

FIVE YEAR TERM IS LOGAN'S IDEA

Adjutant General of Iowa Thinks Something of This Sort Would Provide for Reserves Without Increase

WANTS BUILDING BUILT

Would Use This for Housing Uniforms and Equipments Issued to Iowa Troops by Government.

Five year enlistments in the Iowa National Guard is the recommendation of Adjutant General Guy E. Logan in his biennial report filed with Governor Clarke.

An increase in the number of active guardsmen is not advised, but General Logan proposes that a tactical unit be made of the guards and also that a reserve system be adopted.

To get the reserves General Logan would require enlistments for five years instead of three years. The first three years of service would be under the colors and the last two years as reserves.

The militia organization of the state at present consist of four regiments of infantry and one battery of artillery. To provide a tactical unit General Logan would reduce the number of infantry regiments to three.

To get a tactical unit it would be necessary to have a brigade headquarters, with proper staff officers, one brigade of infantry to consist of three regiments, one squadron of cavalry, two batteries of field artillery, one company of engineers, one company of signal corps, one field hospital company and one ambulance company.

"This would require the disbandment of one regiment of infantry," General Logan says in his report. "and the organization of one battery of artillery, four troops of cavalry, one company of engineers, one company of signal corps and one ambulance company."

The officers of the disbanded regiment would be placed on the extra list and assigned to duty in case of vacancies and the companies to other organizations.

With the exception of second lieutenant General Logan would promote all other officers according to seniority. He would have the brigade commander serve five years.

A fireproof building to house uniforms and equipments issued to Iowa by the government is urged. Appropriations for the batteries and engineer company also are asked.

GERMANY TO BE STRANGLING BY WAR

our ship yards, our wealth, our British tenacity. We will go under rather than give in.

You ask me do I think Germany can be strangled and the war ended by starvation and attrition. I believe it can, but the process will be one of years rather than of months.

Germany is a self supporting country in almost every article necessary for war and the support of her unfortunate people. Some American friends have urged that we establish in Washington some rival organization similar to that of Ambassador Bernstorff, Dr. Bernburg and German American brewers and other moulders of public opinion, for the purpose of informing the American public regarding the British attitude.

But our case, in my opinion needs no such effort. The bullying of Belgium, the huge sums demanded from French towns in blackmail, the killing of women and children at Scarborough—not as the Germans pretend in a fortress, but in a seaside resort like Atlantic City—the dropping of bombs on Paris from aeroplanes—which has been stopped, owing to American intervention—not to mention Louvain, Malines, etc., all provide us with all of the answers we require to German militarism. My French friends tell me that they have no intention whatever of replying to Germany's accusations in the United States. They will rely entirely on American fair play and American friendship for the nation that came to their help in the war of the revolution. Russia regards with disdain the German attacks in the United States and so far as the Japanese are concerned, Americans must admit they have kept strictly to the letter of their agreement with the allies.

As seen from this side of the Atlantic the German efforts to frighten Americans seem crude. I don't remember any time in American history when your people have been frightened. You are told to beware of British naval domination. You are told to be careful lest the tiny Japanese nation attack you in the Pacific. Americans are well aware of the size of the English navy and they know that for one hundred years it has been friendly to them. Any Japanese that I have been acquainted with was cognizant of the latent power of the United States. They know that Americans like the English, are generally unprepared for war but that, being once aroused, they will carry their war to the finish.

It is no doubt disappointing to England and American business men to learn that there are people like myself who regard this gigantic struggle as a matter of years rather than months, but from the most sordid point of view it is better that the world should be rid of this menace to its peace once for all, rather than to have some sort of patched up peace, by treaty or compromise, which would merely allow the Germans to fall back for another spring.

The part played by Americans in this war has aroused much enthusiasm over here. The only new determining factor in warfare is the aeroplane, the invention of Wilbur and Orville Wright of Dayton, Ohio. Your ambassador at Berlin, Gerard, your late ambassador at Paris, Herrick, have earned the thanks of the allies and even of Germany. Your gifts to our Red Cross, your hospital spirit, your American ambulance in Paris, your Santa Claus ship, have evidenced American sympathy. We have been extraordinarily patient in Great Britain about the war, so extraordinary patient that numbers of our people had begun to think that the day of wars was over.

The Kaiser and his caviling agent, Prince Henry, duped the members of our governments, diplomatists, business men, university professors in both our country and yours while he perfected this machine of his. Some of his satellites really persuaded themselves that this military monster of war was an engine of peace. Others, on both sides of the Atlantic were highly placed toadies whose views were entirely twisted by favor of royal smile. It is fortunate that the German army and the present German government have produced no Bismarck, no Von Moltke, no Von Roon. It is a superb organization with no brains at the top. A Bismarck would have known that Canada would have rushed to the help of the mother country with its wonderful supply of men, war material and money. A Bismarck would have at least one strong friend among the neutral nations. The German soldiers have proven themselves possessed of magnificent courage and the story of the death of Admiral Von Spee and his two sons in the battle off the Falkland island has aroused, I am sure, almost as much sympathy in England as in Germany. The allies have foes worthy of their steel and the fine flower of England would be sent forth against the war lord in aid of France, Belgium, Russia, Serbia, Montenegro and Japan with an affection and enthusiasm by the mothers and sisters of England, but with the same determination that won Trafalgar and Waterloo a century back.

