

America Loses Tennis Cup--McCullough Shows Old Time Form

MACK WINS 7-3, SHOWS OLD FORM

Indians Take Advantage of Richardson's Wildness and Costly Boots--Timely Blows Also Help.

LOSING STREAK ENDED

Record of Thirteen Consecutive Defeats Ended by 9-3 Win Over Ansons in Friday's Game

With McCullough on the bridge, pitching in something like his old training season form, the Indians again demonstrated they have a few wins left in their systems in the final encounter of the series as well as the last game of the season with Marshalltown here. Taking advantage of Richardson's wildness, miscues by his team mates, and adding a few timely blows of their own, the tribe had an easy time in taking the game by a score of 7 to 3.

McCullough looked as much a master on the mound as he has at any time this year, and Mack, it will be remembered, had 'em all making predictions when he broke in with the tribe early last spring. Until the eighth inning, when for the first time he showed a trace of weakness, the Ansons had but twice been able to hit safely. They found two more blows in the eighth and two in the ninth, but Mack made up for it in the last inning by striking out two. He also contributed to the Indians' collection of bingles, a neat triple that went nearly to the right field fence.

Visiting Hurler Wild.

It was hard for Richardson, doing the slab work for the Ansons, to find the plate. He walked eight men. When his wildness was not getting him into bad holes it was the erratic playing of the eight men behind him that made things look bad for the visitors. The four errors made by Lizzie Richardson's team were much more costly than those made by the tribe.

Three walks, two errors, a sacrifice and a safe blow gave the tribe three runs in the opening session, and left the bases populated when the side finally was retired. The fourth inning was very similar. A base on balls, two hits, a sacrifice and two errors brought in three more scores in that period. Sweet's walk, followed by McCullough's triple, brought in our last run in the fifth inning.

The Ansons first scored in the sixth, a double and two errors being the cause. They scored again in the eighth. Burgwald walked, went to second when old Sam Foster singled, and scored on Delaney's double. Their two blows in the ninth failed to deliver a numeral for the score board. Several very pretty fielding plays evened up to a big extent the errors made by the Indians. The game gave the tribe two out of three for the series. The score:

LOSING STREAK BROKEN.

Pin a hero medal on Barny O'Byrne. He hoisted the tribe out of the deepest hole they have fallen into this year. After losing thirteen straight games, the Indians fell on the Ansons Friday and won easily as if they had never known what defeat meant. Seven timely blows, all coming in a row in the third round, started things and brought in five runs. Three more were added in the next period on four hits.

Harter and Griffin were the losing hurlers, both receiving a warm reception. They managed to stagger to their feet after the fourth and held the tribe scoreless in all rounds after that, but it was too late for the Ansons to do any damage and the Indians won easily, 9 to 3. The score:

Sporting Views

By the Editor

From the league averages just out.

Waterloo looks to be far and away the strongest club in the league in the batting and fielding departments of the game, while Muscatine, holding the lead in the race for the flag, looks much weaker in these two respects. The Jays are second in both batting and fielding. A glance at the records of the Muscatine pitchers, however, explains why Boyle is able to keep his club at the top. Three of his hurlers are ranked second, third, and fourth among the slab artists of the association, while another, Gould, is seventh. The addition of Faircloth makes his staff quite a big strasser. Waterloo, on the other hand, has but two pitchers whose work has been consistently good this year. Bioggett is leading the other twirlers in the league with a record of thirteen games won and two lost. Blenner has won twelve and lost six.

The venerable "Gawge Zip" Zackert is being lauded by Muscatine scribes as the man who found what old Ponce de Leon didn't. Gawge has been coming back to Muscatine all these years with apparently undiminished youth and vigor. He has won eighteen and lost seven games for Boyle this season and deserves all the praise that is now coming to him.

Whitely Hensling leaves today for Cedar Rapids to join the Bunies. He will not arrive in time to work in today's game but will be used regularly hereafter. Trumpy, the man sent here in exchange for Hensling, arrived yesterday and worked in the game against Marshalltown, playing at second in place of Max Addington. Although Trumpy made a couple of boots yesterday, he shows up well in the field. His stick work was good yesterday, although it is believed he will prove weaker at the bat than in the field.

The question of who will be used in Hensling's place is bothering the fans right now. Trumpy probably will be used if he can hold down the job satisfactorily. Otherwise Giffin or Addington may be shifted to the difficult corner. In the meantime, while Addington is out of the game, Giffin will be used at third and Trumpy at second.

