INDIANS BLANKED TILL LAST FRAME

Lose Third Game of Series at Cedar Rapids by 6 to 1 Score— Kick Over Twelve Men.

BUNNY PITCHER FIGHT

Walworth Holds Slugging Red Skins to Six Scattered Hits— Locals Hit Freely.

[Special to The Gate City.]

CEDAR RAPIDS, June 5.—Playing regular big league, errorless ball, those Bunnies hopped right onto Boss Abbott's Indians in the final round of the series in this city Thursday afternoon, and taking advantage of a broiling sun, proceeded to sweat the visitors to the entire satisfaction of every fan in this city, and escaped the third successive shut-out by the very narrowest of margins, when Nebraska Jim Walworth weakened for a minute in the ninth and permitted Marshall to pickle one for a pair of socks, after which Getaway Gottschall poled out a single to center that sent Marshall home with the only tally the Indians succeeded in grabbing during their first stay in this city this year.

Pitcher Maltreated.

And it might be mentioned that in thus maltreating those same Indians, the Bunnies hammered Jerkin Bill Whitaker from the mound in three frames, after which they took on Hildebrand, a former team-mate of Ray Harper, and sent him scurrying to cover in a pair of frames. This double repulse exhausted Boss Abbott's string of available fingers and he called Righthelper Gifts in from his garden and put him on the mound for the remaining three rounds when he tossed them up to the Bunnies and was only nicked for a pair of blows.

There was absolutely no question from the start of the game as to which team was going to win the final round of the series. The Bunnies have opened a new leg of jam, and with Uncle Fulton's masterful skill, again watching the contest from the bench in front of the club house, those Rabbits sure did run, and run wild.

Rabbits Score in First.

In our half of the first round Smith, who has been slumping with his stick for the past few days, went out to sweeten his average and right away poled a triple, which was followed by Lindeberg's double, scoring Smith. That was enough for the scorers so the Bunnies squatted on their haunches and rested until the third when they got into action again.

Red Smith did more sweetening to start this round by hammering out a single, was advanced to second with Lindeberg's sacrifice and tallied again when Land rapped out a single to second base. That sufficed for the second bunch of tallies.

Double Steal Fails.

In the fourth, one more was added to the total. Fulton starting this with a two-sacker, the first hit made off Hildebrand, but was caught at third trying to extend the hit beyond its limits. Spencer then, poised a single through third, went to second when McCullough dropped Lingle's fly and tallied on Red Smith's third blow, a single to right. Red and Lingle then tried to stage a double steal, Lingle having gone to third on Nell's blow by fast work on the part of Hildebrand, Jack and Marshall got out Cy at the plater.

In the fifth the Bunnies went out to get their meal five from the Indians and succeeded. Lindeberg opened with his second double and Harris singled, sending Lindy to third. Harris then pilfered second and Land pulled a sacrifice fly to right, scoring Lindy. Dutch Washburne flew out to Joe Brennan and Fulton rapped out his second two-bagger, sending Harris home with that fifth run. Spencer closed by hitting to Hemling, who popped him out at first.

Court Again in the Eighth.

With the usual five to nothing shutout hanging on the score board, the Bunnies were inclined to settle down and be satisfied, but the Indians wouldn't let them. In the eighth, Joe Brennan walked under Spencer's fly, the first ball hit in the frame, and then dropped it. Lingle was out, third to first, and Spencer advanced one. Walworth was out, second to first, and Spencer took another, and then scored when Red crashed out his two-bagger, for his fifth hit in as many trips to the rubber. Nell was quite trying to stretch his to three, but Lingle followed the run, two, three route, the most of the time, up to the ninth, when Whitey Hemling opened with a crack at Spencer and was nipped out at Fultonville. Marshall then slapped out a two-bagger, Abbott flew out to center, and Gottschall singled to center, scoring Marshall. Gifts drew a pass and McCullough was an easy out, Walworth to Fulton.

JOHN BULL SCORES FIRST IN INTERNATIONAL EVENTS

[By Hal Sheridan, written for the United Press.]

