Keokuk school kids are not going to suffer by reason of the European cataclysm, as has been the case in some of the other cities. They will find all of their teachers safe and sound on this side of the big pond. In some of the cities it has been found necessary to call out the reserve teachers to fill the vacancies occasioned by the number of pedagogues who have been caught in Europe.

SECOND CONCERT TO BE GIVEN AT PARK

Musical Program by Citizens Band Will be Played, Commencing at 3:15 O'clock.

The second of the series of sacred band concerts will be held this afternoon in Rand park by the Citizens' band. The concert last Sunday was an enjoyable one, and there was a good crowd in attendance.

The band has prepared an even more attractive program for the concert today. The arrangements for hearing the music have been improved with the additional number of benches provided.

The concert will begin this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock and will last until five o'clock. The park is one of the attractive places these warm Sunday afternoons and with a concert by as good an organization as the Citizens' band will be doubly attractive to the crowds who no doubt will attend this afternoon.

Of Interest To Women

Over and over again the ability of American men and women is demonstrated. Last week an Illinois woman, Miss Helen Scott Hay was called to be the head of the Red Cross work in the war zone in Europe, and will sail this week. Several months ago, Queen Elinor of Bulgaria came to America to look into hospital methods and chose Miss Hay to superintend hospital work in her country. With the declaration of war the needs called for Red Cross work and Miss Hay was detailed there. She is a graduate of Northwestern university and of the Illinois training school and for three years after graduation, was superintendent of the Illinois training school. Mrs. Kate Sanders of Keokuk is a personal friend of Miss Hay.

Women have come to be such enthusiastic motorists that they will be interested in these facts. On November 28, the American automobile will be eighteen years old. In the United States there are five times as many automobiles as in all Europe, there being in use at the beginning of this year 1,145,000 machines. Frederic Upham Adams, a draftsman and mechanical engineer, is the father of the American automobile. The first motor cars were made in France and named automobiles. Mr. Adams did not think the Americans would stand for that name so for several months they were called "electrobats," and later "motocycles," but finally with the French they were called automobiles. The first race was held on the Midway plaisance in Chicago on Thanksgiving day, 1895 and twelve automobiles, all looking like horseless buggies, took part in the race, the record of the winner being 10 miles an hour. This reads like ancient history doesn't it, and yet this was the status of the automobile less than twenty years ago.

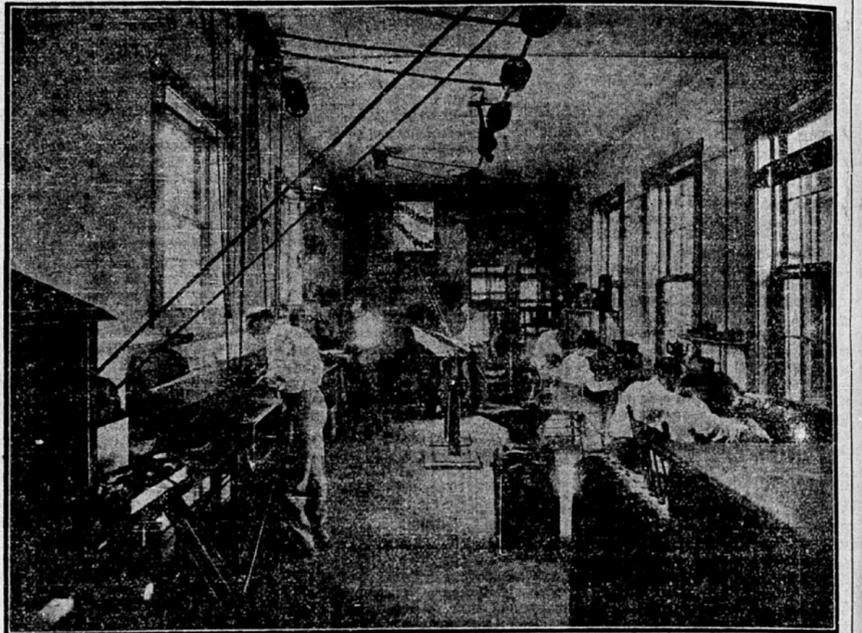

Mrs. Medill McCormick suggested several weeks ago, to the women of Chicago who wished to raise money to work for a federal law, giving suffrage to the women of the United States, that they put a melting pot into which women put some sacrificial article for the cause. A great iron cauldron was hung before one of the windows at the Woman's Suffrage association headquarters, which was more than once filled to overflowing. One woman who saw the collection enumerated some of the things it contained, "watches, a great amount of silverware from the faintest vinaigrette to the castor, that time honored centerpiece to the dining table, all kinds of silver spoons, forks, quaint little salt bowls, lockets, rings, shirt studs, chains of gold and silver, napkin rings, silver jewel boxes, purses, buckles. Some of the things in the "golden stew" was like turning the page of God's Ladies' Book and reading the fashions of hoop skirts and hair bracelets, because there seemed to be everything there of the hoop skirt period including the hair bracelet and brooch.

One of the most pathetic and at the same time sane appeals and protest against the present European war was sent a few days ago by the National American Woman's Suffrage association, to the twenty-six nations of the earth having organized suffrage associations. The appeal is signed by Anna Howard Shaw, Jane Addams, Desha Breckenridge and Caroline Ruutz-Rees, and is as follows: "The cloud of a great international war darkens all Europe and the shadow of the conflict hangs over all the nations of the world, incuring disaster to all people and the turning back of civilization for a century to come. During the past hundred years, women have given their toll not only to motherhood and the cares of family life, but also to building up the great industries of every country. They have devoted thought and energy and have made great sacrifices to develop education and establish reforms for the betterment of humanity. Hundreds of thousands have sacrificed their lives to the life-giving vocation of motherhood. Yet without one thought of the sufferings and sacrifices of mothers who have reared sons, or of the tremendous industrial burdens that war will impose upon woman, who will have to do their own work and the work of men called to the field of battle; without consideration of little children who will have to be taken from school and pay for industrial toll thus wantonly imposed upon them by the government whose duty it is to protect and shield them; this curse of a medieval war is thrust upon those whose will and wish has not been consulted. Is it that hundreds of thousands of their sons go down to death before the terrible machinery of modern war that the nations call upon women to give their youth, their years of toil and their labor for a higher civilization? Shall the strongest and noblest of the races of men be sacrificed and only the weak and maimed left to perpetuate mankind? The suffragists of the United States call upon the women of the world to arise in protest against this unspeakable wrong and to show war-crazed men that between the contending armies stand thousands of women and children who are the innocent victims of men's unbridled ambitions; that under the heels of each advancing army are crushed the lives, the hopes, the happiness of countless women whose rights have been ignored, whose homes have been blighted and whose honor will be sacrificed if this unholy war does not cease and reason and justice take the place of hate, revenge and greed. This is not a national issue, but involves all humanity.

On one of the bronze tablets of the monument recently erected at Warsaw on the site of Fort Edwards, is a sketch of the fort, made by Mrs. Virginia W. Ivins, whose father was commandant. There was no place a picture or sketch of the fort, except in Mrs. Ivins' memory. She made a pencil sketch and then went with her son, W. S. Ivins, to Warsaw and there traced the boundary lines to get the correct proportions and he drew the picture guided by his mother's memory.

All who love history and are interested in keeping it true and in the preservation of historic sites, owe Mrs. Ivins a debt of gratitude, for the bronze tablet encased in stone will keep for all time that picture of the old fort.
