COLE'S High Oven Range

"When it comes to convenience, economy of fuel, and space, this range is a perfect wonder. It is two stoves in one—a combined heater and range."

"It cooks our meals and heats our rooms on less fuel than any other range in the market."

"Think of it—burns either soft coal, slack or lignite. They are all cheap fuels and the coal that cooks our supper will keep our rooms warm all night."

"What more could we ask?"

—Yesterday was an ideal early winter day. The day was one of the sort in which every sound was clearly heard. Numerous parties of hunters invaded the woods, and the popping of guns was accompaniment to the still gray afternoon.

—There is quite a coating of ice over some of the small ponds which have formed in the gullies near the city. There were times not so long ago when skating was a Thanksgiving pastime. Of late years, however, this has not been possible.

—Speaking of good cheese—call at C. W. S. Wednesday.

—A mechanics' lien has been filed by W. P. Sutton against Anna H. Sage for $1,040.90. A lien has also been filed by John W. Young for $802.36. A mechanics' lien has been filed against Nettie Kirby and H. H. Kirby by Etta and Prasse.

—There will be no issue of The Daily Gate City Thursday evening—Thanksgiving day. Merchants who are making a special out of Thanksgiving day merchandise should not forget to use the Tuesday and Wednesday evening issues of this paper for such special announcements.

—The Blandinsville Star-Gazette prints the following indictment of the quail hunters: A big red-faced man will carry an eight pound gun ten miles through the brush to kill a six ounce bird and call it sport. He is not driven by hunger, and the game is not worth the ammunition. It is the remains of the average instinct of brutal ancestors that civilization has not been able to eradicate from all our natures. It is simply a savage joy in killing, with no pity for the cripples that hide away to die. Our friends, the birds, must look to the humanity and intelligence of the farmer for their protection and we are glad to see so many of them warning the butcher to stay out.

—An Iowa farmer has devised a rat trap upon which he claims no patent, but which any one troubled with rats can use. He purchased a big galvanized iron bucket—or garbage pail—and placed it in the barn. He filled it two-thirds full of water and on top of the water a layer of chaffy oats an inch deep. The next morning he emptied out the mixture of water, oats and drowned rats. He rebaited his trap and the next morning he figured results, and found that he aimlessly, but with malice aforethought, had gotten rid of 89 rats.

—Navoo Independent: J. W. Reimbold has about completed a large barge which he will use in the transferring of passengers and freight across the river here during the winter. There is a top or cabin on the barge which can be heated, thus making it comfortable for passengers, who surely will welcome the innovation, as they will be protected from the cold and winds. The barge will be propelled by a 40-horse power gasoline engine. We understand that Mr. Reimbold will attempt to keep open a channel through the ice during the winter.

The Answer to the Clothes Problem

Think what you pay for an ordinary suit or coat, then consider the price of a Wooltex. There would be no difference as far as dollars and cents go, for with all their superior qualities Wooltex garments are no higher priced than the ordinary kind.

But Here's a Difference Worth Your Consideration

To begin with, every Wooltex garment is built of all-wool fabrics chemically treated; skilled men tailors make the workmanship perfect—it must be so or the garment doesn't leave the factory.

And every garment carries with it an individual guarantee of two full seasons' service.

It needs no pencil and paper, no perplexing deduction to prove to the clever and economical woman that the vast difference is in favor of Wooltex.

FURS! FURS!! FURS!!!

We are now showing a splendid line of Furs in all the season's newest styles. Beautiful Fur Sets in great variety. Separate Muffs and Scarfs in all grades. You will find our assortments the best and our prices the lowest in the city. Buy now.
