

ANOTHER NAME IS GIVEN BY ACCUSED

Man Charged With Stealing Gold Watch, Gave Name of Night Clerk at Hotel Iowa.

WAIVES EXAMINATION

Arraigned in Superior Court, He Waives and is Bound Over to Await Action of Grand Jury.

E. T. Moran, alias Frank O'Neill, alias W. V. Moran, was today arraigned in the superior court on the charge of the larceny of a gold watch from Edward O'Neill, of this city. He waived preliminary examination and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

Today it developed that the accused recently had begged fifteen cents from W. V. Moran, night clerk at the Iowa, to buy something to eat.

When Moran gave him the fifteen cents he had asked Moran for a card, saying that he was an electrician and that he wished Moran's name in order that he might return the money to him.

Moran had no personal card with him at the time, but believing the fellow to be sincere, had given him an old membership card of a hotel clerks' association, bearing his name.

This card had been found on his person when he was arrested by the police, and it was the name on the card, "W. V. Moran," that he had given when locked up.

The real Moran was surprised when he read in the paper the account of his arrest for stealing the watch. He at once went to the police station where he explained the matter to Chief Kenney, and later had a talk with the man who had used his name.

The day following his arrest, "E. T. Moran" told the police that his name was not Moran, but that it was O'Neill, which is the name of the man from whom the watch was stolen and which appeared in the back of the watch.

However, he had gotten the initials confused and had given the name of "Frank O'Neill," while the name in the watch was "E. O'Neill." Evidently he had learned of this mistake and decided to change his story for today he gave in the superior court a different name, "E. T. Moran."

An interesting wedding of last evening was that of Miss Sara Barney, daughter of the late Laram Barney of New York, to Mr. Joseph La Jus Brady of Keokuk, Iowa, formerly of Philadelphia. The bride, who is a niece of Mrs. John H. Hewson, with whom she has been making her home was given in marriage by Mr. Hewson, brother of the bride, who is best man, and Miss Georgia Scofield, cousin of the bride, and daughter of Mrs. Hewson and of the late Gen. Scofield, was maid of honor.

The ceremony took place at 2125 S street northwest, Mrs. Hoyt A. Holton loaning her house for the occasion. The long drawing room was decorated with palms and laurel and pink and white peonies. Two screens of white latticework were placed, one on either side of the mantelpiece and were covered with vines and the peonies, making the spot set aside for the ceremony.

The Rev. Harry L. Nichols, rector of Holy Trinity church, New York, an old friend of the family of the bride, officiated in the presence of a small party of intimate friends and connections of the families of the bride and bridegroom. The bride wore a gown of white satin with a long pointed train. The bodice was draped in lace and a cap of rose point lace that had belonged to the bride's great-grandmother held the tulle veil, which was caught with sprays of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids, Miss Georgia Schofield was charming in pink taffeta. She carried a brooch to which a bunch of pink streamers of pink ribbon, Little Miss Margaret Ballou, who was flower girl, wore a frock of white mull and carried a basket of flowers. A group of young girls including Miss Elizabeth Hillis, Miss Helen Coolidge and Miss Louise King acted as ribbon bearers, carrying the broad white ribbons which marked off an aisle for the bridal party.

An orchestra played the wedding march and gave a program during the supper which followed the ceremony. Mrs. Hewson, who received with the bride and bridegroom wore a becoming gown of light green taffeta, with silver trimming. Mr. Brady and his bride left Washington last night, Mrs. Brady going away in a suit of dark blue taffeta with a small hat of the same shade. They will be at home after the middle of June at Keokuk.

Chaffee and Dr. Homer Albers, dean of the Boston Law school. They will spend their honeymoon at Lark Ellen, the home of Mme. Yaw.

Mystery of Tact. Many frankly admit that they are not very tactful who would be very ready to admit that they are very selfish. But it has been said with searching truthfulness that "want of tact is at bottom selfishness, for self thinks and acts only for itself." No one whose supreme purpose and interest in life is to live for others can long be tactless. For tactlessness is simply the failure to think sufficiently about others to enable us to touch them in a helpful way, a considerate way, a sympathetic way. And the person who won't take the time and trouble necessary to this thoughtfulness is selfish, and therefore tactless. The next time we find that we have been lacking in tact, let us ask ourselves what particular piece of selfishness caused the failure.—Sunday School Times.

Daily Stock Letter. [Copyright 1914 by New York Evening Post.] NEW YORK, June 11.—With continued inactivity, the stock market of today hardly moved until the closing hour, when a number of fractional declines occurred. Gold in the sum of $2,800,000 was engaged for Paris, making with yesterday's late withdrawal of $200,000 in bars, (not coin) for London, a total engagement of $16,000,000 thus far in the week. News from the grain belt was again entirely favorable in the southwest, the task is now of heavy shortage of cars when the wheat begins to move, next month. Aside from the gold engagements, the only obvious reason for the market's action or inaction is that the mind has been so long converged with a kind of obscurity on the interstate commission decision, that no one dares to move.

Developments on European markets were more or less confusing. London seemed to be most impressed with the fact that 88 per cent of the Canadian government's $25,000,000 loan offered the public today, was left on the underwriter's hands.

WHEN THE EYES NEED AID. Nature's Methods of Warning Are Many and They Should Not Be Long Disregarded. Symptoms of eye strain are pain in the temple, pain in the back of the head and neck, red eyelids and inability to see at a great distance or to read long at a time. The eyes become tired and vision blurred; there is strabismus or cast in the eye and a tendency to avoid light. The eyes are partly closed; there are twitchings of the lids, sick headache and dizziness. It brings on neuralgia and headache that medicines fail to cure.

Nearly every condition recited above, if brought about by defective vision or an abnormal state of the ocular muscles, can be relieved by glasses, says a writer in the "Family Doctor." The fitting of glasses is, at times, a very difficult task, and should be entrusted only to one who thoroughly understands the different defects and diseases of the eye, and is skilful with the appliances used for the scientific selection of proper lenses.

Love's Silence. There are great silences in a great love, and fools are they who vainly strive to reach Those shining shores beyond the verge of speech, Where none should fare—not even the white dove That hides forever in true lovers' souls, And blesses them with stillness. There are deeps That none should desecrate; jealous love keeps Sure watch when passion's ocean round her rolls.

These calms are Love's hid meaning; they contain The covenant and gospel of Love's years, The very bread of beauty and the wine. Oh, never dream to enter that dim fane, Flooded with knowledge and Love's awful tears, But how before the hush that is divine.
