MISSOURI MOOSE GETTING BUSY

Intend to Put up Full State Ticket With Norton at the Top.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.] ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4.—The bull moose state convention got going in earnest today by electing as permanent officers: Chairman, Arthur D. Sager, of St. Louis; secretary, T. J. Murphy, Kansas City; assistant secretaries, Mrs. C. K. McShainey of Neosho, and Max Kaufman, New Madrid; and sergeant-at-arms, Sheriff John W. Allen, of Benton county.

The recommendation of the rules committee that a complete state ticket be nominated was carried unanimously. To insure the names getting on the ballot, it was voted that the same candidates be nominated in three ways, by convention, petition and by the state committee. Regular republicans have threatened to move in the courts to throw out the progressive state ticket because it will not have been nominated by primaries.

The bull moose leaders hope to avert this trouble by the three-pronged nominations. While nominations may not be reached until tomorrow, it is certain Judge Albert D. Norton of St. Louis will be nominated for governor. His opponents demand that he resign from the court of appeals if he accepts the nomination. Permanent Chairman Sager is mentioned for the attorney generalship. The rest of the places will furnish a free-for-all race.

Dogs as Guardians. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 4.—It was said today that the detectives guarding the Pocantico Hills estate of John D. Rockefeller and hunting blackhanders, who have been treating the oil king, had found at least three of the gathering places of the alleged blackmalters. The guard, however, was doubled and the great dunes, usually in leash, roamed the estate.

CITY NEWS.

Messrs. J. C. McManus and D. E. Cochrane, two very public spirited young men who are at the head of the J. C. McManus Construction Co., are to present the city with a bubbling drinking fountain like the three which were recently placed on Main street. This fountain will be placed at Third and Franklin streets. Through misinformation the statement was made in last night's Gate City that McManus & Co. had done the work for the Woman's Club in placing the three fountains on Main street. The work was done at a figure below cost by the J. C. McManus Construction Co.; Seither & Moore did the plumbing at a like generous figure. A drinking fountain is very much needed in the Triangular park since many out of town visitors view the dam from the head of Sixth street, and visit this little park. It is hoped that a fountain will be placed here also.

BULL MOOSE DAY IN IOWA

dress the Iowa state progressive convention tonight. Judge John J. Stevens and Senator James A. Smith, forming a reception committee from Des Moines, boarded the private car at Keokuk. The colonel declared he felt "perfectly splendid" today, but Colonel Cecil Lyon, one of his party, was considerably in the dumps. Lyon had arranged for a fair supply of "wet goods" for local comm-tee men enroute on the trip, according to the ancient political usages, but Roosevelt consistently progressive, "jettisoned the cargo" as Lyon expressed it, and the supply was left in St. Louis. Lyon did not discover his loss until today.

Farmers from all around the neighborhood of Mount Zion heard Colonel Roosevelt deliver one of the typical five minutes addresses here today. It was blazing hot and the colonel looked like a field hand when he had finished the talk but he was happy and swapped crop stories with a throng while being escorted back to the car.

"The bosses at Chicago were afraid of me because I represented the people," he asserted. "If I had stopped representing the people they would have come to me with a whoop of delight. All I would have had to do was to have crooked my finger and stopped representing you."

Hears From Vermont. ON BOARD ROOSEVELT SPECIAL TRAIN, OTTUMWA, Ia. Sept. 4.—Colonel Roosevelt was "relieved and pleased" today when incomplete returns from Vermont, received on the special car, apparently indicated that none of the republican state ticket had polled a majority.

"While on my three days tour I became seriously concerned lest there should be practically no support whatever for the progressive state ticket," Roosevelt declared, "because a third or a half of the men stated their belief in the progressive national ticket but did not intend to vote the state progressive ticket. Moreover because there was no progressive candidates for congress nor in most places for the county offices, it was impossible for a man to vote a full ticket and the progressive ticket at the same time without an elaborate system of marking his ballot.

"Moreover some of the progressives wished to vote the democratic ticket and this made a number of the others wish to support the republican ticket. "I became convinced that the progressive party was strong and growing and that we would in all probability carry the state in November for the national progressive ticket, but I also became convinced that there was danger of a complete breakdown as far as the state ticket was concerned at this time. I am relieved and pleased at the showing."

At Oskaloosa. ON BOARD ROOSEVELT'S SPECIAL TRAIN, OSKALOOSA, Iowa, Sept. 4.—"There is not any use in my appealing to the politicians," Colonel Roosevelt shouted this to the big rear-end crowd here today. "I've got to appeal to them with a club."

The bull moose audience cheered vociferously when the colonel referred to a New York newspaper which editorially expressed the belief that he would get the "ignoramus vote," and to Representative W. B. McKinley's declaration that the "rabble" were with him.

"You are the rabble and the ignoramus vote," he summed up, "and the bosses are the people."

Roosevelt preached what he termed brief missionary sermons to half a dozen audiences at various small towns enroute to Des Moines.

CARMEN'S STRIKE IS NOW LIKELY

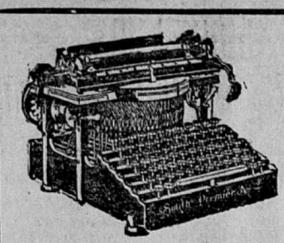

Companies Are Given Twenty-Four Hours to Raise Wages or Face Strike.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.] CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Just when it seemed that the controversy between the officials of Chicago's electric transportation lines and their 14,000 employes was about to be settled by amicable measures, industrial warfare loomed on the city's horizon today, and a disastrous street car strike threatened. Following a month of negotiating between the men, the company's officials and Mayor Harrison, the unionists suddenly withdrew from the conference and issued an ultimatum, precipitating a crisis. The men's dictum gives the employers 24 hours in which to meet the employees' terms, or face a general walk-out.

"The joint committee," the ultimatum says, "has become convinced that, by their dilatory tactics, the employers are endeavoring to create dissension among the unionists. Therefore, we offer the companies 24 hours in which to meet our terms or face what measures we may see fit to take to bring about the ends we desire.

"We demand a single arbitration board to settle all disputes regarding wages and working conditions between the men and the two street car companies involved. Either this or one arbitration board to treat with one company, with the understanding that the other company will make the same terms with us. This is our last word."

The companies had been holding

Daily Stock Letter. [Copyright 1912 by The New York Evening Post.] NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—That the stock exchange should today have greeted the Vermont election news with continued inactivity, and with only a trifling rise in prices, might have signified either that the financial community does not consider that vote to have cleared up the political outlook, or that the market's recent prolonged hesitation was really inspired by something else. As a matter of fact, the disposition to accept the results of yesterday's Vermont voting as a blow to the third party's expectations was practically universal, such a conclusion being based on the fact that the republican plurality, in this barometric September state, is shown to have been shot to pieces by the party's dissensions while the democratic party cast its normal vote and increased it considerably by taking its opponents' vote. Yesterday's figures seem explicit, for not only does the regular republican candidate show a plurality of only some 5,000 over the next highest on the list, but the republican and third party vote combined, as reported in this morning's dispatches, ran less than 20,000 ahead of the democrats. But Wall street remained on the whole impassive.
