

JURY SECURED FOR ROLAND TRIAL

Twelve Men Who Will Decide Fate of Murderer Were Drawn in District Court Saturday.

OPPOSE DEATH PENALTY

C. M. Teeters and H. J. Bonham Declare They Will Not Inflict It—Evidence Begins Monday.

If John Roland, the negro on trial for the murder of Mrs. Lily Jones, is found guilty of murder in the first degree, the penalty will not be hanging. This was proved conclusively in the district court Saturday, when C. M. Teeters, one of the jurors, declared he was not in favor of capital punishment and would not inflict the death penalty even though the evidence was such as to warrant it.

The jury in the Roland case was secured somewhat earlier than had been expected. The twelve men who will hear the evidence for and against the murderer and will then be called upon to decide his fate, were sworn before the adjournment of court at noon. Those composing the jury follow: E. H. Alvis, Len Brewer, Chas. Moander, S. W. Ingersoll, James Allen, C. M. Teeters, H. J. Bonham, W. C. Thon, William Teller, Thomas Young, V. R. McKay and Michael Collins. Of these jurors three were from the regular panel, two from a special venire drawn October 10, and seven were talemens drawn Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Judge Hamilton adjourned court at noon Saturday and will reconvene it Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The introduction of the state's evidence will begin in the afternoon at two o'clock.

Why I Lost My Job

Reasons Why Thousands Like Me Cannot Satisfy Their Employers.

I believe my fate is not unlike that of thousands of other workers who daily lose their places for reasons they do not know, and probably would not believe. When their last pay envelope comes along, it is usually, "Your services no longer required." If the truth were known, the reason for their unceremonious removal would probably be that their usefulness was destroyed because of some mental worry, bodily ailment or general indisposition. These things, as we all know, are the most fruitful causes of failure in all walks of life. The battle of Waterloo was lost because of a headache. In this quick age our minds must be clear, rapid, active and free from outside influence or worry, or else we go down to failure with the throng of "floaters" who go from one place of employment to another, giving no satisfaction to others or to themselves, constantly growing older and less useful, with no ambition, no will power, and no hope.

Every man requires from every other man the best that is in him. But no man can use or get the best that is in himself until he is first free from all fretful indispositions and worries. That was my trouble. I was full of troubles. That's why I lost my job. My stomach in the first place was always out of order, and I was worrying about it and my mind grew cloudy, and slow. I made mistakes, and grew grouchy. That was the end.

There are thousands like me, going about with "quick lunch" faces, dyspeptic manners, and repulsive atmospheres. No employer wants such men's services. Take my advice. A healthy stomach is half the battle, for it keeps your mind clear, and your face rosy. I have a healthy stomach now and hold a good position, and my employer is satisfied and so am I.

I started to take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets which I was told were good for the worst cases of indigestion and dyspepsia. The first two tablets made a wonderful difference in my condition.

One ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digests 2,000 grains of food. The stomach doesn't have to work at all. The Tablets do all the work, no matter how heavy your meal.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets cure brash, eructations, burning sensations, bloating, irritations, loss of appetite, nausea, heartburn, lack of energy, loss of memory and dyspepsia and indigestion in their very worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry them around with you wherever you go and take them regularly after meals. Then you will realize what it is to be freed from stomach torment, and have a clear mind, a quick memory, a happy disposition, comfort and rest. Get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store for 50c a box.

Send us your name and address today and we will at once send you by mail a sample package, free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

PROMINENT HANCOCK COUNTY FARMER DEAD

D. H. Humphrey, Who Has Lived Near Hamilton for Number of Years, Died Friday Night.

[Special to The Gate City.] HAMILTON, Ill., Nov. 4.—D. H. Humphrey, who for many years has been a prominent resident of Hancock county, died at his home east of here about 8 o'clock Friday night. Though he had been ailing for some time it was not believed Mr. Humphrey's condition was serious until about a week ago when he was taken with paralysis.

