CHARITY MITE BOX SHOULD BE PROBED

New York Merchants Set Lead by Urging That Organizations be Investigated.
Merchants should be careful about allowing mite boxes for charity to be put in their stores, promiscuously. The reason is that when a customer sees a box displayed in the store in which he has been in the habit of trading, he naturally believes that the organization back of the mite box is reputable and is worthy of patronage.
The New York merchants association has had to call a halt on just this matter, according to the following clipping:
"The Merchants association of Greater New York has found it advisable to caution members of their organization against indiscriminate placing of mite boxes in places of business. It is stated that in New York several organizations which have not been doing good work have made use of the mite boxes as means of raising funds by placing a large number of them in business houses. The Merchants association points out that when a customer sees a mite box displayed by a firm where he or she has been buying goods regularly, it is immediately assumed that the object for which the money is solicited deserves support. Permission to place a mite box in an establishment is endorsement of that project and a business man should not permit a mite box to be placed in his establishment until he is thoroughly familiar with the charitable organization that thus seeks his endorsement."
The lesson might be brought home to local merchants and they be urged to look carefully into the charity organizations which they are supporting.

MRS. JOHNSTONE DIED SUNDAY

After a Long Period of Ill Health at the Family Home at 302 High Street.

BOEN AT WARSAW, ILL.

Had Been a Resident of Keokuk Ever Since Her Marriage to Mr. Johnstone in 1887.

It was with deep sorrow that the people of Keokuk received the whispered announcement of death of Mrs. Clara Knox Johnstone, which occurred at the family home, at 302 High street, at 2:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon after a considerable period of ill health, the final cause of her death being hemorrhage of the brain.
Mrs. Johnstone was born at Warsaw, Ill., August 12, 1861, and was the daughter of the late Mr. George S. Knox and Mrs. Emily Knox, prominent residents of Warsaw. On November 1, 1887, she was married to Mr. Alexander E. Johnstone, of Keokuk, where she had since resided. She was a devout and consistent member of St. John's Episcopal church, whose quiet, yet noble and generous acts will long be remembered by the faithful and grateful members of that congregation. What she did was done so earnestly and unostentatiously that the world was none the wiser of her deeds. They were the acts dictated by a true and benevolent, christian heart, and it was not even for her left hand to know what her open right hand was doing.
Though partially an invalid during the latter portion of her beautiful life, she bore her illness without a murmur, her sweet life passing away with a trusting patience that was characteristic of her living; then

"Why should death be linked with fear. A single breath—a low-drawn sigh—Can break the ties that bind us here, And waft the spirit to the sky?"

Since we must remember that the grave stands before each surviving individual, and that

"Leaves have their time to fall And flowers to wither at the north wind's breath, And stars to set—but all, Thou hast all seasons for thine own, O death!"

And never a sweeter life went out than when the shadow fell upon the declining form and the spirit left the earthly casket of the good woman and she reposed

"In the deep stillness of that dreamless state, Of sleep that knows no waking joys again."

Her gentle life was full of that quiet action which marked a career of earthly goodness and usefulness. What she did was from a true, sympathetic heart. She was ever mindful of the comfort and happiness of those about her—a faithful, loving wife, a watchful, affectionate mother, and a friend as true as the truest. There was no ostentation in her nature. If she did a good deed, it was done quietly and by heart direction and not that she would receive the selfish gratification of earthly praise. She was a member of the Young Woman's Christian Association and in this connection she was the same quiet, helpful woman as in all her other walks of life, doing her duty quietly and faithfully.

In the social circles of the city and vicinity she was well known and popular for her real worth and culture. In the family circle, she was the center; practical in her ideas, cultured in her tastes and gentle in her manners, she won by the tact and art of her loving and obliging disposition, the respect and esteem of everybody who were so fortunate as to meet her. Her death will cause a deep sorrow in hearts of many people. The church will miss her devout influence, the Y. W. C. A. will feel that it has lost a true and loyal friend, the community will grieve for a social member whose life in its midst has been an example for good, and there can be no means of estimating the sorrow felt in the model, cultured household where she has been recognized so long as the gracious queen, so well endowed with those splendid qualities that make a happy home.

