Bertillon Measurements Used on Body of Polack Show He Was Not Wanted at Galesburg.

SHERIFF SEAMAN HERE

Illinois Officer Comes for Purpose of Identifying Body as That of the Man Sought.

Although it was found necessary to resort to the Bertillon measurements, it was established beyond reasonable doubt this morning that the dead Pole whose body is being held here awaiting word from Chicago is not the man who is wanted at Galesburg, as the officials first thought. The dead man and the man who is wanted at Galesburg look so nearly alike it was necessary to use the Bertillon measurements to make sure that proper identification was being made.

NOT GUILTY, BUT HIS EVIDENCE CONVICTS

Dr. W. P. Sherlock Forgot That the Speed Limit of City Had Been Reduced.

Here's one on Dr. W. P. Sherlock, one of the large number of automobile drivers against whom infractions were filed at the time the motorcycle officer was on duty. Dr. Sherlock's case came up in the superior court today with several others. He entered a plea of not guilty and produced an affidavit signed by a man who was with him at the time he was charged with having exceeded the speed limit on the way down town from the baseball game. The affidavit was to the effect that the car was operated at a speed of seven miles an hour, at no time exceeding twenty miles an hour.

Under the old traffic ordinance this speed would have been under the limit made and provided, but under the ordinance passed shortly before the new city administration took office the speed at which Dr. Sherlock claims he drove his car is several miles above the limit. He was required to pay his fine of $1 and costs.

SET GERMANY IN UPROAR

Newspaper Extra Which Was Later Denied, Probably Was Official News.

[By Karl H. Von Wiegand, United Press Staff Correspondent.]
BERLIN, July 30.—The extreme tension in Berlin snapped this afternoon and the wildest excitement followed issuance of extra editions of the Lokal Anzeiger, the semi-official paper, declaring that mobilization of the German army had been ordered. Coming at the same time that reports of the kaiser having given the czar twenty-four hours in which to explain Russia's mobilization, the city was thrown into a fever of excitement.

Upon denials by the foreign office that mobilization orders had been issued, the Lokal Anzeiger made frantic efforts to recall its extras. A second extra was issued carrying the denial of the foreign office but late this evening it could not be determined whether the orders had really been issued. The Lokal Anzeiger declared that it had been made the victim of a scheme but did not give any details. The foreign office stated the statement of the paper was premature, but in other quarters it was declared that it was merely a case of the kaiser's own paper getting news which the government had not intended should become known.

At 4 p. m. it was utterly impossible to tell whether secret orders for the mobilization of the German army had been issued; whether the information had leaked to the Lokal Anzeiger or whether the paper had been made the victim of a hoax.

The situation was further complicated by the fact that the Lokal Anzeiger is generally recognized as a semi-official organ and next to the North German Gazette, comes nearest of any paper in the empire to voicing the kaiser's personal views. Telephone and telegraph lines were swamped with inquiries from all parts of Berlin and surrounding cities. The Lokal Anzeiger put up huge signs in front of its office declaring mobilization had not been ordered.

Thousands poured into the streets and despite the orders prohibiting demonstrations, patriotic parades were soon in the course of formation. Hurry calls were put in for extra police to control the crowds. Police also entered the Lokal Anzeiger office and took complete charge.

All Germany was startled by the mobilization news. Hundreds of reservists reported for duty and it was generally believed that the country was taking the first step forward up or Russia.

MORE CONCERNING GALLAGHER'S FALL

Keokuk Man who was Hurt at Burlington, Fell Over Forty Feet.

The Gate City yesterday contained brief mention of an accident which befell Joseph Gallagher at Burlington. The Gazette contains the following particulars of the mishap:
While working on a forty-foot telephone pole this morning Joseph Gallagher, a cable splicer in the employ of the Iowa Telephone Co., residing at Keokuk, fell from the lofty height, suffering a broken collar-bone and severe cuts about the head.

