CITY NEWS.

—If it's a buggy, buy it of Sherwood.

—A delegation of Farmington has visited Camp 11 Sunday.

—A cement platform is being laid at the Hamilton railway depot.

—With the return of cooler weather there should be a return of church attendance.

—There is some inquiry as to whether Keokuk will hold some kind of a celebration this fall.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Hiller and a party of friends motored up from Kahoka yesterday and spent some time with friends in Keokuk.

—Subscribers to The Gate City who fail to receive their paper should report every failure to the business office not later than 5:15 each evening.

—The rain maker who could furnish the rain would have had to increase his working force this summer if he had been on the job. He took a vacation or went to the ball game.

—During the past few days, fishing has been very good in this vicinity and several good catches have been made along the river and in the sloughs and ponds of this vicinity.

—The union services were held last evening in the First Baptist church with Rev. E. B. Newcomb, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church preaching the sermon. There was a good attendance.

—The pay car of the Burlington route was due at Keokuk today, being scheduled to arrive on No. 3. The Burlington hands checks to 43,000 employees every month, and the vouchers due the Keokuk force look good to them, the boys say.

—Professor Rowley, superintendent of the public schools at Louisiana, Mo., and one of the well known geological authorities in the United States, is in the city for a few days examining the geological formations on the Water Power. Prof. Rowley is a personal friend of J. O. Boyd.

—J. D. Rebo of Alexandria, Mo., was in the city today. Mr. Rebo has the thanks of this office for leaving a copy of a book written by him recounting incidents of his trip around the world. It is an excellently recounted story of the trip made by Dr. Rebo and many others on a recent extensive circle of the globe.

—An auto party from Quincy that spent part of yesterday in Keokuk was composed of Mrs. F. W. Menke, Mrs. E. Hagenbach, Miss Louise Hagenbach, R. E. Hagenbach, Miss Louise Fohrmann, Carl Ruff, Fred Bartholomew and George O. Beuckman. Another party of ten Quincy motorists took dinner at the Hotel Keokuk.

—The Rev. W. Brown of San Francisco will lecture at the 7th Street Baptist church, Concert street tonight at 8 p. m. The lecture free. All are welcome. The subject of the lecture "The Great Earthquake and Fire, and the Negro in History." Mr. Brown was an eye witness and a personal sufferer. He was in the fire for four days and nights. He lost his church. This appeal comes to all for help. The lecture will be free. All are welcome.

—The Gospel Workers of the Keokuk Y. M. C. A. held the second meeting for this season at Alexandria last night. The party which went down in two machines, was composed of Secretary Burns, C. F. McFarland, Henry Strickler, H. C. Brown, J. A. Roberts and the Association quartette James Young, P. C. Hayden, M. F. Risburg and J. R. Hayden. Services were held in the First Presbyterian church, which was filled to the doors. The address was delivered by C. F. McFarland and was received with deep interest, several men and women responding to the invitation to express the intention of leading the christian life. Next Sunday afternoon the workers will go to Summitville, where services will be held in the afternoon.

—The usual number of water power excursionists were on hand yesterday, thronging Main street, the parks and swarming over the works at the river. The largest crowd came in over the T. P. and W., arriving about noon and departing at six o'clock. There were ten coaches, carrying some five hundred people from Peoria and way points. This was the second of a series of excursions over this road, the next being scheduled for about the middle of August. The Keokuk had an unusually large Sunday crowd bringing many people from as far down as Hannibal, and from the back country adjacent to the river towns between here and Quincy. About eighty residents of Benjamin, Bunker Hill and other places in behind Canton were aboard. The Columbia brought a good crowd from Burlington and intermediate points.

CITY NEWS.

—The foundation for the new Elks home will be completed this week.

—Karl is the leading shoe repair man of Keokuk. Try him, 814 Main.

—If it's harness, buy it at Sherwood's.

—The impression prevails among grain dealers that with timely rainfall and seasonable weather a good sized corn crop is still a possibility.

—Saturday night a pocket book was lost on Main street. The owner spent 15 cents for a Gate City want ad, which appeared on Sunday morning and the result was that he got his pocket book back on Monday morning. Gate City want ads pay.

—A number of members of the newly organized business men's baseball league of the Y. M. C. A., will play ball tomorrow evening at 5:00 o'clock at Athletic field. The teams have not been selected yet but the new league will likely be started by next week.

—The open air meeting of the Y. M. C. A. held Sunday afternoon at Rand park was well attended and attested the growing popularity of these services. Dr. A. B. Hughes spoke effectively on the topic, "The Hilltop of Life." Miss Jessie H. Banks rendered an excellent solo while O. E. King, with the cornet, and a quartet also furnished special music. Owing to the fact that the Summitville meeting is scheduled for next Sunday afternoon, no services will be held at the park then.

—Manager Worley of the Grand opera house, was in the city Sunday. He came from Peoria on one of the many excursion trains that are running into Keokuk this summer. Mr. Worley was accompanied by a friend. The trip was partly on business, as measurements were taken while here for the fire escapes which will be placed on the opera house before the fall season opens. It has not been definitely decided by the management whether Mr. Worley will be returned to manage the Keokuk house or sent to another place. His many Keokuk friends hope for his return.