"This would require the disbandment of one regiment of infantry," General Logan says in his report. "and the organization of one battery of artillery, four troops of cavalry, one company of engineers, one company of signal corps and one ambulance company."

The officers of the disbanded regiment would be placed on the extra list and assigned to duty in case of vacancies and the companies to other organizations.

With the exception of second lieutenant General Logan would promote all other officers according to seniority. He would have the brigade commander serve five years.

A fireproof building to house uniforms and equipments issued to Iowa by the government is urged. Appropriations for the batteries and engineer company also are asked.

NO DANGER OF TROUBLE FOR U. S.

Individual case has been the subject of a concrete protest.

That this protest is the basis for a demand for damages after the war, was evident from the president's explanation that wherever a government wrongs maritime rights of a neutral nation, the offending nation eventually has to pay for its transgressions. From this statement it was inferred that, as in other conflicts, the alleged injured neutral—America in this instance—expects to ask millions of dollars in reparation.

The president contended this sweeping document is only a question of the rules of international reparation. He emphatically asserted that as far as theory is concerned there is no debating America's position in the situation. England herself, he said, had taken a similar position in former wars.

By Ed. L. Keen, United Press Staff Correspondent. LONDON, Dec. 29.—Great Britain will give the most careful consideration to the protest of the United States regarding the holding up of American shipping. This was emphasized at the foreign office today. It was stated that while officially the government still has no knowledge of what the United States desires, the text of the communication has already been communicated to the foreign office by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador at Washington. Arrangements have been made for Ambassador Page to present the note to Sir Edward Grey. It will at once be referred to the cabinet for consideration.

There is no desire here to embarrass shipping unduly, but the government has determined that neither Germany nor Austria shall receive aid from any neutral source. It is believed here that the answer of England to the demand will be a promise to do everything in its power to obviate causes for complaint and to pay all legitimate damages resulting from her action. But whether there will

BIG CROP OF ICE ON UPPER RIVER

Dam at This Point Forms Lake all the Way to Burlington Which Freezes Smooth.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Dec. 29.—The sudden drop in the mercury of Saturday put things in fine condition for the ice gatherers on the Mississippi river and this year the work will be greater than ever and the product will be the finest gathered by dealers in this vicinity.

The effect of the great dam at Keokuk has been to create a vast lake of almost still water all the way to Burlington. The surface of this lake froze smooth.

The depth is more than a foot and is rapidly increasing. Many chutes and fields have been prepared up and down the fifty miles of lake front and thousands of men already are engaged in preparing the fields for the harvest. It is estimated that at least a million tons of ice will be taken from these fields.

The Burlington, the Wabash, the Toledo, Peoria and Western, the Santa Fe and the Rock Island all will obtain their supply from this lake and hundreds of trainloads of ice will be sent south during this month and next.

Meanwhile skaters have turned Lake Cooper into an immense rink.

AMUSEMENTS

"Mutt & Jeff" at the Grand.

Bud Fisher, the New York American's clever cartoon artist doesn't allow an opportunity to escape for extracting humor from every complication or phase of national or international government. Like the present financial stringency, "Mutt & Jeff" visit to Mexico is purely "psychological," which means science of the human mind or soul, therefore "Mutt and Jeff's" sole object in going to the seat of war is to make you laugh and forget the less agreeable things of your mind, or that you have a sole of a heel. It is Mr. Hill's intention to keep "Mutt and Jeff" ever new, by giving them an entire new play and production each year. When all of the interesting points of interest in America have been visited by our heroes, they will invade Europe. Just now, Mexico, that "comic opera" country, where revolutions grow on trees, seems to be the logical point of Bud Fisher's brand of comedy. The country and environment give ample opportunity for scenic display and beautiful electrical effects. "Mutt and Jeff," truly American in spirit, as long as the spirits are plentiful, join the United States navy and sail for Vera Cruz, where they succeed in creating so much laughter that the Mexican navy, consisting of one "gravy boat and a soup tureen," surrendered while the Mexican marines were only "half shot," however the big city show of "Mutt & Jeff in Mexico" with a car load of brand new scenery and a cargo of pretty girls will visit Keokuk and show in the Grand next Thursday, Dec. 31.—Advertisement.

At Hippodrome. One point in favor of the management of the Hippodrome is that whenever a show does not come up to what is represented, it is canceled. The show recently playing was cancelled upon a short notice and a special feature bill was wired for and was received this morning for today's and tomorrow's use as follows:

A Vitagraph special in two parts, "The Girl From Prosperity," featuring Billy Quirk, Anna Stewart, Lucille Lee and Rose Tapley. "Bronco Billy, Gun Man," with Anderson and a frustrated animated comedy by Lubin, "A Trip to the Moon."

Coming Thursday: Tom Powell's Peerless Minstrels.—Advertisement.

