NOBLE FUNERAL TO BE MONDAY

The Funeral of General John Willock Noble Will be Imposing Tribute to His Memory.

MANY SOCIETIES TO JOIN

A Phrase Which Perpetually Recurred to Him, "Thy Loving Kindness, Oh, How Great."

On Friday was announced the fact that Gen. John W. Noble was dying at his home in St. Louis and a hasty sketch was given of his noble career as citizen, soldier, lawyer and statesman, feeling that in the very next issue would be a call to report the time and place of his funeral.
Below further facts are given of his career through life, incidents of his last hours and preparations for his funeral, some of which are gleaned from St. Louis papers of yesterday morning:
The funeral of General John W. Noble, civil war veteran and former United States secretary of the interior who died about 2 p. m. Friday at his home, 2043 Pine street, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday from the Second Presbyterian church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place, to Belle fontaine cemetery. The Royal Legion will have charge and Frank P. Blair Post No. 1 will conduct the G. A. R. ritual at the grave.
The active pallbearers will be selected from General John W. Noble Camp, Sons of Veterans, and Lisbeth Noble Circle No. 4. Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic will attend the funeral in a body, special reservation being made for them at the church.

The honorary pallbearers will be selected from the close friends and associates of General Noble without regard to organizations.
Rev. Dr. S. J. Nicolls, pastor of Second Presbyterian church, will preach the funeral sermon.

Roosevelt Sent Message.

Many friends of General Noble and his family called at the residence to offer condolences and many messages of sympathy were received. One of these was from Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. It was addressed to Miss Leonora B. Halstead, sister-in-law of General Noble and read: "Will you accept and express to the whole family my sincere sympathy and grief at the death of my old friend?"
General Noble had been ill for about a month before his death, but his condition did not become critical until a few days ago. He had been semi-conscious for some days. The last time he recognized an attendant who remained constantly at his bedside, was last Monday. The cause of death was Bright's disease.
Those who were at the bedside of General Noble during his last illness, state that he spoke constantly of his wife who had died seventeen years ago and of the time he spent in the last Sunday on which General Noble was out of bed, March 3, he told those around him that when he meditated on his life the phrase perpetually recurred to him, "Thy loving kindness, oh, how great!"

General John Willock Noble was born in Lancaster, Ohio, October 26, 1831, and received his early training in the common schools of Cincinnati. He later attended a preparatory school and Miami university and was graduated from Yale in 1851. He was editor of the Yale Literary magazine. He studied law at the Cincinnati Law school, from which he was graduated in 1852. He was married February 8, 1864, to Lisbeth Halstead, at Northampton, Mass. Mrs. Noble bore him two children, who died in infancy. Mrs. Noble died in 1894.

City Attorney of Keokuk. General Noble was admitted to the bar first in Columbus, Ohio, in 1853, and later at St. Louis in 1855 and at Keokuk in 1856. He served as city attorney of Keokuk and practiced law there until 1861, when the civil war broke out and he enlisted in the Third Iowa volunteer cavalry in which he served successively as lieutenant, adjutant, major, lieutenant colonel and colonel. He was brevetted brigadier general by act of congress for service in the field.

After the close of the civil war General Noble returned to St. Louis and resumed the practice of law. He was appointed United States district attorney in March, 1867 and served three years. He was offered the post of solicitor general of the United States by President Grant, but declined. He was a member of the law firm Noble & Hunter and later of the firm Noble & Orrick. He served in President Benjamin Harrison's cabinet as secretary of the interior from 1889 to 1893.
During General Noble's long career as a lawyer, he took part in many celebrated cases among which were the St. Louis Gaslight company case, the Colorado Railroad's claim to use the Wabash tracks across Forest Park and the sale of the Campbell addition to El Paso, Texas.
General Noble was often referred to as the "Father of Oklahoma," because of the fact that during his administration as secretary of the interior the territory was opened to settlement and formarty organized.
General Noble was a lifelong republican and a member of the Second Presbyterian church; a member of the Beta Theta Pi, the National Geographical society, the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Frank P. Blair Post, G. A. R., Missouri Commandery of the Loyal Legion, General John W. Noble Camp, Sons of Veterans, Society of the Third Iowa Volunteer Cavalry, the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange, the St. Louis club, the University club and the Noonday club. He maintained an office at 514 Riado building.
The residence in which General Noble died was built by him forty years ago, while the neighborhood of Cardinal avenue and Pine street was one of the aristocratic sections of St. Louis. He continued to live there although practically all his wealthy neighbors moved to districts farther west.

of Veterans, was organized by a group of young St. Louisians who solicited General Noble expressly to be allowed to use his name for the organization. The camp was entertained by General Noble in Washington while he was secretary of the interior and while the camp was attending a national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Washington. The tents of the organization were, at his invitation, pitched on the lawn of his home.
