"Quick Meal" Steel Ranges

Are copied by many, but equalled by none. They are built by STEEL RANGE MAKERS, and in a factory equipped especially for working sheet steel.

The "QUICK MEAL" Steel Range is the only real heat-saving steel Range made. Examine its fire box. It has just weight enough to make it durable and distribute the heat equally. It is not over-weighted and does not need an extra amount of coal to heat through.

Examine the walls of a "QUICK MEAL" Steel Range. They are well lined with Asbestos, and Steel which is Porcelain Enameled so as to retain all the heat, and prevent all rusting; no heat wasted and no rusting out of inside plates.

"QUICK MEAL" Steel Ranges are made in all sizes, with or without: High Closet, High Shelf, Reservoir, Pouch Feed, Enameled Splash Back, Gas Attachment, Polished Top, on Base or Feet.

Steel Ranges are made in many different ways by a numerous lot of stove and Range manufacturers throughout the United States. Some of these manufacturers make these Ranges for the jobbing houses under any name desired, and some for the catalogue houses, while others try to see how cheap they can make them, thinking that price and not quality is what the people are looking for.

In this age of sharp competition only a very few of the Range manufacturers have upheld the quality of their Ranges. Most of them have allowed themselves to cater to the cry of the cheap bargain hunter, forgetting the old maxim that "Quality lives long after the price is forgotten."

"QUICK MEAL" Steel Ranges are in a class by themselves, being built with the view of making the best that skill and money combined can produce.

A Range built with but few Rivets.

The only Range where all inner parts are porcelain lined and cannot rust.

A Range that takes more brains than hammers to make.

A Range that cuts your fuel bill in half.

A Range that will do the work as represented, wear as represented, and last as represented—first-class in every respect.

BREAKFAST FOOD PLANT IS COMING

S. C. Amlic of Fort Wayne, Ind., is Said to Have Leased Connable Building for His Company.

MAY BE HERE SHORTLY

Cream of Rice is Name of the Product, But as to Extent of Plant, Little is Known.

The Connable building at Third and Main streets, which has been vacated by the Mississippi River Power company will be occupied by S. C. Amlic of Fort Wayne, Ind. Mr. Amlic, it is understood, has formed a company for the manufacture of a product called "Cream of Rice." The building has been leased to Mr. Amlic, it is stated.

Mr. Amlic is at present at the hotel Anthony at Fort Wayne, Ind. How soon he will come here is not definitely known, but in view of the fact that a short extension of the present lease of the Power company to the building was refused by the owner, it is supposed that the project will be set on foot shortly.

Very little is known concerning the Amlic company or its product. It is known that Mr. Amlic was formerly at Three Rivers, Mich. The product which it is said he will manufacture here is a breakfast food.

The Gate City was unable to learn yesterday how much of the building will be occupied by the new concern, or what amount of machinery is used or the number of persons that may be employed.

Home-Coming at Des Moines.
The First Annual Home-Coming of the Iowa Press and Authors' club held the past week at Des Moines was an event of much interest and of joy unconfined to those whose life pathway led to the scenes of this notable reunion. As Hamlin Garland aptly remarked to the brothers and sisters gathered about him, "I wish to emphasize the fact that this event has distinct historical significance."

John P. Irish was there, that peerless son of Iowa, native to the soil with his manly bearing and silver-tinted words, mainly within the bounds of right reason intrenched by sound logic. He was not a spell-binder, with crosses of gold mid flowers of rhetoric, vehemently presented with wild gesticulations to arouse his hearers to action, but was calm dignified, eloquent and forceful. He was an Iowa City boy, to the manor born and Iowa was proud of him. Is it possible that John P. Irish has left that younger, rosy-cheeked manhood and reached that point, on life's rugged roadway where the steno-board reads, "Threescore years and ten?" It is not only possible, but it is a recorded fact, for he was born in Iowa City January 1, 1843.

