ON SIX WEEKS LECTURE TOUR

Secretary of State Bryan Leaves His Desk to Gather in a Few More Sheekles at Chautauqua.

IS HIS WORST BREAK

Anti-Bryan Democrats Rejoicing at the Controversy Over the Actions of the Great Commoner.

[Special to The Gate City.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—Secretary of State Bryan returned yesterday from Mountain Lake Park, Md. where he delivered one of his chautauqua lectures, and will depart this evening for a six weeks' lecture tour, notwithstanding the censure of his critics and the regretful expressions of his friends.

Mr. Bryan's determination to leave his desk in the state department for six weeks and go out on a money making lecture tour, and his several explanations of why he is doing this, have afforded a conversational topic in Washington which for the time has overshadowed the Mullall charges.

While the republicans are enjoying the embarrassment of the Bryan supporters to the full limit, this enjoyment is not to be compared to the glee in which the anti-Bryan democrats are reveling. These anti-Bryan men are saying this is the worst break Bryan ever made, but they knew it was only a question of time until he would put his foot in it somewhere.

Mr. Bryan's explanation that he is required to lecture because the salary of $1,000 per month is insufficient to maintain him in his position in President Wilson's cabinet, is criticised in many ways. In the first place, it is said Mr. Bryan is a wealthy man, and could well afford to dip into his pocket if his living expenses should run over $1,000 a month.

A democratic congressman from New York offered to wager that Bryan could not show where he had spent $1,000 any month since he had become secretary of state.

"He has given one dinner," said the congressman, "and that function was made famous by the fact that grape juice was served instead of wine. Well, everybody knows that it is the item of wine which makes a dinner expensive. A wineless dinner does not cost much money. That's where there is some method in Bryan's grape juice ideas."

In one of his explanations Mr. Bryan stated he had been able to save $10,000 a year. His critics say "Yes, and a good deal more." They point to the large circulation of the Commoner, said to be more than 150,000, and ask how much this amounts to in annual subscriptions at fifty cents per annum. They point to the fact that Mr. Bryan has been delivering lectures afternoons, nights and Sundays for seventeen years. His usual contract requires a guarantee of $300, the next $300 goes to the organization engaging him, and all above that is equally divided.

Senator Shaffroth, democrat, of Colorado, said he had actual knowledge of one meeting in his state where Mr. Bryan's share of the gate receipts was $1,250. Another prominent democrat, a congressman, relating a similar story, adding that the meeting he knew about was in the afternoon. Mr. Bryan's share was more than $1,100 and the congressman helped count the money. Mr. Bryan then spoke at another town under a like guarantee and had a crowd equally as large. Democrats have come forward with stories of paying Mr. Bryan for his political speeches.

The plea of insufficient salary advanced by Mr. Bryan has caused his enormous land holdings in Texas to be pointed out and some of the Texas democrats have recalled that these holdings were so large a few years ago that Mr. Bryan seriously considered removing to Texas and making his permanent home there. This talk even went so far at that time that Mr. Bryan's Texas friends were suggesting that some day he might succeed Joe Bailey in the senate. In addition to this domain of Texas land which Mr. Bryan owns, there is beautiful Fairview, the farm home on the outskirts of Lincoln, which is one of the show spots of Nebraska. And, too, there is the winter home at Miami, Fla.

One democratic apologist for Mr. Bryan offered the rather novel excuse for his idol that the applause of the multitude is necessary to the very existence of Mr. Bryan.

"Mr. Bryan has been used to this applause for so long that he just can't live without it," this gentleman said. "You see, here in Washington, Bryan is simply one cabinet officer. No more attention is paid to him than to any of the others. As these members of the president's official family are pointed out by the capital guides, Attorney General McReynolds and some of the others less known to fame, actually attract more attention. This is new to Mr. Bryan. He isn't accustomed to playing second fiddle. He doesn't like it; so he jumps on a train, leaves Washington, surfeited with great men, behind him, gets back to his enraptured chautauqua crowd, hears again the plaudits of the admiring thousands, looks once more into the sea of upturned faces, receives that dear old chautauqua salute and is supremely happy."

Long headed politicians see in Mr. Bryan's return to the chautauqua platform a move to secure a firm hold on enough state delegates to control the next democratic national convention. They believe that Mr. Bryan intends to force President Wilson to live up to the one-term pledge of the Baltimore platform.

Special Classes.

LYNN, Mass., July 19.—Despairing parents had a great burden lifted from their shoulders and a number of youngsters were plunged into gloom when the school department assumed much of the responsibility of the kiddies and opened special classes for pupils who do not learn readily and for those who are prone to prank more and study less during the winter school term. Twelve classes with as many teachers were opened.

THE MARKETS

The Stock Market.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.]
NEW YORK, July 19.—The stock market today was only fairly active and after fractional advances at the opening it sagged and with profit-taking under way some of the strongest stocks of Friday lost from a half to a point. The substantial increase in the volume of business in the middle of the week brought considerable hope to the street but reflected no material change in conditions. The movement appeared to be entirely professional and largely the result of a drive against the bears and short coverings. The market showed no broadening tendencies. There were many important developments. These developments included the declaration of a strike by the conductors and trainmen on eastern railroads; the resignation of President Mellen from the New Haven and the announcement of preliminary details of the dissolution of the Union and Southern Pacific merger. Despite the renewed conditions about the Balkan situation European markets were strong.

tendency of last week's market was checked this week and wheat even registered at 3/4 cent advance for July and there was an advance of 1/4 for September in the face of favorable weather. The large export demand, and the fact that farmers were loath to part with the grain at the present prices gave the bulls an argument. Corn advanced 3/4 for July and 1 1/4 for September. The heat wave in the southwest caused serious apprehension and receipts were small all week. Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and even the southern sections of Illinois and Missouri reported damage.

July oats made a gain of 1/2 and September 1 1/2 during the week, due almost wholly to the scare in the corn pit over crop damage. All other news in the oats pit was bearish. Provisions closed the week with liberal advances, due to the fact that hog prices reached the highest figures since early spring. The gain for pork ranged from 29 to 37 cents and lard and ribs made similar jumps.