Mr. Humphrey was known to many farmers in western Illinois and was the owner of a large farm about a mile and a half east of town on the Carthage road. He was the father of Wallace Humphrey, an attorney in the employ of the Water Power company. He is also survived by a widow, Mr. Humphrey was a member of the Masonic order.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Land Without Trees.

Thorshaven, the capital city of the Faroe islands, is said to be absolutely treeless. The claim is made that for some reason, perhaps soil conditions, trees absolutely refuse to grow there.

In the Toils

There certainly were flaws somewhere in the screens. As Mrs. Stebleton waded distractedly at the buzzing pests that were interfering with the reading of her morning mail she calculated that there must be at least a thousand flies in the flat. And Mrs. Stebleton hates a fly as she hates a rattlesnake.

"I simply cannot stand this!" she cried in wrath. So she went to the phone and ordered sent over at once a quantity of sticky fly paper. When it came she hated to spoil the looks of the place, but desperate measures were imperative. The yellow sheets were scattered about through the rooms. Then Mrs. Stebleton hung around counting the first unwary victims and rejoicing as she checked them off.

Presently she got dressed and went out to a luncheon and shopping with a friend. When she came back she hoped that the last of the invaders would have buzzed out his final protests on the sticky fly paper.

Hilda, the maid, some hours later bore an armful of freshly ironed sheets and towels as she tramped heavily down the hall to the linen closet. Then she dropped her burden with a thump on a convenient table. When in the course of putting them away she came to the last sheet something seemed wrong with it. Hilda investigated and then she said: "My land!" One of the pieces of fly paper was immovably glued to the under side of the sheet.

With mutterings of disgust, Hilda peeled off the sheet and tried to wash it out in the bath tub. Her efforts proved to her how very useless it was for a fly to try to get away when once he got stuck to the sticky stuff.

The fly paper she removed from its dangerous position on the table, and after aimlessly looking around for an out of the way place, deposited it upon the topmost sofa pillow on the library couch.

Linda Stebleton, aged 16, arrived home from school a little later, bringing with her three girls. They burst in with a gust of chatter and distributed themselves through two rooms recklessly. Thereupon simultaneously arose wild shrieks. Guest No. 1 had planted her elbow on one sheet of fly paper and her endeavors to remove it glued it firmly to her other hand. Guest No. 2 had leaned back her head and brought down a sheet hanging over the edge of a bookcase. Four puffs seemed inextricably attached to its surface. Guest No. 3 was trying to remove a sheet from Linda's back.

After the excitement had cooled down a trifle Linda gazed upon the fly paper with hostile eyes. "Mother must have put that horrid stuff around!" she said. "I suppose she saw a fly! You'd think that one fly was a regiment from the way she acts. Now, where can we put the awful stuff?"

They prowled around with the sticky paper gingerly held between their thumbs and fingers and finally arranged it to suit themselves. Then they devoted an hour to soap and alcohol in an endeavor to rid themselves of the general stickiness.

"Tod" Stebleton, aged eight, joined the procession when he rushed in, and sat down with a bounce on a sheet that had slid into a chair. His objections were violent and acrid and it took the efforts of his sister and the other three girls combined to calm him. Taking the fly paper in no gentlemanly hand, Tod hurled it out of his way.

Stebleton himself arrived home before his wife. "What's this? What's this?" he demanded in his nervous way, placing an investigating finger on the pale yellow sheet on the hall stand. It stuck. The other hand stuck, too, when he hastily endeavored to get it off. His son and daughter hastened to his rescue, explaining that doubtless mother had been waging war against her enemies, the flies.

When Mrs. Stebleton came in, tired, she was full of apologies for her lateness, she explained as she tossed off her hat and her gloves and coat. "I'm simply dead!" she ended. "I've just got to rest a few minutes before I dress for dinner!" Then she threw herself among the pillows on the library couch.