Mrs. Johnstone is survived by her husband, A. E. Johnstone, and one son, Edward Knox Johnstone, and her mother, Mrs. Emily A. Knox, of Warsaw, Ill., and two stepdaughters, Mrs. John H. Irwin and Mrs. Don Galusha, to whom she was greatly attached and who loved her with the tender affection that fond daughters feel for their own mothers. The tenderest sympathy of the entire city goes out to these bereaved ones, for the loss they have sustained in the death of their dear daughter, wife and mother.

MANY INTERESTED IN NEW BUILDING

Number of People Went to Jefferson Site Yesterday to Watch Progress.

Interest in the progress of the new Jefferson school building took a large number of people to that section of the city yesterday. There were several auto loads of people who visited the site, and any number walked out to see how much work had been accomplished. The excavation has been made and the footings have been put in. The first of the material which will be needed has been hauled to the ground.
The building will be erected on a triangular piece of ground at Twenty-second street. It may perhaps be of help in locating its site to say that it will be across from the old Carey place.
The work of constructing the building will be hurried as much as possible as the building is sadly needed to take care of the children in this section of the district.
The houses going up on the Home Park addition also were a source of interest to many people, yesterday.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR LEINDECKERS

Their House at Bird Island Was Struck by Lightning Last Thursday.

John Leindecker, justice of the peace, received a letter today from his son, H. W. Leindecker, at Bird Island, Minn., telling of the narrow escape they had last Thursday when their house was struck by lightning. The bolt entered the house through the windows, and the iron bed in one room attracted it. It grounded through the telephone. The family were all in the house at the time, and their escape was miraculous. Plastering and boards were torn loose by the bolt, also.
Mr. Leindecker writes that the rain and wind blew the corn over.

FORMER RESIDENT DIED IN CALIFORNIA

John Cochran Died in San Francisco Yesterday and the Remains will Come Here for Burial.

John Cochran, a former resident of this vicinity, it is announced, died in San Francisco, Calif., yesterday. He will no doubt be remembered by many old acquaintances and associates in Keokuk. There are no details as to his death or antecedents, except that he is a brother of Glenn Cochran, a well known citizen of New Boston, this county.
The remains will be sent to Keokuk for burial though the date of their arrival is not definitely known.

Soo "Third Lock."
SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., July 20.—With a length 350 feet greater than any other lock in the world, the new "third lock" at the Soo canal is rapidly nearing completion and engineers in charge of the work today predicted that within a month it will be open to navigation. The new lock has a total length of 1,350 feet, a width of 80 feet and a depth sufficient to permit boats of 24 foot draft to pass through it.

The completion of this new work will be epochal in the history of great lake navigation. With the locks already in operation here, it will permit a gross tonnage to pass through from the waters of Lake Superior to the lower lakes that is ten times greater than the expected annual tonnage of the Panama canal. Three locks are now in operation in the canal, two on the American side of the St. Mary's river and one on the Canadian side. Two additional locks are under construction on the American side, one known as the "third lock," to be completed during the latter part of August.

During the eight months of the navigation season of 1913, approximately 60,000,000 tons of freight passed through the Soo locks. Since the start of the development of the iron mining industry of the upper Michigan regions, more than 500,000,000 tons of iron ore have been shipped through the canal to Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana points. In addition enormous shipments of copper ore, lumber and wheat have passed through the big locks, the wheat shipments alone now aggregating approximately 200,000,000 bushels annually.

History of the Soo locks extends back over a period of 117 years. In 1797, the Northwest Fur company constructed here the first lock on the North American continent, but in 1814 it was destroyed by United States troops as a war measure. No further attempt to make navigable the waters dividing Superior and the lower lakes was made until 1854 when the state of Michigan constructed two locks, each 350 feet in length, and of sufficient depth to permit vessels of 12-foot draft to pass through.

In 1870, the United States government took over an interest in the canal and eleven years later had completed the Weitzel lock, which is still in operation for the use of small boats. In 1887, the federal government assumed complete control of the canal. The government then ordered the destruction of the old state locks and the erection of what is now known as the "Poe lock." This undertaking was completed in 1896. The Poe lock is 800 feet long, 100 feet wide and admits vessels drawing 18 feet of water.