As an editor and orator he won his spurs and his golden fame still glitters in memory's sight. He is an entertaining companion, brilliant in conversation and as a conversationalist always said something when he spoke. Socially he seemed to forget that there was a letter in the alphabet called I and which some people use very frequently as a pronoun. It was not only entertaining, but really intensely entertaining to listen to a modest recital of many ups and downs of his young and struggling life. He grew into early manhood a learned, cultured man, sought not only in Iowa but in other states, to speak to great audiences of people and never failed to captivate his hearers. Forty years ago John P. Irish was a power in Iowa and would have risen to a high place had he been in politics with the "ins" instead of the "outs." He was with the minority party here all the years the writer knew him. He was not an office seeker, however, and lost no flesh on account of being held away from the public crib. He seemed to fatten on the deprivation. He always kept the respect and confidence of the people of his home city and the state and when he determined to leave Iowa and locate in the golden west there was felt a universal regret in Iowa, and there were many people at Des Moines at the first annual home-coming of the Iowa press and authors, who went for the chief purpose of shaking the knightly and cordial hand of their old favorite.

Then among the names appearing upon the roll of those who sent in regrets are the names of John J. Hamilton, for a long time interested in the publication of the Des Moines Daily News and also in the editorial department of that sprightly sheet and his sister, Ella, now Mrs. Ella Hamilton Durlay of Los Angeles, Cal., who was connected prominently with the editorial staff of the News, a young woman of native ability and fine liter-

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated give "California Syrup of Figs."

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

ary attainments. John J. sent regrets from Pasadena, Cal.

J. B. Weaver, the respected son of the late Gen. James B. Weaver, known in his career all over the state and in national affairs, presided at the evening meeting.

The massing of the names brings up old memories which are very tender to those remaining in Iowa. At one of the meetings among others, Colonel Irish delivered a forceful talk on the pioneers and their greatness, and extended a glowing invitation to the four hundred to bid the rest of the country to San Francisco next year to commemorate "the greatest engineering achievement of history."

Come to Keokuk.
That is all very well for Col. Irish but a substitute motion is in order, and here it is. His greatest engineering achievement in history is outside of the great grain and meat belt of the middle west which make Iowa and the country famous, and in this great belt there is another wonderful engineering achievement, which is looked upon with admiration and wonder by thousands of visitors from all over our own broad land, east, west, north and south, many of them returning to take another look. Let the four hundred enthusiastically unite in bidding the rest of the country to Keokuk where many attractions await them and extended hands of hospitality to welcome them to one of the most interesting cities, geographically and historically, in the broad union. Question is called. Keokuk is in the center of the union and of the world, far more centrally located to accommodate American citizens than San Francisco, more accessible to foreign citizens except China and Japan, Keokuk will give the boys and girls a royal welcome, hospitable treatment and a big feed.

Besides, the visitors may have the privilege of a splendid ride on the smooth surface of the waters of the big lake above the water power dam and over the same spot where the Indian prince of peace, Keokuk, and his faithful tribesmen glided in their bark canoes, years ago.

Almost Any Kind.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wreth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everyone uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

FLAUNTED COLORS IN FACE OF ARMY

Barbara Fritchle Was Real Personage and Whittier's Poem Describes Her Brave Deed.

ERECTED A MONUMENT

Shaft Was Unveiled at Frederick, Maryland in September—Paper Giving Accounts Received Here.

Barbara Fritchle, she who waved the stars and stripes at the rebels, and dared them to fire on her, but to spare their country's flag, was real. Despite the efforts of some of the iconoclasts of history to shatter this pretty little story which the Quaker poet, Whittier, put into verse, Barbara Fritchle has been rewarded, at last.

At Frederick, Maryland, early in September a monument was unveiled to this heroine of the civil war. Papers from Frederick have been sent to Keokuk people, telling of the unveiling of the shaft to this heroine. Not only are the accounts interesting for their story value, but they prove beyond doubt the genuineness of the grand old lady who flaunted the colors at Stonewall Jackson.

"With the air cool and crisp as on that memorable September morn in 1862, and with the sun shining down upon the clustered spires, the exercises attendant to unveiling of the shaft in Mt. Olivet cemetery to Barbara Fritchle, the heroine of Whittier's poem was held Wednesday afternoon," the Frederick papers of September 11, chronicle the unveiling.

