilities seriously. His sudden death, coming as it did in the full maturity of life, spreads a pall of sorrow over those whose friend he was and who knew him best. His life gave offense to no man, but gave comfort to many.

A FRIEND.

SANE FOURTH FOR KEOKUK THIS YEAR

Statement From Mayor Elder Regarding the Use of Noise Makers.

Mayor Elder has issued the following statement: The city of Keokuk has an ordinance in force prohibiting the discharging of fire arms, or the burning of fire works, etc.

Last year the city council made no effort to enforce this ordinance, thereby giving the dealers the opportunity of disposing of any fireworks they might have ordered or had on hand. Due notice was given to all dealers that the setting off of fireworks would be prohibited for the future.

In view of the exceeding dry weather we are having, the liability of fire and the dangers therefrom, and on account of the great danger to our youth from wounds and burns resulting from fireworks, I earnestly solicit the co-operation of our citizens to the end that all fire works, discharging of fire arms, etc., be dispensed within the celebration of July 4th.

The police department will be instructed to enforce the ordinance found on page 253, Sec. 308, of our ordinances, on and after this date.

ASK INJUNCTION AGAINST SALOON

Action Taken in District Court Today and Building at No. 17 South Third Street Is Hit.

TIME FOR HEARING SET

Matter Will Be Brought Before Judge Henry Bank Next Thursday Morning—Officers Make Affidavits.

Another Keokuk saloon may be put out of business. Today in the district court an injunction was asked against Theodore Hultz, John Wheatley and George Wittich as owners of the building at No. 17 South Third street. The application was filed by Assistant Attorney McManus and in support of it were affidavits from Chief of Police Schevers, Officers Pearson, Conn, Fuqua and Froeman. Judge Henry Bank, Jr., has set Thursday, June 29, 10 a. m., for hearing the injunction petition.

If a temporary injunction is finally obtained it means that the saloon, which is situated on the alley, will be closed, and the upstairs rooms barred to liquor traffic.

The affidavits made by the officers tell the story of Saturday night's raid. It is also stated that there is a door in the rear of the saloon which has a spring lock and is not barred up, as provided for by law.

AMUSEMENTS.

Where Everything's Best. There where the fresh breezes reach every tired nerve and the starlit dome of the zenith looks down upon comfortable home of clean, wholesome amusement, one of the most delightful programs full of life and jollification was presented at the Air dome last evening, the big nature theatre.

Happy Murphy led off and to say he made a home run is too mild in modern parlance. Happy has a line of dope up his sleeve that dashes cold water over the blues like a breaker over a wrecked ship in the comedy. Happy Murphy is a fat, funny comedian. You want to see him. Tonight is your opportunity golden.

Love thy neighbor as thyself, but leave his wife alone, isn't the way Scripture says it, but Harvey Hull brings the quotation into this song that makes a new resolve here and there no doubt, where ever the shoe fits. "Baby Rose," Harvey's illustrated song is a tuneful dream and beautiful.

"The Lucky Card," and "Billy in Trouble" are the censured picture titles. They are good.

Take the wife, the youngsters, the "one best bet" or if you can't find any better company than yourself, take "thou," to the naturally cooled Air dome.

World's Copyright Laws.
A writer in the London Chronicle, discussing copyright laws, says that Mexico, Venezuela and Guatemala are the only countries where authors enjoy the privilege of perpetual copyright. This is worth something in Mexico, where there is a fairly large reading public, but is of little or no value in the other two countries. Spain is the most generous of European countries toward its authors. Copyright there lasts for 80 years after the author's death. In France the term is 50 years, and in Germany, where no copyright law existed until 1870, it is 30 years. "In the United States," adds the Chronicle, "copyright lasts for 28 years after publication, and this is extended to 42 years if the author or his widow or children are alive at the expiration of the term. And that is the country of pensions!"