White or Black? [United Press Leased Wire Service.] DENVER, Colo., Dec. 29.—Mrs. Alma Boone Little, "the bride with out a race," who is trying to prove herself of white and not negro parentage, will terminate her quest for proof in Denver. Word was received today that she has left Cincinnati and will reach here tomorrow.

In Cincinnati she obtained affidavits from a negro woman, who she says was her foster mother, Mrs. Luella Wade Jefferson. It is said the papers declare Mrs. Little was merely an adopted child and had no negro blood. Mrs. Little's husband, a Detroit druggist, has sued for divorce on the ground that she is of African descent.

Amnesty in Mexico. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—President Wilson stated to callers today that this government has advised granting of general amnesty in Mexico.

Whether the request will have the desired effect has not been made known by the various Mexican leaders.

The president held, however, that executions in Mexico had not been on a wholesale scale.

Short Visit by Cold Wave. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—A heavy snowfall over the Chicago district today preceded the arrival of another cold wave, the weather man announces in enroute from the west. Zero temperatures are predicted for tonight and tomorrow. The cold wave is to be of short duration in the middle west, according to local forecasters, moving on to the east late Wednesday.

Editor Died at Desk. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 29.—W. S. Park, 50, for twenty years editor and publisher of the Gardner Chronicle, died of heart failure in his office today while writing an editorial.

Returning from the post-office, Mrs. Park found her husband lying across his desk, apparently asleep. One hand still clutched a pencil and his head lay over an unfinished editorial.

They Shot to Frighten. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 29.—Canadian militiamen who killed one American duck hunter and seriously wounded another on Lake Erie yesterday, today declared they were simply trying to frighten the men and did not aim to hit them.

American Vice Consul J. B. Curtis, stationed at Fort Erie, Ont., talked to the soldiers and obtained their statement which he will forward to Secretary Bryan. Canadian militia officers have completed their preliminary investigation and have forwarded a sealed report to General Samuel Hughes, chief of the Canadian militia.

Smith will be buried tomorrow. Dorsch, it is now thought, will recover.

Canadian civil authorities will begin a probe of the shooting tomorrow afternoon at Fort Erie.

Banker is Dead. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 29.—Walter Barker, president of the Commercial German National bank of Peoria, died last night in Waukegan, Wis.

He was sixty-four years old and reputed to be a millionaire.

DOES ANY ONE WANT COMMUNITY TREE?

Big Fir Must Come Down Soon and There is Chance to Get it if One Wants It.

Shortly after New Year's the community Christmas tree must be taken down from the government lawn. Last year the tree was cut up and used for grade fires, the red cedar being the finest sort of wood for that purpose. Should any one wish the tree, application should be made within the next few days to the committee, Mrs. D. A. Collier, Miss Anne B. Davis or Miss Agnes Trimble.

PERSONALS

Bert Reeves of Omaha, after a short visit with his parents Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Reeves, 112 North Second street, returned to his home today.

Johnson Heywood returned to his home in Minneapolis on Sunday night after spending Christmas in the city. Mrs. Heywood and baby Anne will remain for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jno. D. Rubidge.

Miss Josephine Bell has returned from Fort Madison after spending Christmas with Dr. R. S. Reimers and family.

THE WEATHER

For Keokuk and vicinity: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday. Cold wave tonight.

For Iowa: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday. Cold wave tonight. High northwest winds diminishing.

For Missouri: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday. Cold wave tonight. High northwest winds diminishing.

For Illinois: Unsettled with rain or snow this afternoon and northeast portion tonight. Wednesday fair. Colder tonight and Wednesday with cold wave.

Weather Conditions. The northwestern storm has advanced rapidly, and is central in eastern Iowa this morning.

Much warmer weather preceded the storm from the Mississippi valley to the eastern coast, with show in the northern and rain in the southern sections. Clearing colder weather is following from the west, and an area of high pressure extends from North Dakota to the southern mountain region.

Conditions indicate generally fair, colder weather, with brisk winds for this section tonight, and Wednesday, and a cold wave tonight, with the lowest temperature about ten above zero.

United Press Associations Telegraph Market Report Over Gate City Leased Wire.

Grain Review. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Wheat traders were feeling their way nervously today as the result of yesterday's sharp decline occasioned by James A. Patten's unloading. At the start today prices took a further slump of a shade to 1/2 and continued to go lower, but the decline was checked before noon with only fractional losses for the morning.

Corn wavered between bearish foreign news and unsettled weather and at noon prices were steady to 1/2 above last night's close.

Trade in oats was very dull with the tendency toward slightly higher levels.

Provisions went a shade higher at the start because of higher hog prices, but later eased off to a trifle below last night's close.

Postoffice Change. Donnellson Review: Our new postmaster, Chris Hafner, expects to assume the duties of the office about the first of the year. Possibly the new building will not be completed at that date but it will shortly after. They have been delayed somewhat in not getting the glass front. We are not going to lay in any large amount of postage stamps previous to the change, because we have the promise of cheaper things under a democratic administration, and possibly we can buy thirteen two cent stamps for a quarter anyway, although we haven't asked Christ about it.