NEW YORK, June 5.—There have been few times since several pseudo Indians dumped tea into Boston harbor in 1776 that J. Bull has had the chance to cheer that was given him some days back at Sandwich where the British lion leaped upon poor Uncle Sam on the grid links and made a meal of every missile whether that crossed the big pond, for the stars and stripes.

All of which is the prelude to reminding you that Great Britain, in the first contest of the annual series of international events, has got the jump on the United States, and as it is in baseball, so it is in everything else, the man who jumps ahead of his rival in the first inning, or the first yard, or the first round at the crack of the gun, holds the "edge." Connie Mack's athletics had a year of cheering last year and Uncle Sam's athletes in almost every branch of sports flirts. But this year is another thing, Mawruse.

This is Another Year.

The athletics are having a bit hard sledding this year because of two things. They haven't shown their real class in the pitching department, as built up to this writing. Again, they are battering against stiffer opposition this year than last. It's dirt again with Manager U. Sam. His pitchers didn't play to form, and added to that, the Britishers showed far stronger than when the supposedly unbeatable Warden and Bay were trimmed, gathered and salted away by a mere boy, Quinn, a year ago.

Therefore it behooves every good American citizen to wait until he gets his right one for cheering. In the coming clashes, betwixt English and American athletes—tennis, polo, yacht racing——the latter will do well to strive mightily for the first jump and the first wrench if they want a chance to repeat.

Shamrock Pads Bat.

Not wanting to be greedy or gloomy but merely to prepare for any eventuality, the idea of next fall's "the states" this year is emphasized by reports of the possibilities on the boat which Sir Tho. Lipton has built to trim the Yankees in the cup contest. Extraordinary, surprising, startling, ugly and many are some of the adjectives dug from W. Webster's collection to describe the Lipton boat by the true Americans to inspect her. Nicholson, adhering strictly to the letters of the prohibitive rules has sliid down about the best little old combination boat-and-racer boat yet seen. The Shamrock is said to be rather a snug ship a boat. But it is safe to combine the best features of each of those classes.

Big Spread of Canvas.

The vast spread of canvas is said to be especially startling. The huge rig has to have special fittings to make it stay aloft. By these special devices an extra spread of six feet at the base is obtained. Oh, yes; one other adjective was dug from the Webster collecting in painting a picture of Sir Thomas' challenger for Americans. "Marvel," is the word. However, Americans, have the satisfaction of knowing that the American boat will be manned by sailors of the same nationality as Captain James Lawrence, John Paul Jones and George Dewey. Which is some consolation.

Smith vs. Carpentier.

It will be queer and dangerous against stamina and punch when Georges Carpentier meets Gunboat Smith in London the last week in June. Not but that dear Carpentier hasn't a punch, and not that our Gunboat isn't clever, but merely that the Frenchman looks better as to cleverness and that the American is believed to excel in the ability to hit. One thing is certain. If both men attend themselves instead of tempting the spectators who take in the international battle at Europe's chief sporting event according to type, Americans in London who say they will bet their shoes on Gunboat, ought to make a killing. If all the fathers whom America has sent abroad for England to give the once over, Smith probably will make less impression in appearance than any who have gone before. But Smith is deceptive when it comes to shape and size. And if he gets through Carpentier's defense with a sleep-walking, the Americans won't be the only ones who'll cheer. Britons remember what the sensational French youth has done to their own once pride and hope Boxhandler Wells. Anyone who talks English and beats Carpentier can take lunch with the king. That's the way those nutty Britishers feel about it.

Gunner Has the Punch.

The gunner, be it remembered not only carries a kick in either mitt, but he can take a lot of punishment. Be it remembered also what Tommy Murphy once said of Smith when the latter, not wanting to hurt Tommy, hit him on top of the head, "when the bone was thick." Said Tommy, "Smith didn't hurt my head but he drove my body down into my feet and nearly broke the arches of my instep."

A punch like the one handed to Murphy, delivered unstintingly to Carpentier would make the Frenchman forget all the cleverness he ever had.

