

MAKING READY FOR WIRING

Crushed Rock to be Used at Warsaw for Transmission Lines From Keokuk to St. Louis.

WANT TIMBER CUTTERS

Gymnasium Has Been Started in the Bustling Little City With Boy Scouts as Charter Members.

WARSAW, Ill., Nov. 4.—Representatives of the Mississippi Power company were in the city Thursday making arrangements for a supply of crushed rock for the near-by piers of the transmission wire work, which will soon begin. They also want to hire men to cut timber, and hire teams to do the necessary hauling in this neighborhood to the right-of-way of the line.

Dan Ernst is building an addition to his store in the rear, which will be used for the storage of oils. He has lately installed an up-to-date stitching machine which is indispensable in harness repairing. The machine is run by electricity.

Thomas Elwell will not continue the restaurant business, but has had his store room painted, papered and generally renovated, and has had three small pool tables installed and will operate it as a pool room.

The Mississippi Valley Telephone company is having its "Central" painted and repaired, an improvement that has long been needed.

John M. August of the Farmers' bank has recently purchased a 30-horsepower launch, with accommodations for thirty passengers.

Mr. Emil C. Schmidt and Miss Anna Fauer were united in marriage at the residence of Paul Clyne in Quincy on Thursday evening, November 2. Congratulations from their many friends are due this most worthy couple.

Mrs. John Edwards and son of Forsyth, Mont., are here visiting Mrs. Anne Edwards, and will remain until after Christmas. Her two daughters from Downer college, Milwaukee, Wis., will join her before Christmas. Mr. Edwards accompanied her, but has been called away, and will return the last of the month to remain till after Christmas.

Warsaw contemplates putting in a filtering plant by next spring. It will have a capacity of 80,000 gallons per day.

The gymnasium starts out under most favorable auspices, with the Boy Scouts as a nucleus, under John Forbes Mitchell, scout master, and Richard O. Marsh, instructor in athletics. A basket ball team will be formed. The club will be non-sectarian and all well-behaved boys are welcome to become members.

Miss Ethel Brinkman left Thursday for Fulton, Mo., where she will visit Mrs. J. Turner Moore, formerly

$3.50 RECIPE FREE FOR WEAK MEN

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, falling memory and lame back brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop druging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4081 Luck Building, Detroit Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $3.50 for merely writing out entirely free.

Miss Merle McMahan of Carthage, Ill., The Halloween masquerade party of the freshmen class of the high school given by Miss Mabel Nelson at the home of her uncle, Mr. Larson, on Nagel hill was a jolly affair, all of the disguises being good and some of them handsome. The evening was spent in games suitable to the occasion, and a delicate luncheon was served. About fifteen couples were present.

A Warsaw lady, and not a Keokuk lady, masqueraded as "The Gate City" at the recent Halloween masquerade ball of The Girls' Club.

J. B. Henderson's drama "The Hypocrite" is a play of great merit and thrilling interest, dealing with every day life as we find it, and is predicted as a winner here by those who have seen it. It will be presented at the opera house Tuesday, November 7th.

The trolley company has been requested by the city to take up its track on Fourth street from Main street to the bottom of the hill, as the company has said they will not use the street any more because of danger on the hill, on account of its steep grade.

Warsaw's Improvement association has received an invitation from Herbert F. Miller, business manager of the Chicago Association of Commerce, to attend a joint meeting of the business organizations of Illinois, to be held at Springfield, November 14, 1911. It is styled a "Get Together" meeting and the number of delegates from each organization is not limited. More than one hundred "live" organizations are expected to be represented by from one to ten delegates. The best interests of the state will be discussed. No politics. Warsaw will undoubtedly respond to the best of her ability, as she can not afford to ignore this opportunity to get in touch with some of the best brains in the state.

Obliging One's Friends

"No," said the little stenographer, thoughtfully, as she carefully placed the stamp in the corner of the last envelope and then stacked the day's mail. "It isn't that I'm unwilling or anything like that. I like to do things for people occasionally as well as the next one. But if I do it for one I do it for a dozen, for I can't be partial. I hate to, but I'll have to put my foot down and decline to do favors."

The bookkeeper looked up in surprise. "Why—what's—" he began, wondering.

