RECEIVE GERMAN WAR EXTRAS HERE

Sisters at St. Joseph's Hospital Have Some Interesting Newspapers Direct From the Fatherland.

CONTAIN WAR FEATURES

They Also Hear From Relatives and Learn That All Troops Are Not in Field as Yet.

War extras of some of the German papers have been received in Keokuk by the sisters at St. Joseph's hospital. These, together with letters and postal cards are believed to be the first pieces of mail to be received direct from Germany. The extras are printed on sheets of varying size, much like our handbills. Some are small, others are long. They consist of only the one sheet and are red, pink, yellow and green in color.

The line at the top of the sheet informs the reader that it is the "Extrablatt des Central-Volkblattes in Ansbarg." The extra sells for five pennies for the benefit of the Red Cross, a legend on the bottom of the sheet informs the purchaser.

The news contained in the extras is much the same as that which is sent out to the American newspapers from Berlin. In several of the extras, however, there are some interesting incidents told which have not gotten into the American despatches, for instance the capture at Rheims of thirty French airships and the German's report on the cathedral.

Capturing of Airships.
This despatch has been transmitted and reads like this:
"Berlin, August 8, 6:45 a. m. The morning papers announce the report of the Cologne Gazette affirms that in the taking of Rheims only a few houses were hit and the cathedral very little damaged.

"In the search for French aeroplanes in the factory of Kekardussin in the warehouse thirty French aeroplanes were found and taken, all ready for use. Forty motors in good condition, also were found. The aeroplanes captured are worth $200,000."

In another extra the surrender of Maubeuge is treated. Here is where an unconfirmed report, evidently, is given. The extra says that the report in the Anzeiger of the surrender of Maubeuge and the fact the English were beaten in a battle in that vicinity and that 30,000 were driven into the forts, it is believed they were captured.

Austrian Situation.
Another of the extras deals with Austrian-Russian fighting. It contains a despatch from Vienna August 26, which says that from the general headquarters of the army the announcement comes that the three days battle at Krasnik, east of the Vistula ended with a great victory for the Austrian troops.

The sisters at the local hospital have learned through letters and postal cards received today, also, that all of the men in Germany have not been called into the army as they were first led to believe. It is believed by them, according to word just received, that the fighting which is now being waged by the German armies is being done almost wholly by the regular troops.

Not All in Fight.
One of the sisters has relatives in the first reservists army and they are not in service yet. The older men from the ages of 45 upward, are not even considered by the recruiting officers. Of course as one of the sisters expressed it, if fighting continues there is little doubt but that reserve troops must be called out. It is a relief for them to know that for the present at least their relatives are not in the fighting machine in France.

One of the postal cards received bears a picture of Liege. The lines on the card say that it is a German armored city of 250,000, captured August 7. The card starts out with a salutation, "We Germans fear God and no one else in the world," and states that this feeling must be apparent in the victories.

PEOPLE PROTESTING ON LACK OF WATER
Picknickers at Rand Park Say They Can't Get Drop of Water There Now.

A number of people have protested the last two weeks because there is not a drop of drinking water to be had in Rand park. Almost as many picnic parties go to the park these early autumn days as go in the summer. A few days ago a large party of picknickers took their supper to the park and lost all the pleasure of it because there was no drinking water. The memory of the lack of water there during the celebration is still clear in the minds of everybody.

CLUBS AT WELLS SCHOOL COMBINE

Kindergarten Mothers and Mothers Club Will Now be Known as "Wells School Mothers and Teachers Club."

ADOPTS CONSTITUTION

Mrs. Daniel John is Chosen as President of This New Organization Which Has High Aims.

Early last year there was organized in the Wells' district the first Mothers club in Keokuk in connection with a school, the organization being the Kindergarten Mothers club. A little later in the year the mothers of the children in the advanced grades came together for meetings and the second club was formed. At the meeting yesterday the two clubs came together in one organization to be known as the Wells School Mothers and Teachers club. Miss Eva Stevens, principal of the Wells school, presided at the meeting of organization and a constitution was adopted.

The object of the club as defined by the constitution is "To connect the school more closely with the home and to promote good fellowship between parent and teacher that shall make for the greater good of the child. To devise and carry out plans for helping each other when help is needed and to furnish a measure of social diversion." The section on membership provides that "Membership shall consist of the pupil's mothers and any woman in the ward who feels a mother's interest in the school and the teachers of the Wells school." The time of meeting will be on the third Thursday afternoon of each month, in the kindergarten room. The social and work committee was given power to call special meetings.

Officers are Elected.

