Prof. Henry A. Adrain Tells Big Audience About Training Human Plant Along Lines for Best Results.

ARCADIANS' PROGRAMS

Musical Organization Gave Excellent Program at Both Sessions of Chautauqua Yesterday at Hamilton.

TODAY AND TOMORROW.

Program Today. Afternoon—The Arcadians. Evening—The Arcadians and Dr. Herber.

Tuesday's Program. Afternoon—Herons and J. A. Burns. Evening—The Herons and Burgdoffer.

[Special to The Gate City.] HAMILTON, Ill., Aug. 9.—The big tent at the Hamilton chautauqua yesterday was filled to the edges and overflowed on every side with the crowd which enjoyed the exceptionally fine programs given yesterday.

The order could not have been better, the children who are omnipresent at a chautauqua and who sometimes make life a burden for their elders, were as quiet and decorous as a deacon in church. This condition of quiet and consequent pleasure is due to the diplomacy of the platform manager, the Rev. Nelson Hall. This is the first year that a local man has been chosen platform manager, but everyone is hoping that it will not be the last. The Rev. Mr. Hall is an ideal platform manager; he makes his announcements clear and doesn't wear the audience out with long speeches and he keeps order and all in a smiling, friendly way.

There were a great many Keokuk people at the chautauqua yesterday and if anybody living in Hancock county wasn't there, it would take the census man to find out who was absent.

Sometimes the criticism is made that the Sunday chautauqua programs are out of accord with a Sunday atmosphere. No one could wish any truth make that indictment yesterday. The program throughout was most conservative. Miss Dunbar, the leader of the Arcadian orchestra, said: "We always remember that Sunday is Sunday, but I must confess that I've never been able to find the difference between a note in the key of C in a sacred piece and a note in the key of C in a secular piece."

Sermon in Morning. The sermon of the morning was by the Rev. H. F. Krueger, pastor of the M. E. church of Warsaw, who spoke on "The Power of the Gospel." The Rev. Davies of the Hamilton M. E. church, presided.

The afternoon program began at two o'clock with a prelude by the Arcadians—a singing orchestra made up of six young women, who read, and sing, and play all sorts of instruments and indeed as the platform manager said, "They do everything but plain sewing." They probably could do that, for they do everything well. The leader, Miss Dunbar, is particularly clever in her impersonations, the pianist is unusually talented and the soprano soloist gave much pleasure to the audience by her numbers. The afternoon's program was: Orchestra—

- (a) Confidence. (b) Patriotic Medley. Chorus— (a) Just for Today. (b) I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old.

Violin—Love Song. Soprano solo—Alma with Me. Orchestra—After Vespers

Burbank Man's Lecture. The lecture for the afternoon was by Prof. Henry A. Adrain of San Diego who is known as "the Burbank man." He has two lectures, one on the line of cultivation of plants and the other on the cultivation of children.

Last year he gave the lecture on plant cultivation and this year he spoke of the cultivation of children. He is one of the sort of men one remembers and the lecture of yesterday was as if it had been the second in a series. Several times he said: "You remember I told you last year," and sure enough the audience did remember.

His subject was "Training the Human Plant." He said in part: "Homeward bound from a hard day's work, a man stopped to rest beside a creek and saw growing along the bank the deadly nightshade. He knew the plant was despised, a danger to man and beast. He destroyed all the plants that grew in that clump, except one, the largest and finest of the bunch. Several weeks later he came along and gathered the seeds. The next year he planted the seeds where the sun shone a little through the trees. Of that planting he saved the largest of the plants and sown the seed, in a spot where the sun shone a little stronger. Patiently year after year for twenty years he repeated the process until he developed the sunberry. All the poison

HERE'S NEW VIGOR FOR OVERWORKED STOMACHS

Wilkinson & Co., the popular druggists, have been in the drug business long enough to have their own opinion of the best way of selling medicines. They say the plan adopted by Mi-na, the great dyspepsia remedy, is the safest they have ever heard of. They don't believe that a medicine ought to be paid for unless it does the user some good. And Mi-na is sold under a positive guarantee to relieve dyspepsia or to refund the money. You simply have 50 cents on deposit with Wilkinson & Co., and if, after you have used the box of Mi-na, you decide that it has done you no good, all you have to do is to tell them so and they will return your money.

Hundreds of people have been relieved of stomach agonies by using this remarkable remedy. It is not simply a food digester; it is a medicine that puts all of the digestive organs into normal condition and gives the vigor, vigorous health. A ruddy, glowing complexion will be seen after the first few doses of Mi-na, and its continued use will soon give the power to eat anything, at any time and not suffer distress afterward.

Mi-na is sold under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. This is the strongest proof that can be offered as to the merit of the medicine. Nothing lessens a man's success in his work or a woman's fascinating personality more than a weak stomach, with its attending evils. Use Mi-na and see how much more there is in life.

was cultivated out of the night shade and a sweet wholesome berry developed. If this can be done in the vegetable world, why not in the animal world? This process of selection is carried out in cattle and horses and the law ought to be more careful in the human race.