The Hon. A. S. Roe gave the principal speech at the unveiling. "For more than fifty years the deed thus recorded has brightened age, inspired youth and ennobled woman," he said. "More than a year had slipped away ere the righteous work of the Maryland woman came to the ears of the Massachusetts poet, and his metrical version carried by the Atlantic Monthly to its many readers throughout the north and west was easily worth a whole brigade of soldiers to the union cause. The act and poem again linked the state of Charles Carroll and John Hanson with that of Adams and Hancock."

Mr. Roe said Whittier had been credited with saying Barbara was a myth, but he produced a letter written by the dead poet himself, in which he thanked Mr. Roe for the picture of her grave, and spoke of her bravery, and the fact that although details in the poem might have been incorrect, the substantial facts remained.

There are pictures of the monument to the heroine and of the grave of herself and her husband. Also of the old home where she lived, from the upper window of which she saw Stonewall Jackson and legions march by.

Barbara Hauer Fritchle was born in Lancaster, December 3, 1766. In 1806 she married John Casper Fritchle. The flag waving incident occurred in September in 1862. Two days later she presented General Reno with the flag, and when shortly afterwards he was killed in battle, the old flag was found on his person. Barbara Fritchle died December 18, 1862, aged 96 years and 15 days.

CROSS BILL FILED FOR BIG DAMAGES

$10,000 is Amount Asked for by Defendant in Case of Wappich vs. Angell, et al.

A cross bill and counter claim has been filed by William Underwood, one of the defendants in the case of William F. Wappich vs. Angell Bros., Mark Angell and William Underwood. The cross bill asks for damages of $10,000.

It is claimed in the cross bill that the writ of attachment asked for was maliciously sued on, and that the defendant has been damaged to the amount of $10,000.

DEATH OF AN AGED RESIDENT

At the Family Residence at 510 South Sixth Street—Several Children Survive Her.

Mrs. Isabel Fallon, one of Keokuk's venerable residents, died Friday night at the family residence 510 South Sixth street, at the age of seventy-seven years. She was a faithful member of St. Peter's Catholic church, earnest in performing her religious and social duties. She had a large number of friends and acquaintances in the city who are saddened by her death.

She is survived by the following children: Isabel and Catherine of this city, Celia Fallon of Des Moines, John Fallon of Hannibal, Mo., and Ed Fallon of Bisbee, Arizona.

FIRST AUXILIARY PROGRAM TUESDAY

Student Members of Monday Music Club Will Present First of Season's Concerts This Week.

MANY ARE GRADUATED

Number of Those Who Were in Auxiliary Last Year Have Been Transferred to Regular Programs.

The Students Auxiliary of the Monday Music club will hold its first meeting of the season on Tuesday evening, October 13, in the Y. W. C. A. auditorium. The young people have planned an interesting program and the auxiliary is starting its year's work very auspiciously. The students auxiliary is one of the greatest factors in the city for education. It has proven to be a remarkable incentive and influence among the younger musicians.

A number of the students have been transferred to the regular club programs when their degree of proficiency merited the promotion. This year will find a number preparing for the promotion, also.

All students over fourteen years of age are considered active members, and those under fourteen are associate members. Both active and associate members are entitled to attend all regular meetings of the Monday Music club, which includes two artist recitals as well as a number of artist programs. Those desiring to become members may send their names to Miss Helen Palmer Gray, or to Mr. Marshall Fulton.

All music club members and the friends of the young people are cordially invited to attend the meetings of the auxiliary. Some of the programs will be prefaced by a short, informal talk on musical appreciation by Miss Hughes.

The program for Tuesday is as follows:

- Program.
Piano solo, Pierrette, Chaminade—Mr. Marshall Fulton.
Vocal solo, Japanese Love Song, Thomas—Miss Beulah Weil.
Reading, Rising in the World—Miss Mildred Rayburn.
Violin solo, Torch Dance, German—Marie Mosely.

UNUSUAL DEMAND FOR AUTO PLATES

Prosperity of the Iowa Farmer Shown in Heavy Registration in State Department.

That the farmers of Iowa are prosperous is indicated by the number of automobiles being registered daily with the state automobile department, according to W. B. Allen, secretary of state. At this time of the year the registrations generally dwindle down to only a few a day. This year in September and October the registrations have come in at the rate of fifty to sixty a day. There are but 1,000 pair of 1914 plates left and it is likely that another order may be sent in for additional plates.