PENNINGTON LOSES JOB WITH CEDAR RAPIDS

Release Due to Lack of Condition—Hill Secures Lindberg for Keystone Base.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, June 5.—George Pennington was released by Manager Hill Wednesday morning. "Penny" was in no condition to play ball with the Bunnies. On account of being suspended, he did not play during the training season, and began lowering his links after other players were able to play their best. Manager Hill placed Pennington only after Pennington said that he was in good condition.

Lindberg, the new infielder who arrived from the state of New York, will begin playing second Wednesday afternoon. Lindberg evidently will hold this job permanently.

Gottlieb Gone.

Gus Gottlieb, the infielder from Kansas City, was released Tuesday. During morning practice he showed lack of experience. Manager Hill could not risk instructing him at this time of the season.

HILLATTER LOST HIS TITLE TO DAILY

Light Weight Champion Wrestler Loses in Straight Falls to Bout at Lincoln Last Night.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.]

LINCOLN, Neb., June 5.—Johnny Hillatter of Toledo, Ohio, light weight champion wrestler of the world, lost his title to Drew Daily of Nebraska in the ball park last night before a big crowd. Daily won in straight falls, the first coming in four minutes, fifty-six seconds and the second in 31:42. Both falls were secured with the toe hold. The men wrestled for $1,000 a side and the gate.

Frank Gotch refereed the match.

Sporting Views
By the Editor

Harry Sweet was compelled to leave the game in the third inning yesterday, suffering from a severe, blinding headache, which was brought on by the terrific sun. Marshall, who succeeded the game in the outfield, took Sweet's place and did a creditable job of filling Harry's shoes.

Sweet's hitting up until the time the club took the road, has been but a little better than .200, although a big share of his hits were good for extra bases. Many who have watched the big backstop work with the stick, have expressed the belief that he had been hitting below his natural gait. His work on the road trip just concluded, would seem to bear out this opinion. His batting average during this time has been nothing less than .470, and that has been made while the rest of the team has been hitting many notches below form.

A record breaking crowd was expected to greet the Tribe today in their first engagement seen here for a week. The park gates were thrown open to the visiting T. C. B.'s, and the travelers in convention here were expected to swell the crowd.

Cedar Rapids bugs evidently liked the looks of Sweet. This from the Gazette:

Seven times, in the past two days, the Bunnies have attempted to steal and succeeded by three of the seven. That peg of Sweet's is there and over, and the three pilfered bags comes be laid to him as they were grabbed when he didn't have a chance to slam the ball toward second.

Hildebrand, the new pitcher secured by Abbott while the team was on the road, was obtained from the Decatur club of the Three-Eye league on an optional agreement. He worked in part of the game yesterday, but failed to show anything sensational. He was sent back to Decatur following the game. Abbott is negotiating for another pitcher and one will probably be landing within a few days.

McCullough was slatty to work in today's game against the Muskies. Mack won his game at Clinton while the team was on the road, but dropped one at Cedar Rapids, the failure of the team to hit behind him being mainly responsible.

Dall, the new outfielder who arrived here early this week, joined the club today and will probably get in the game, at least part of the time this afternoon. He has been working out at the park. He looks good at the bat.

Brennan, the outfielder who was slinging while the boys were away, has made a very good impression and it is believed that he will serve a place on the club for a regular berth.

BIG WAR COUNCIL PLANNED BY CLUBS

Wholesale Blockade of Big League Talent will be Planned at Meeting to be Held Soon.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.]

NEW YORK, June 5.—A secret meeting of National association baseball clubs is to be held soon as a war council to plan a campaign against Federals, according to reports today here. Doyle, chief counsel for the triumvirate, declared he is expecting a call for a conference soon at which a wholesale blockade of big league talent will be planned.

JAYS TRADE WILKUS FOR OTTUMWA CATCHER

Evans Goes to Waterloo for Hunter Who Deserted Club—Drnasky Given Release.

WATERLOO, Iowa, June 55.—Manager Andrews has traded "Lefty" Wilkus for Bruce Evans, backstop, of Dent's Speed boys, the trade being made after Wilkus had jumped the Waterloo club yesterday.

After a conference with Andrews, Wilkus was glad to consent to his trade to Ottumwa for Evans.
