WILD DUCKS.

I heard the wild ducks passing in the night,

From shadow skies their call came dimly down,

And the soft magic of their yearning flight

Swept the dull spaces of the sleeping town.

Into my chamber came the breath of spring.

Pregnant with promise from awakening buds;

Into my heart came fancies, billowing

With the glad rhythm of sun-loosened floods.

I saw the wind-blown crocus on the hills,

With the fresh starring of anemones.

Heard the thin laughter that the brown brook trills

Under the shelter of low-stooping trees.

A car clanged distantly. Across the way

A drowsy watchman waked with sudden fright,

In the dim court a soft enchantment lay,

I heard the wild ducks passing in the night.

—Rose Henderson.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

The true patriot is he who works and votes, with the same courage that he would show in arms, in order that the aspirations of noble people may be embodied in the noblest rulers.

—Henry Van Dyke.

Ammunition factory managers may be excited, but they are not worrying about scarcity of business.

Bird boxes of concrete are said to be just as inviting to the birds as those of wood, and easier and cheaper to make.

Shears with their handles extended to one side have been invented to enable a person to follow a pattern more closely.

Some men distinguished in executive capacity occasionally make investments in fine gold bricks. In the estate of the late Darius Miller of Chicago, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, there is $393,000 in stocks listed as "desperate," but there is $507,000 in securities reported good.