Professor Adrain gave a number of instances of the development of fin men and women from seemingly hopeless children, who came from hopeless lineage and from hopeless environment. To overcome inheritance and environment takes the greatest wisdom and years of time. "To develop the human plant properly, the process begins generations back of the child. We have the idea that any sort of father or mother will be for a child. If God didn't mercifully make a sort of selection, the result would be appalling in the propagation of defectives. To me the most heinous crime, and the sin unforgivable is to bring into the world a defective child—a child defective because of the father or the mother.

"Can you think of anything worse than to imprison an immortal soul in a diseased body? No tainted man or woman has a right to pass on that firmly. The first right of every child is to be well born.

To be Well Cared for. "The second right of every child is to be well cared for. Do you know that under the stars and stripes in the last year 700,000 babies died—every ten seconds throughout the year a baby died.

"Seventy per cent of these babies died from the ignorance of those who took care of them or from neglect due to their ignorance. "The third right that belongs to every child is to a good home, a home that is not ashamed of it.

"The fourth right that belongs to every child is a right to be educated, and right here is, I believe, the solution for all these problems, for coming generations. We have experimented in solving some of these problems in the schools of Santa Barbara by introducing courses of study of a practical nature to teach boys and girls the things they will use in life. We teach them the principles of biology to make them understand that a child ought to be well born. We teach them how to take care of children. The first class in the care of children was made up of fifteen boys and girls. Every one who could bring a baby from their own family or a neighbor, was asked to bring it, and the food to feed it that morning. There were ten babies brought to school. You should have seen the food they brought, everything from dry bread and pickles to bologna sausage. You see how easy it was to teach the first lesson on the feeding of children, and the care of milk and bottles.

Bologna Not for Babies. "There is nobody in Santa Barbara who raises a baby on bologna; they know better, they were taught in the schools. Then to the third need of every child, that is the right to a good home, we teach the children how to keep house. We have a cottage with a kitchen, dining room, living room and bedroom. The high school pupils, boys and girls, are taught how to do everything about that house. They are taught to mend everything from a broken window pane to the plumbing. Did you ever know that next to drink, poor house-keeping is the second greatest cause of divorce in this country? We teach the children to buy food and clothing and all the things needed. They go on shopping expeditions and the merchants let them theoretically buy anything in their stores, if they go in classes in care of the teacher.

"There is far too much living in the past in our schools. Who cares for a dead hero, if there's one alive living just around the corner? We have vocational classes and a boy may learn to work in wood or metal or learn to make anything he wishes just so it is some real thing, and something of use. We had one boy who fitted up a wireless station and he caught news from ships out at sea. The United States sent a warship to Santa Barbara to see who was catching messages and they came on a fourteen year old boy on top of a school house. He has a place now as wireless man on a big Pacific ship. It costs $1,200 a year to take care of a vagrant and it costs $400 to educate a boy. If you don't educate the boy you have to take

MAN IS ARRESTED FOR ALBIA CASE

Todd Griffin is Taken Off Steamer Black Hawk Yesterday and Sent to Albia by Officer From There.

TWO OTHER MEN IN JAIL

Albers and Redding Were Caught at Albia and All Three Men Face Charge of Stealing Brass.

Tod Griffin was arrested yesterday by the local police and held for the sheriff at Albia, who came in on the midnight train and returned on the early morning train today. Griffin is wanted on a charge of stealing brass from a building in Albia. Two other Keokuk men are in custody there for the same job, but Griffin escaped arrest at the time. The other two fellows are William Albers and LeRoy Redding.

Chief Kenney found that Griffin was on the steamer Black Hawk, and when the boat landed yesterday the local officers secured Griffin and brought him to the station. Albia was notified in time to allow the marshal there to get the late train into this city.

Griffin and the marshal returned early this morning and Griffin will have to stand trial along with the other men charged with the same crime. The three local men are charged with stealing brass from an empty building. Redding was arrested here for a similar crime and was sent out of town after serving some time.

"Fine Feathers." Janet Beecher is the leading lady of the film-play "Fine Feathers," based on the drama of the same name by Eugene Walter which "took the town by storm" on its production a few years ago.

"Fine Feathers" will be shown at the Hippodrome theatre on Wednesday afternoon and evening and patrons will be assured of having presented to them a very powerful drama in an exciting and realistic form. The story is interesting from the moral standpoint as well as from the dramatic. A young wife yearns for an improvement in her worldly position and chooses unworthy means to secure the accomplishment of her desires. In her fine feathers, she has a short span of happiness, which is succeeded by a period of the utmost wretchedness; then she and her husband resolve to begin life anew in humble surroundings. If fine feathers (i. e. money) are to come to them, it will not be by legitimate industry and not by theft and deception.

