Commencement Jewelry

While a low price is always attractive, even when the article in question is jewelry, it should also be a reason for careful scrutiny of quality and finish. The Ayres & Chapman stocks of fine Commencement jewelry have their origin in those factories that stand-for all that is best in the jewelry business. They are built up to a standard and not down to a price and in considering the three great essentials, weight of actual gold used, beauty of design and care in the making and finishing of each article, you will find in the Ayres & Chapman offerings, a noticeable quality not associated with cheap

Price is a vital question to be sure. Price may also be an actual misrepresentation face of things today's reaction in prices on the stock exchange was based on increasing doubts as to Ger-many's acquiescences in the full terms President Wilson's note. Such doubts, presumably, arose from the cabled utterances in some usually in-spired quarters of the German press; possibly, also from argument on general principles.

That Germany's representatives in this country had warned the Berlin authority of the American state of mind on the recent outrages, was to some extent accepted as a reassuring fact; so was the extraordinary ovation of yesterday to President Wilson and the fleet, whose real meaning nobody in New York misunderstood.
