THOSE OTHER IOWA AUTHORS

(Rose Henderson in the Des Moines Register and Leader.) The Chicago Evening Post: "We cannot think of many Iowa authors. There is Octave Thanet and Susan Glaspell and George Cram Cook—but there our list ends. We regret our ignorance, but we cannot do any better."

Excuse me, but there's Rupert Hughes. You can't have overlooked his muse. He's written stories, books and verse and musical opinions terse. And when there's nothing else to do, he dashes in a play or two. He's good at "litratoor" and luck. He used to live in Keokuk.

NAMES FAMILIAR IN LOCAL HISTORY

Current Number Annals of Iowa Contains Sketches of Dean and Lane. The current number of Annals of Iowa contains sketches of Henry Clay Dean and the Rev. Daniel Lane, both of Keosauqua, and whose careers are more or less intermingled with Keokuk people. The sketches are from George G. Wright.

In speaking of the Rev. Daniel Lane he devotes space to the private school at Keosauqua in which were Judge Caldwell, A. J. McCrary and Felix T. Hughes, prominent members of the local bar, and S. M. Clark who was the editor of The Gate City.

Henry Clay Dean was a brilliant orator, and as a boy addressed a crowd at Keokuk in the absence of other speakers, swaying the assemblage in most unusual manner for just a boy. It was a political gathering, and the regular speakers had failed to arrive.

Plucky Belgian.

ANTWERP, Oct. 7.—The courage of the members of the royal field artillery, better known as the field gunners, was never better shown than a few days ago, according to one of the Twentieth Hussars.

A half battery in rather exposed position was galling the Germans by the accuracy of its aims. Finally the Germans concentrated several of their batteries on it. The result could only be one thing as it was a David against a half dozen Goliaths. Finally all the guns were silenced but one. The men who had been manning them were lying, dead and wounded, around the ground.

One man was left. He went about his work with a doggedness that bespoke determination to stick there to the end. And the end would have come soon as the Germans, who had stopped firing for a minute were about to recommence to silence the lone gun.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Schaffer of Keokuk visited the last of last week with their daughter, Mrs. H. M. VanTuyte, and other relatives and friends here.

Krupp in England. LONDON, Oct. 7.—Herr Krupp, the noted gunmaker, was outwitted when he visited England a few months ago before the outbreak of the war. England paid the inventor great homage. They dined—and wined—him to a queen's bath. In fact dining was the principal thing he did while he was here. Not because he wanted to especially, but because that was all his English hosts would allow him to do.

Several times the gunmaker expressed a desire to see England's armament works, just a friendly desire, you know. He was showed them, between courses as it were. The English didn't give him time enough around any armament works to find out whether England was using breech-loading cannon or pop-guns.

England figured the Herr Krupp might possibly pick up some information which would please the kaiser immensely. And so that was why they dined him and dined some more.

YOU do not have to "become accustomed" to Ivory Soap for the toilet and bath, as to use it once is to like it always.

Ivory Soap contains nothing that is not agreeable to everybody. It contains no inferior materials to give a strong odor. It contains no free alkali to make the skin smart. It contains no free oil to make rinsing difficult. It contains no perfume which one person may like and another dislike.

In short, Ivory simply is the highest grade of soap, mild, pure, white, naturally pleasing. You will like it.

POEM OF PEACE. Hark! I hear the sound of voices, Like the roaring of the sea; As a million souls uprising, Cry for Peace and Liberty.

For great nations have forgotten Love for God and love for men; Aye! the whole world needs the spirit Of the King of Bethlehem.

Fling a banner 'cross the heavens, Like a meteor let it shine; With a message to the nations That shall breathe of Love Divine.

Let it float across the heavens, Till the world shall read the lines, Love, Liberty, Humanity, For all nations and all times.

Let it float across the heavens Until war and sin shall cease; Until Truth and Love shall triumph And each heart finds Peace. —Mary Louise Dawson.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY. Thy friend hath a friend and thy friend's friend a friend. Beware!—From the French.

Straw hats are steadily retreating southward. They evacuated Memphis, October 1.

Philadelphia doesn't care a continental where victory may land in the great war. Conny Mack has captured another pennant and the chestnut crop is a bumper one.

Mrs. Eleanor M. Hayes of Philadelphia won the angling laurels for her sex by landing two huge channel bass near Avalon, N. J. One of them weighed fifty-five pounds, the record catch of the season.

A recent investigation shows that between 500 and 1,000 families in Chicago gravitate from the city pay roll in summer to the county relief bureau in winter. As workers they get $2.25 a day. As paupers they cost the county $500,000 yearly. Easy money with the bark on.

Judges of the newly created municipal court of Philadelphia have such airy notions of judicial dignity that nothing less than a marble building can give the proper decorative touch to Quaker City justice. What is more the marble building is coming their way and $2,000,000 to polish it.

WEIGHT MUST BE MARKED ON GOODS

Law is Not New One Although It is Repeatedly Stated That it is One.

Here and there, talk is heard about the new weights and measures law. The fact is, that it is by no means a new law, but went into effect a long time ago. However, its operation was suspended in order that the dealers might have opportunity to get rid of their old stock and to get under the provisions of the law. Now, the state commissioner is bent upon enforcing the law, and has given all deputies orders to that effect. No doubt, there will be prosecution soon, for there are always the unready, and if they had been given double the time, some would not have taken steps to obey the new law. The new law compels goods on the merchants' shelves to be marked as to net weight and character.

This rule not only applies to package goods, such as breakfast foods, crackers and canned goods, but it applies to milk, beer and whisky bottles, as well. The law went into effect April 10, 1913, but the dealers were given until September 8, 1914, to get rid of goods then on their shelves. The package goods can be handled by the use of a rubber stamp, in case the weight is not printed on the label. All glass goods must have the net contents blown in the glass. During the last week brewers and wholesale whisky agents have submitted samples of bottles to the department for approval. Most beer bottles are what is known as "short quart." The bottles bear a label and it will be necessary for the brewers to print the contents on the label. Milk and pop bottles do not have labels, so it is necessary to have the contents blown in the glass.

A federal law identical with the Iowa state law also becomes effective September 3, and goods intended for sale within the state or interstate commerce, must be marked. The net weight provision applies to articles of food and to articles which enter into the composition of food, but does not apply to such products as washing powder, soaps bluing liquid, ammonia and others. The department has refused to extend the time limit for the labeling of goods, but it has exempted packages which contain two ounces