Janet Beecher is the woman in this case. Miss Beecher's varied stage experience stands her in good stead in the trying role of Jane Reynolds, the girl who yearns to shine in a social sphere above her own.—Advertisement.

Orpheum Theatre Tonight. "The Memory Tree" is a play that begins with preparations for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the closing of the civil war, in a southern town. The committee chooses the veterans of the highest rank to lead the parade. The honors fall to Colonel Fitzhugh, who fought with the blue. As Fitzhugh leaves his house he meets old McCormick, a Confederate veteran, and Fitzhugh shows the bitter hatred he cherishes for the kind old fellow. That night Fitzhugh's memory goes back to the past. Just before the war, both Fitzhugh and McCormick were rivals for the hand of Mollie Crane, a village belle, and in the bark of the tree he believes which Fitzhugh had won Mollie, he has carved her initials and his own. Mollie, however, has secretly given her heart to McCormick. When the war begins and the men are called to the colors, Fitzhugh remains loyal to the union, but McCormick joins the rebels.

Brazilian Minister Oliveira, who has been representing the United States in Mexico City was leaving the country temporarily, it was stated, on account of his health, which has suffered from the climate there.

At the same time it was said the navy would not only be acting properly but would please the former government branch by placing a warship at Oliveira's disposal to take him from Vera Cruz to Key West, as he requested. Commander McNamee, of the gunboat Sacramento was instructed to extend all courtesy to the Brazilian minister.

If he reaches New York before the Mexican conference is ended, it was said he would undoubtedly be asked for his views. In a message saying he would leave Mexico City Tuesday "to catch a French steamer sailing from Vera Cruz, Thursday, on his way to this country." Brazilian Minister Oliveira confirmed news of the Guatemalan minister's expulsion. Neither he nor Ortega, he said, knew just why the latter was expelled.

LATEST MARKET QUOTATIONS

United Press Association Telegraph Market Report Over Gate City Leased Wires.

Grain Review. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Heavy local receipts of wheat today offset all rain damage and higher cables and grains were lower, sharply so in the case of wheat. News from the grain states was more optimistic, as the map showed little rain. Threshing is proceeding rapidly and grain is reported in good shape.

September wheat opened up % on a brief buying spurt, but pressure to sell was strong. Early in the afternoon the option had fallen off 1/4, December was up 1/4 at the start, but later tumbled 1/4 to 106 1/2. Corn started down, September lost 1/4 at opening and December 1/4. Later September declined 1/4 and December %.

Oats shared the other grain weakness. September started down 1/4 and subsequently lost a full point. December was down 1/4 at start and showed no recovery early in the afternoon. There was considerably buying of provisions and prices yielded only slightly in spite of grain weakness. The hog run was disappointingly small.

Westinghouse made a new high at 114 1/4 during the second hour. Trading was only moderate and other price changes were unimportant.

New Ruling as to Texas.

Des Moines Capital. According to the "county accounting department" at the statehouse, Iowa cities and towns have no right to remit taxes as encouragement to factories that may be looking for locations. This will affect Des Moines and it will affect every other city in the state where it has been customary for years for cities to thus aid new concerns in getting started in territory that is strange to them. The decision calls attention to the fact that Iowa has a "county accounting department." Most of us didn't know it. And wouldn't it be well to let the courts have something to say about the question before we make up our minds finally that remission of taxes is illegal? To the average man the practice looks like one that should be settled by the community in which the factory proposes to locate. If the local taxpayers do not object, and the city wants the factory, why not offer the promoters this inducement?

A Lesson for Quick Lunchers.

Aurora Beacon. Meyer Coplan, of Newberry, N. C., has practically no stomach at all—just a mere two inches left of what in its day was one of the finest stomachs in North Carolina. Nor does Mr. Coplan eat and worry and refuse to be comforted. He does not. He goes right on living and having a pretty good time. But, being stomachless, he has to handle the food problem differently than other humans do. When eating a meal he must choose easily digested food, and he must stand all the time he is eating. He takes a spoonful at a time, the meal extending over two hours.

Our correspondent in Newberry does not tell us what put Mr. Coplan's stomach on the junk heap, but more than likely it was an early formed habit of quick lunching. We have an idea that quick eating of meals can do much towards separating a man from a stomach than anything else.

All quick lunching is not done during the noon hour. Some of it drops in the morning when grabbings-a-bite-and-hustling-for-the-car is a fa-

Start a Saloon. Atchison Globe: To the married man who cannot get along without his drinks, the following is being suggested as a means of freedom from the bondage of the saloons: Start a saloon in your own house. Be the only customer. You will have no license to pay. Go to your wife and give her $2 to buy a gallon of whiskey, and remember there are 93 drinks in one gallon. Buy your drinks from no one but your wife, and by the time the first gallon is gone she will have $3 to put into the bank and $2 to start business again. Should you live ten years and continue to buy booze from her, and then die, she will have money enough to bury you decently, educate your children, buy a house and lot, marry a decent man and quit thinking about you.