"Well," explained the little stenographer, "last Sunday I took dinner with a friend of mine and during the afternoon she asked if I'd do just a tiny favor for her. She had some programs for her club that she was to make, and it was so hard for her to write them by hand. Besides, her handwriting was dreadful, so would I just as soon run them off on my typewriter? What could I say after eating her dinner? So I've been devoting my noon hours, besides getting down early mornings this whole week, to 'running off' these simple little programs."

"Then, when I could breathe freely, as I saw the end of the programs coming into view, my friend called me up and asked me if I'd look to see that Mrs. Breuscott's name was spelled right. She was almost sure she had written it 'w' instead of 'u.' And she had—so I rewrote that page of every one of the programs."

"When I finally delivered them she was delighted. She said they were so lovely that she knew the club would always want her to get them up every year, and wasn't it nice that she had a friend who was willing to do a little favor for her once in a while?"

"Then, while I was still cramped with the extra work of the programs, another friend called me up. She said she wanted a copy of a certain song, containing about 40 verses, and she couldn't get it except in book form, and she didn't want to go to that expense, so would I just as soon run over some noon and copy it off in short hand? It would take her so long to write it in regular longhand and it wouldn't take me a minute, she was sure."

"Of course, I did as she requested. I waited around the store half an hour, looking for some one who would be willing to let me copy the song. Then all the time I was copying it the manager stood in front of me and glared at me, for fear I'd run away with the book, I suppose. It was such a pleasant experience!"

"Then that friend of mine called me up late in the afternoon, just as I was getting ready to leave the office, to ask me if I'd just as soon make her three copies of the song—I'd already made one copy with a carbon—for she wanted to send away two copies. So I sat down and wrote them off and mailed them."

"Oh, yes, she appreciated it very much. Any time I want to go anywhere, she says—pityingly, for my lack of a regular man escort—she'll be glad to go with me if her husband is out of town, so she can leave home!"

"This morning, while the manager was dictating a very important letter, the phone rang. He looked so exasperated, while I took down from the phone, at the request of this same friend, details of just how many yards of lace and just what pattern to get and what price she wanted to pay and which store to visit to look at the white sweaters that were selling at $5 and to see if they were really a bargain, and if they were, to have one sent out and pay for it and she'd repay me. Since then I have been trembling every time my buzzer rings for fear the manager is calling me to tell me that my services aren't needed any longer."

"By the time I finished her little errands my whole noon hour was gone and I'm as hungry as a bear now, for I haven't had a bite since breakfast."

"I don't blame you a little bit," said the bookkeeper, sympathetically. "It's a shame the way people impose on others, never dreaming that they're asking anything out of the ordinary. Why don't you tell them that you're too busy? I'd never stand for such impositions."

The little stenographer beamed at him—it was good to have some one understand!

"Oh, by the way," he interrupted her as she said good night. "Would you just as soon stop in on your way to the station and send some cut flowers—pick out anything you think would go well with a pink outfit? My sister asked me to do it and I didn't have time this noon. I'll pay you tomorrow, when you know what the price is."

"Oh, of course," replied the little stenographer, weakly. "I'll be glad to do it."

Probably. "Does your new assistant do things with spirit?" "I must say, he does not seem to do anything without it."

A Cinch. "How did he manage to get elected by such a large majority?" "He told the voters he was a perfect statesman."

One True Medicinal Whiskey

Beware of imitations and substitutes unscrupulous dealers tell you are "just as good as" Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

These cheap concoctions are foisted on the people with the intent to deceive by dealers mindful of their profits only and caring nothing for the health of their patrons. Some try to make you believe it is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

Substitutes Are Dangerous

When a remedy has been before the public for more than half a century, has been prescribed and used by the best doctors and in prominent hospitals, and has carried the blessings of health into as many thousands of homes as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has, imitations are bound to arise.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey Is Beneficial

It has been used for more than fifty years with remarkable results in the prevention and cure of all throat, lung and stomach troubles and all wasting and diseased conditions.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the only whiskey that was taxed by the Government as a medicine during the Spanish-American War.

The genuine is sold in sealed bottles only. The "Old Chemist's Head" is on the label and over the cork is an engraved seal. Be certain this seal is unbroken. Sold by druggists, grocers and dealers everywhere or direct, $1.00 a large bottle.

A Mail Carrier's Load

Seems heavier when he has a weak back and kidney trouble. Fred Dabren, mail carrier at Atchison, Kan., says "I have been bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and had a severe pain across my back. Whenever I carried a heavy load of mail, my kidney trouble increased. Some time ago I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound now as ever." Wilkinson & Co.