Neville Wins Golf Tourney.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.] LAKE GENEVA, Wis., Aug. 15.--Jack Neville of San Francisco won the annual golf tourney of Lake Geneva Country club today, defeating Carl B. Devoil of the Riverside club, Chicago, 4 up and 3 to play in the thirty-six hole final. Robert E. Hunter of Pasadena and Paul Hunter of Midlothian, Chicago, were tied with 72 for the Pleasant Hill cup given for the best 18 holes.

Jack Johnson Broke.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.] CHICAGO, Aug. 15.--Jack Johnson is broke in Paris, according to Max Annenberg, Chicago newspaper man who has just returned from abroad. Annenberg declared tonight that the negro told him in Paris that the $30,000 purse he was guaranteed for his fight with Frank Moran was attached by his creditors and he never saw a penny of it.

Just before warming up practice yesterday, Addington cut his foot on a piece of broken glass, the gash extending to the bone in his foot. He probably will be out of the game for several days.

AMERICANS LOSE DAVIS TENNIS CUP

Williams No Match for Brookes and Only Once Did He Display Championship Form.

M'LOUGHLIN IS LAUDED

Hal Sheridan Says California Youth Easily Greatest Singles Tennis Player in the World Today.

[By Hal Sheridan, Written for the United Press.]

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Aug. 15.--America lost the Davis international tennis cup this afternoon to Australasia. R. Norris Williams was no match for Norman E. Brookes. He was wild; his playing was faulty and only in one set did he display form anyway near approaching his opponent. Maurice E. McLoughlin, the American champion, defeated Anthony F. Wilding of the Australasians in easy fashion. The score was 3 to 2 for the five matches. The score by which Brookes won over Williams today was 6-1; 6-2; 8-10; 6-3.

World's Greatest Singles Player.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.--The Davis cup is lost, but standing forth from the wreckage is this country's greatest singles tennis player in the world--Maurice E. McLoughlin.

When Norman E. Brookes, captain of the challenging Australasian team, defeated R. Norris Williams in the first singles match of today's play on the west side tennis club courts at Forest Hill, L. I., he delivered the final blow necessary to lift the coveted international trophy from possession of the United States. Brookes simply out-classed Williams. The Harvard boy never had a chance. But the sting of defeat and the loss of the cup was largely removed by the remarkable showing of McLoughlin.

McLoughlin Defeated Wilding.

Following the Brookes-Williams match, McLoughlin met Anthony F. Wilding. The match had no bearing on the Australasian's attempt to lift the cup. It had already been lost, but McLoughlin covered himself with glory by defeating Wilding, heretofore conceded to be the greatest singles player in the world. He defeated the giant Australasian decisively, leaving nothing in doubt, by three sets to one. With the exception of the third set, he was always master of the situation, always in the lead and carrying the fight to his opponent. McLoughlin conquered the two greatest singles players now on the courts within three days. Brookes defeated Wilding at Wimbledon early this summer for the England championship. Thursday McLoughlin defeated Brookes in three straight sets, the first going to the heart-breaking stretch of thirty-two games before the California comet could beat down his great opponent. Both Brookes and Wilding have earlier victories over McLoughlin to their credit.

In Class by Himself.

Wilding defeated him only last summer in England, but the American national champion clearly demonstrated during this week's play that he has arrived and is in a class by himself. Wilding played a brilliant game against McLoughlin today. He had speed, cleverness, stamina and everything needed by a champion. But McLoughlin had greater speed, displayed greater cleverness and carried the fight to Wilding as ferociously during the last game as the first. The speed of McLoughlin's service was terrific. He won the ninth game of the second set entirely on his service. Wilding being unable to make a single return. His placing was perfect.

After McLoughlin had won the first and second sets Wilding made his strongest bid. He had McLoughlin 5-0 in games and needed but one point to make it a love set. McLoughlin saved himself from this by winning two straight games, but finally succumbed 2-6. In the fourth and final set, McLoughlin took three straight love games from the great Wilding. He made seemingly impossible returns, outguessed his opponent on place shots and flashed over the court in dazzling style.

Williams a Disappointment.

Williams was the disappointment of the matches. The vast crowds witnessing the defense of the cup--14,000 were present today--did not get a chance to judge the real play of Wilding until today. He toyed with Williams on Thursday. Brookes was extended but little today to de-