The election of officers resulted as follows:
President—Mrs. Daniel John.
Vice president—Mrs. Martin Murphy.
Secretary—Miss Gladys Englehardt.
Treasurer—Mrs. Geo. Bevering.
Chairman of social and work committee—Miss Carrie Gilmore.
Miss Stevens, the school principal, was made a member ex-officio of this executive board.

The program for the day was one of very special interest and a practical program. Dr. J. E. Forney spoke on the care of children's teeth, why, when and how it should be done. Dr. Forney illustrated his talk with the proper appliances for the care of the teeth. Both teachers and parents were very appreciative of the clear instructions given on the care of children's teeth. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting and the social hour enjoyed which always closes their meetings.

FLOATER FOUND IS NOT IDENTIFIED

Body of Man Picked Up in River Here Tuesday Not That of Richard Egan of Clinton.

HAVE ANOTHER CLUE

May Have Been Body of Man by the Name of Ruddy, Drowned Two Months Ago at Clinton.

That the body of the floater found near the Taber mill Tuesday is not that of Richard Egan of Clinton, was made known at Clinton yesterday when a body was taken from the river at that place and positively identified as that of Richard Egan, according to an article appearing in the Clinton Advertiser. However, the same article tells of the drowning of a man and two women at Clinton about two months ago, and these bodies have not yet been found. It is possible the body found here was that of the man mentioned, whose name was Ruddy.

The body picked up here was discovered by W. B. Ryland and Luke Brown who were riding together in a skiff. The body was floating in the water and was not found in some weeds. Ryland fastened a rope about the foot of the floater and it was towed to shore and the authorities notified.

The following is from the Clinton Advertiser:

The remains of Richard Egan were found floating in the Mississippi beneath the Northwestern railroad bridge at 9 o'clock this morning.

The body was towed ashore, and Coroner Kellogg was summoned. After identification had been made by John Egan, brother of the deceased, and the remains had been conveyed to the J. L. Clarke undertaking establishment, the coroner announced that he would not hold an inquest.

The young Clinton man was drowned on Saturday evening, September 12th.

Engineer, Sees Body.

Bridge Engineer Edmund Carew discovered the remains in the river this morning.

The body was floating slowly on the current, lying face downward. The engineer blew the whistle, and called the attention of Foreman D. M. Swift and his helper, John King, who went out in a boat and towed it to the shore, at the foot of Twelfth avenue, near the Lamb mill. The engineer notified the police, who in turn gave the coroner notice of discovery of the body.

Word was sent to John Egan, who hurried to the river bank. He at once pronounced the remains to be those of his brother, Richard Egan.

Was Fine Swimmer.

The drowned man wore black trousers and a blue shirt. He had on heavy shoes, which no doubt interfered with his movements in the water. He had been a splendid swimmer, one of the best in Clinton, it is said.

The young man plunged into the river after breaking away from Police Officer Sloppy, who was taking him to the police station on the evening of September 12th, wishing to use him as a witness in a case against a man named Lisk, a friend of Egan's, who had been mixed up in a fight. As the officer and Egan were walking south on Second street the latter suddenly started to run. Witnesses say he plunged into the river after declaring that the police wanted him, but "wouldn't get him."

Later men at the Deyo boat livery heard cries for help, and went out in a boat. They did not find any trace of the swimmer, and returned with a report that someone undoubtedly had been drowned. Stories were later circulated about the city that Egan had made his way to the Illinois side of the river, and had been seen taking a freight train east. These baseless rumors were not disproved until the river gave up its dead this morning.

More Bodies in River.
"There are probably three other bodies within fifty rods of us," said Coroner Kellogg this morning, discussing the drowning of Egan, and of Mr. and Mrs. Ruddy and Mrs. Newcomer in front of the old saw-mill, before the body was taken to the undertaking establishment.

The coroner is firm in the belief that the young man, his wife, and mother-in-law, went down in a bunch when their flat-boat was struck by a launch two months ago, and were caught in the old piling or other debris in the river's bottom. He thinks if the bodies are not together, at least one of them would have been picked up somewhere.

The coroner believes the bodies could be located with the aid of an electric light, which he said could be let down from a boat provided with a storage battery. Or he thinks if a stern-wheel steamer were run up and down beneath the bridge the action of the wheel in the water would dislodge the bodies.

Bodies Under Piling?
Foreman Swift says the water is about forty feet deep where the three were drowned, and the bottom is filled with sheet-piling, which was bent over when the new bridge was built. The bridge man thinks it highly probable that the three bodies were washed under some of this bent-over piling, and will remain there for all time.
