SIX AND SIX IS WAY JURY STOOD

No Agreement Was Reached in the Case of State vs. Irwin Ceitz, Who Was Tried on Burglary Charges.

CAN'T BREAK DEADLOCK

Jurors Tell Court That It Would Be Impossible to Agree and Were Discharged During the Afternoon.

A hung jury was the result of the case of the state of Iowa against Irwin Ceitz.

The jurors reported at two o'clock this afternoon that they stood six and six. The court inquired of each member of the jury if they thought there was any chance of agreement. They answered that there was none in their opinion. The court sent them back to the jury room for further deliberation.

Later in the afternoon the jurors were discharged.

The case was given to the jury last night just before six o'clock. The jurors had consequently been out over twenty hours when the court called them in. They showed the effects of their long deliberation. Every member of the panel showed the strain under which he had been put. They looked haggard and tired.

When the court asked the jurors to tell how they stood, without telling for whom they stood, Christian Koepf announced that the jury was evenly divided six and six. The court continued then in the usual procedure, asking several members if they thought an agreement could be reached. They answered that they could not, and when all twelve had been solicited as to their opinions they answered unanimously that there was no chance of agreement.

The court said he would send them back to their room for a little further deliberation while he consulted the attorneys.

Further jury work will not be taken up until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Ten jurors only would be available, as the court said it would be tyrannical to order these jurors to stay in court after they were discharged this afternoon. As there was an objection to examining these ten men, only, the next case was put off until tomorrow morning.

Society

Two Kinds. There are two kinds of people on earth today; Just two kinds of people, no more, I say.

Not the sinner and saint, for 'tis well understood The good are half bad and the bad are half good.

Not the rich and the poor, for, to count a man's wealth, You must first know the state of his conscience and health; Not the humble and proud, for, in life's little span, Who puts on vain airs is not counted a man.

Not the happy and sad, for the swift flying years Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.

No, the two kinds of people on earth that I mean Are the people who lift and the people who lean.

Wherever you go you will find the world's masses Are always divided in just these two classes; And, oddly enough, you will find too, I ween, There is only one lifter to twenty who lean.

In which class are you? Are you easing the load Of overtaxed lifters who toll down the road?

Or are you a leener, who lets others bear Your portion of labor and worry and care? —Henry P. Lyman-Wheaton.

Little-Brownell Wedding.

The Sunday issue of the Idaho Statesman of Boise, contains the following concerning the wedding of M. Harold Brownell and Miss Annabel Little. Mr. Brownell is well known here, this being his residence for a number of years.

Beautiful in its extreme simplicity was the marriage of Miss Annabel Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Little, and Mr. M. Harold Brownell of Halley, which was solemnized by Rev. Arthur Sullens at the home of the bride's parents on Harrison boulevard Wednesday evening.

The decorations were not elaborate, but were especially effective. The windows at one end of the drawing room were covered with a mass of shaggy white chrysanthemums and ferns which extended from the floor to the ceiling. Here on either side of a prayer rug were placed two tall cathedral candles which formed an improvised altar for the bridal party.

Just before the party appeared Mrs. Frans F. Brandt sang "Oh, What a Wonderful Thing It Is," following which the orchestra played the Lohengrin bridal chorus, and the little ribbon bearers, Katherine Lemp and Master Jack Skillern, Jr., appeared, the one in a dainty lingerie dress made Empire style, and the other in an Oliver Twist suit of white French serge. After the ribbon isle was formed Mrs. Jack Skillern, matron of honor, and Miss Happy Boyce, of Chicago, maid of honor, appeared, followed by Master "Billie" Skillern, clad in white, who carried the ring in the heart of a rose. Then came the beautiful bride on the arm of her father, who gave her into the keeping of the bridegroom, who met them, with his best man, Ray Brownell, at the altar. After Mr. Sullens' impressive marriage was read, Mrs. Brandt sang "Oh Perfect Love."

The bride was said by all who saw her to be one of the most beautiful brides ever seen in the city. Her gown was of cream fall silk embroidered in seed pearls, with a full overskirt of filmy silk net, which was bordered with a deep hem of the faille. The skirt was made short, but from the shoulders fell a long court train, pleated slightly at the top. The waist was a jacket effect of the silk, pearl embroidered, over a bodice of the net. The sleeves were wrist length and extended almost to the neck. A Medic collar, pearl embroidered and festoons of pearl strands from under arm to neck, formed the unusual decorations of the bodice. A long tulle veil, with a soft frill of real lace about the face, was fastened with orange blossoms over either ear. The bride's only ornament was a handsome bar pin of diamonds and pearls set in platinum, the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a sheaf of white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Skillern wore a gown of pale green chiffon over charmeuse, three chiffon skirts falling over the charmeuse foundation. A deep girdle of velvet of a shade darker than the chiffon, encircled the waist. The dress was trimmed with pearl and crystal beads.

Miss Boyce wore a frock made from a beautiful East Indian fabric, a combination of green silk and cloth of gold. It was made Empire style and trimmed with broad bands of gold embroidery. The corsage was fashioned from flesh-colored tulle. Both Mrs. Skillern and Miss Boyce carried arm bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. The bride's mother wore a handsome gown of black lace and jet.

Mrs. Ray Brownell wore a white charmeuse, lace trimmed.

The refreshment table was covered with an exquisite imported cloth of lace and embroidery spread over pink silk. A basket of pink roses tied with pink moire ribbon formed the centerpiece of the table.

Presiding at the table were Mesdames Givinni, F. F. Johnson, John MacLane, Ray Brownell, U. N. Northrop and Abernathy.

Mr. and Mrs. Brownell left on the evening train for Honolulu, where they will spend several weeks. They will make their home at Halley, where the bridegroom is in business.

Miss Strickler is Honored.

Among the parties given for Miss Grace Strickler whose wedding announcement for New Year's day has been made, was an afternoon Kensington given by Miss Beatrice McManus. Sixteen young women were entertained. During the afternoon each hemmed a tea towel and embroidered her own initials in the corner as a reminder of the afternoon. At five o'clock refreshments were served in the dining room which was decorated in many red and white flowers. Mrs. James McCarthy and Miss McManus presided at the table.

She distributed the gifts from a very handsomely decorated tree. The members of the class brought their children and everyone in the company received a gift. Miss Rose Peiz sang a Christmas carol which was a pleasant feature. Refreshments were served by eight members of the class who were hostesses for the afternoon. The individual cakes which were a part of the menu, were iced in white and had on them a spray of holly, or a Christmas tree or mistletoe done in colored icing. The Trinity Men's club sent a large box of candy as their contribution to the party. The parlors of the church were decorated in ropes of green, with red bells. The hostesses were Mrs. J. C. Guilty of White Slavery. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 17.—Claire Chennault, 27, a married man, and principal of the public school of Gilbert, La., today was found guilty of white slavery in one of the strangest triangular cases ever heard here.
