DECORATIONS GOING UP

Men Are at Work Putting Buildings in Gala Dress for the Occasion.

The official programs and badges of the United Commercial Travelers for the state convention which opens next week, have been issued. The badges which delegates and visitors will wear are handsome affairs of silver, in the shape of a sample case-bearing fac-similar of the dam and Chief Keokuk and the date of the convention. These are attached by ribbons in the colors of the order, purple, gold and white. The official badges for the press are handsomely gotten up, bearing different designs from the others.

The program is printed on white stock, in purple and on the front is an embossed cut of the U. C. T. badge with the words, "Grand Council of Iowa," in the crescent. The convention will open next Thursday and will continue through Saturday. A picture of the new bronze statue of Chief Keokuk erected by Keokuk chapter D. A. R., appears on the first inside page. A list of grand council officers and a list of local council officers and committees follow, together with the official program.

There is a page devoted to the thanks of the Keokuk council No. 400 for the support of merchants, manufacturers, jobbers and individuals. This card is signed by John W. Clarke, senior counsellor, and A. H. Cushman, secretary. The last two pages are devoted to data on the dam, with a full page illustration showing the big hydro-electric plant at this point.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health. When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

attraction. In the evening the grand ball and reception is scheduled.

Saturday morning the grand council elects officers. From 8 o'clock until 3 in the afternoon the power house will be thrown open to visitors.

Decorators are Busy Today. The force of decorators who are here to put the buildings and Main street in gala dress started their work today. The scheme of decorations is to use flags and U. C. T. colors in combinations and rosettes across the front of the buildings.

Preliminaries in Conference Meet. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 29.—Closely contested preliminaries in the 100, 220 and 440 yards and the 120 and 220 hurdles were to be run off this afternoon for the Missouri Valley conference meet tomorrow. With nearly two hundred college athletes entered, today's preliminaries promised to be almost as interesting as the semi-finals and finals at Francis Field, Washington University, tomorrow.

Editorial by Gompers.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.] WASHINGTON, May 29.—Bitter denunciation of John D. Rockefeller, another claimant to divine right of kings; criticism of the supreme court for its decision in the Gompers-Mitchell-Morrison case and an ultimatum to the democratic party to exempt labor unions from the Sherman anti-trust law were made today by President Samuel Gompers of the A. F. of L. in a caustic editorial in The American Federationist. Gompers declares Rockefeller will "learn that human right and justice are greater than his conception of individual freedom." "He will learn that no imperial dictator can defy a powerful, intelligent, aroused public opinion. Mr. Rockefeller has been rapidly educating public opinion by his arbitrary policy and his cynical disregard of human welfare. The dead of Colorado are vivid lessons the nation will not soon forget."

CORRESPONDENTS ARE THICK THERE

Two Hundred and Fifty of Them at Vera Cruz, Waiting to Get Some Real War News.

WATER WORKS FLURRY

How Newspaper Men Who Did Not Go to the Front, Got the Information First.

[By William G. Shepherd, Staff Correspondent of the United Press.] VERA CRUZ, May 29. (By mail to New York)—The first opportunity for all the war correspondents to get together on the job at one and the same time came today. Before now we've worked in relays. When "war" broke out some correspondents were in Mexico City and had to come down to Vera Cruz disguised as Englishmen. They got here too late for the battle. At that same time a large number of correspondents were on the high seas, on battleships and chartered boats and they, too, missed the battle. There were only a few correspondents in Vera Cruz at the time of the actual fighting. But, within the past few days, we've all met here—some 250 of us—and today was the first chance that the whole crowd had found a chance to work together, en masse.

It was a terrible sight; we almost upset the army routine; we had General Funston and his entire staff trying to keep out of our way so that we could take care of a fight that was impending. It was like this:

Way out in the sandhills, eight miles from the city, a Mexican captain had taken it into his head, if he could get hold of the water works of Vera Cruz, which were within a mile of his line, he could control Vera Cruz and kill the American invaders by thirst. To carry out this plan, he sent a lieutenant and three men, under a flag of truce, to Major Russell, who had charge of the 350 marines at the waterworks, with the demand that the major immediately surrender the waterworks, intimating that something would be done. But it was among the correspondents and not among the officers and the soldiers. In the first place none of the 250 of us had army passes, but only tickets which the army had given us. We had to have army passes. We rushed up to headquarters in street cars, coaches, on foot; we beset the building in which Funston has his headquarters. They wouldn't let us in. General Funston was busy, they said, getting reinforcements out to the water works.

"Reinforcements!" said an indignant war correspondent. "That's all right, but what about us?" "There won't be any battle for you fellows to see if we don't get somebody out to the waterworks to fight," said a lieutenant. "We have to get reinforcements out there first, and that's what the general is busy about."

Finally, it was arranged that a young lieutenant named William Bell should sign our passes, permitting us to go to the scene. But we couldn't go into the building; we must line up on the sidewalk before a door-like window which opened into a room where Lieutenant Bell sat. We were dead willing. It was our fault anyhow, because we hadn't arranged for our passes earlier. We stood in line like people at a theatre box office. As soon as a man got his pass, he started for "the front." "Starting for the front" consisted in finding something to ride in or on. One young correspondent dashed into the middle of the street, dragged a Mexican peon from a burro, bought the burro, saddle and bridle outright for 50 pesos and started off along the asphalt pavement, in entirely the wrong direction. Two very plump English correspondents hired a coach and ordered the driver to take them to the water works; he took them to the edge of town, got stuck in the sand and brought the pair back in the evening, after they had ridden four miles. There was one party of real war correspondents—chaps who have been in wars from Russia to Montenegro—who were caught napping, not yet having secured horses. They rode on a street car to the edge of town and then started to walk the rest of the way in the broiling sun. They had plenty of ginger and energy and enthusiasm and bravery—three of the seven carried huge revolvers—and everything was all right about their expedition, except that they went in exactly the wrong direction. They started out at noon, saw some federals through a field glass at 3 o'clock, at the same hour turned back for Vera Cruz and reached the city again eager to buy cold cream for sunburn.

Seven photographers seized a hand-car and pumped themselves fifteen miles along the narrow gauge railroad, five miles into the Mexican lines. As soon as they saw Mexican federals they pumped themselves back again and reached the American lines, exhausted. Nobody could find the waterworks in time to see the rumpus. True, very late in the afternoon one war correspondent on a mule, who had lost his way, wound up, by accident at the water works and got the story of what had happened, first hand, from some of the soldiers, dashed madly to the cable office, only to learn that every correspondent in town had heard the story and put it on the cable many hours before. It had all been a matter of field wireless. General Funston and his staff officers, had been in constant communication with the forces near the waterworks and a few correspondents who had been forced to stay, broken-hearted with disappointment at headquarters, were handed the story on a silver tray, as it were, hours before the war correspondents who had "gone to the front" could get back and find out that there hadn't been a battle and that the Mexicans had withdrawn.

Names Connected With the Law. The original bearer of the name of Legles was so called merely because he was a lawyer. Originally, the name was spelled Laegless, the expression signifying "learned in the law." Strangely enough Lawless is derived from exactly the same source, and signifies exactly opposite to its apparent meaning.