The accident occurred at the corner of Summer street and West avenue about 8:30 o'clock while the victim was working on the terminal located near the top of the pole. He was rendered unconscious, and his horrified companions hastened to the home of Mrs. E. M. Wesner, residing at No. 711 Summer street, from which place they telephoned to Dr. Dixon.

Father Galligan was also sent for, and through the courtesy of E. G. Bandson, of the Wyman & Rand Co., whose car was standing at the curb, the priest was hurried to St. Francis hospital, to which place the victim was brought a short time later.

It was thought that his injuries were more serious than the examination showed them to be, the first report saying that he was dying, but happily it was found that there were no external injuries beyond the fracture of the collar-bone.
Mr. Gallagher has been in the employ of the telephone company about ten years, and has been employed locally during July. He is married, the family living in Keokuk. Mrs. Gallagher was notified of the accident and arrived this afternoon.

Mrs. Wesner applied cold applications to the forehead of the victim while waiting the arrival of the physicians and accompanied him to the hospital.

The autos were covered with signs, pennants and placards apprising everyone that the fair is at Donnellson August 11-14. The itinerary of the party was from Donnellson to La Crew, Mt. Hamill, Hillsboro, Salem, Houghton, St. Paul, West Point, Denmark, Fort Madison, Montrose, Keokuk, Summitville, New Boston, Charleston and home to Donnellson. Krebill, Louis Cole, William Bentzinger and Joe Carver. The sextette was composed of Misses Edna and Rosalie Benjamin, Beulah Meinhardt, Leona Gibson, Elsie Mattern and Leona Haefner. The following directors of the fair accompanied the publicity party: Joe Krebill, Joe Carver, George Rentz, Louis Conlee, Chris Hafner and R. Klager.

SOCIALISTS ALWAYS HAVE A REMEDY

Berger Suggests Strike of Workingmen to Keep Europe From War.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 30.—Victor L. Berger, socialist leader and former socialist congressman from Wisconsin, today proposed a general strike in countries outside Austria and Serbia as a method of localizing the conflict. This suggestion will be made before the international socialist congress which was to have been held in Vienna but will probably be held in Paris.

"The war between Austria and Serbia is only a small incident in the war now pending. If the European war becomes a reality, it will not only be a clash between the Slavs and the Germans for domination in Europe but in the final analysis it will be a fight between Russian autocracy and western democracy. The German kaiser will soon be a secondary consideration in this historic conflict.

"It is impossible to prevent the war between Austria and Serbia because that war has already commenced. But we may be able to localize the conflict," Berger said.

"The working class of France and Italy and of the world in general is for peace. We have no further interest in the Europe imbroglio except the czar of Russia and Russian autocracy should be defeated, because every weakening of the Russian autocracy is a lasting benefit to the international socialist movement and to civilization—and because the German socialist-democracy may be depended on to take care of the kaiser after the war.

"Therefore, I may suggest a general strike in England, Italy and France, in case these countries' governments may want to take part in the war."

Daily Stock Letter. [Copyright, 1914, by the New York Evening Post.]
NEW YORK, July 30.—This afternoon's news of a German note to the Russian government requiring information within twenty-four hours of the Russian purposes in mobilizing, did not by any means necessarily mean war; but in the mood of the European markets, it was inevitably accepted by them as foreshadowing such an issue. Such an idea was manifestly prevalent on the foreign money and security markets, before the day began. It explained the virtual suspension of business on the European stock exchanges from the start, the advance of one per cent each in the London and Paris bank rates, the continued throwing over of securities on New York by Europe, and the withdrawal of $8,500,000 more gold from here—nearly all for England—at rates of exchange more extravagant than any which have heretofore prevailed. Sight bills themselves sold at $5.00 to the pound sterling and war risks went to figures which should have been absolutely prohibitive. Under this combination of influences, it was entirely natural that prices on the stock exchange, after opening two points lower on many active shares, should thereafter have declined at a pace not often matched, outside of real financial panics.