But not for long. From Mrs. Stebleton's appearance as she scrambled to her feet wildly after a horrified instant it seemed that Linda and her three friends, Tod and Stebleton all had followed Hilda's example in choosing the sofa pillows on that couch as a safe place to stow the sticky sheets of fly paper out of the way. Every last one of them was plastered on Mrs. Stebleton!

On the Nursery Menu.

Little sicknesses due to unwise feeding sometimes develop into troublesome maladies, and parents do well to watch during the autumn especially, that injudicious treatment does not give rise to stomach complications in the case of young children. Contrary to the general idea, too much milk is not good, and should not be given promiscuously; there are many occasions upon which water is to be preferred, but cold water must not be given to an overheated child. A little barley water in milk will make the digestion assimilate it more easily and prevent vomiting and biliousness, and many children like and can with benefit be given buttermilk.

HAS OPENED DRAW FOR LAST BOAT

James L. Wilson, Engineer of Keokuk and Hamilton Bridge Company, Has Resigned After 28 Years.

ACCOUNT OF ILL HEALTH

Served in Days When River Traffic Was Heavy, Often 3,000 Boats Passing During the Year.

No longer will James H. Wilson, the veteran stationary engineer, stand at his post in the small house on the Keokuk and Hamilton bridge and open the draw for passing boats. After more than twenty-eight years of continuous service for the bridge company he has resigned on account of poor health.

Mr. Wilson, who has now reached an advanced age, took the position of engineer on March 8, 1883. In those days the river traffic was much heavier than at the present time and the engineer was a busy man. It was not infrequent for more than three thousand boats to pass through the draw during the year. But there came a change in this river traffic, and during the last few years in which Mr. Wilson was in the service his task was not a difficult one. Often only two or three boats made the trip through the bridge and frequently the low water made it impossible even for the pumps to operate. It is roughly estimated that Engineer Wilson has opened the draw no fewer than 20,000 times during his twenty-eight years of service.

John H. Cole, superintendent of the bridge company, greatly regretted the resignation of Mr. Wilson. The relations between the two men had always been most cordial and pleasant.

Mr. Wilson's War Record.

James L. Wilson is possessed of quite a war record. He enlisted from Lee county, Iowa, April 19, 1861, and mustered into the United States service at Keokuk, May 27, 1861, as a

Treacherous Trouble

Keokuk People Point the Way Out.

Kidney diseases are very dangerous. They come on silently, gain ground rapidly, and cause thousands of deaths that could have been prevented with proper treatment in the beginning. Nature gives early warnings of kidney disease—backache, twinges of pain when stooping or lifting, headaches and urinary disorders. If these symptoms are unheeded, there is grave danger of dropsy or fatal Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills have earned a reputation for their effectiveness in kidney troubles, and are known and recommended the world over. Keokuk testimony proves the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills to our readers.

Matthew Lumsdon, 618 1/2 Main St., Keokuk, Iowa, says: "I had a dull, nagging backache and there was an extreme lameness across my loins. When suffering in that way, I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills at Wilkinson & Co.'s Drug Store and their use soon relieved me. I have since learned Doan's Kidney Pills with the best of results."

THE SACRIFICES OF A TRULY BIG MAN

Senator William S. Kenyon Who Voted in Keokuk Saturday of the Right Calibre.

Treacherous Trouble

In the career of William S. Kenyon, United States senator from Iowa, sacrifices that great men who care not for wealth nor position, but service for country, are marked. Several years ago, Senator Kenyon was a railroad's attorney at a salary of $12,500 a year. President Taft asked him to become assistant attorney general that that department of national government would have a worthy official. Senator Kenyon was willing to accept the assistant attorney generalship providing his hands were free to conduct the office in such a manner that he would not be hampered in his work. He sacrificed his railroad position for one paying a salary of $7,000 a year—little more than half the amount received as legal counsel for the road he represented.

Senator Kenyon was at one time district judge in Iowa an office which carries with it more prominence upstate than in this part of Iowa. He has held other high offices and is the typical statesman today of which nothing more could be asked than the great things he has accomplished in his span of reputation.
