THE WEEK IN CONGRESS

Washington, April 6.—Senate—Senator Tillman's efforts to get a time fixed for a vote on the rate bill, today, while expressing the opinion that the situation demanded legislation, indicated what he considered many defects in the pending measure.

Mr. Tillman was frequently interrupted and several spirited colloquies marked the progress of his remarks. No senator being prepared to speak tomorrow, the senate adjourned until Monday.

Washington, April 7.—House—The house did not indulge itself in the usual Saturday half holiday today, but continued the consideration of the postoffice appropriation bill, and in the latter accorded under general debate the discussion took on a wide range, including railway mail pay, increased pay for rural letter carriers, the American Smelting trust and the corrupt use of money in elections, with sidelights on naturalization laws.

Washington, April 8.—Senate—Mr. McLaughlin and Mr. Morgan addressed the senate on the railroad rate question, the former advocating legislation and the latter opposing. The Mississippi senator announced his intention to support an amendment providing for a court review of the decisions of the interstate commerce commission and also stated his adherence to the Bailey amendment prohibiting the temporary suspension of the commission's order by the courts.

He criticized what he characterized as an effort to inject politics into the consideration of the bill. Mr. Morgan took the position that the proposed legislation was an interference with the rights of the states to control the corporations created by themselves and said that the best way to check exorbitant railroad rates was to keep the waterways in such condition as to insure competition.

House—Notwithstanding that this was district day in the house and that body resolved itself into a common council for the purpose of making laws for the District of Columbia, general interest was shown in bills requiring non-resident pupils to pay tuition and regulation of the employment of child labor.

Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, replying to a long speech of Mr. Sims of Tennessee in which he advocated self government of the people of the District of Columbia, made a defense of the form of government but criticized its administration.

Washington, April 10.—Senate—Following the speech of Senator Bailey today in which he advocated his amendment for the nonsuspension of orders of the interstate commerce commission pending a review by the courts, the sentiment of the senate seemed to be that this proposition would have to be disposed of at an early date.

It was suggested by Senator Aldrich that a vote could be had on this Bailey amendment without in any manner interfering with speeches being prepared by various lawyers in the senate.

House—For several hours today the house had under consideration the postoffice appropriation bill, but in only a few instances were the provisions considered. During the debate on the special appropriation for railway mail pay bitter words were exchanged between representatives of North Carolina, Arkansas and Kentucky, but all were within rules of the house.

Washington, April 11.—Senate—In the senate today Mr. Aldrich expressed the opinion that the end of the general debate on the railroad bill would become apparent before the end of the present week and that then an agreement upon a day for a vote could be reached.

The senate made in response to a request by Mr. Tillman for such an agreement. There was no other discussion of the rate bill during the day, owing to the fact that no senator was prepared to speak. The session was almost entirely devoted to the consideration of the conference report on the bill providing for the final settlement of the affairs of the five civilized tribes of Indians.

House—After nearly ten days of general debate with the postoffice appropriation bill as the vehicle for the discussion of a wide range of subjects, the house late today reached the consideration of the bill itself, an hour having been given to the reading of the message.

Washington, April 12.—Senate—After a brief speech by Mr. Lattimer in support of the house railroad bill, Mr. Foraker today took the floor on that measure and consumed practically all of the remainder of the day's session of the senate.

He spent some time in the discussion of the amendments he has suggested to the bill and then entered upon the consideration of the entire question of railroad rate regulation, urging again the unconstitutionality of the pending bill from various points of view.

House—The features of today's proceedings in the house of representatives was the speech made by Mr. Cochran of New York, who, under an agreement made on a previous day, was given an hour to elucidate the subject of "general debate" on appropriation bills. Progress was made on the postoffice appropriation bill, eighteen of the twenty-nine pages having been completed, but few amendments being made to the measure, and these not changing the amount of the appropriations to any considerable extent.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON

Washington, April 13, 1906. Senator Tillman's efforts to get a time fixed for a vote on the rate bill, today, while expressing the opinion that the situation demanded legislation, indicated what he considered many defects in the pending measure.

STORIES

"Your honor," observed Mr. Bailey, "my unfortunate client—" "There the court is with you," gently interrupted the judge, with a grim smile.

A New York teacher of instrumental music was one day telling the father of a pupil, a lad of ten years, of the progress made by the boy in his studies.

Henry Miller was playing "Joseph Entangled." Mr. Miller was in his dressing room one night when a message was brought to him from the stage door written in French by a man who claimed to be an old acquaintance, and requested the loan of twenty dollars.

Clerk McDowell, of the House of Representatives, has issued a vest-pocket directory of the House, giving the names of the members, their residences, and their committee assignments.

In his recent address on the railroad rate bill Senator Tillman announced his conclusion in the following language: "First—That any legislation attempting to confer upon the interstate commerce commission the power to fix rates will be unconstitutional unless it prescribes the standard of charges which shall control, and requires the commission to conform thereto in fixing rates."

"Second—That any legislation attempting to fix rates would be an unconstitutional violation of the right to invoke and obtain, in due time, the protection of the courts from being compelled, to transport persons or property at rates which violate the carrier's constitutional rights."

He declared that the pending bill would be a delegation of the congressional power to fix rates, and added: "It would seem, therefore, necessary to follow that the provisions of the bill conferring rate fixing power upon the commission are unconstitutional."

Much talk continues to be heard in Washington that the president will before long take up the tariff revision question and that he is seriously contemplating sending a special message to congress about it, looking to some preliminary action at this session and revision next session.

Senators Allison and Dolliver of Iowa had a conference with the president at the White House on the evening of the 14th, regarding the railroad rate bill. Neither of the Senators would discuss the talk they had with the president beyond saying that there was "a merely incidental discussion of the rate bill situation."

Representative Norris of Nebraska got a favorable report from the committee on election of president, vice president and representatives for his joint resolution for popular election of senators and extending to four years the term of members of the "fuss." He believes that the bill has a good show of being passed, especially that part relating to the extension of the terms of members of the house. Judge Norris urges that the present two year term for members of the house works an injustice to the members and to the country.

Extreme measures have been adopted to apprehend the large number of Italian anarchists who have been landing in this country recently. The police of all cities and the immigration officers have been notified to keep a close watch, and the department authorities believe that before long they will have in custody all of the men known to be enemies of organized government. One man recently arrested in San Francisco apparently avowed his intention of killing the president, and he was deported. The Italian government, through its consul at Baltimore, has furnished the name of another man who is held to be particularly dangerous, and every effort to capture him is being made. It is believed that he is the member of the band that has come to this country.

The house public building bill will be brought on soon. Captain Hull says it is probable that a rule will be adopted in the house and the bill passed by the house in the next few days. The bill provides for the construction of a new building for postoffice purposes and allowances for other Iowa cities as already announced.

Two Irish farmers who had not seen each other for a long time met at a fair. They had a lot of things to tell each other. "Shure, it's marred I am," said Murphy. "You don't call me so," said Moran. "Faix, yes," said Murphy, "an' I've got a fine healthy boy which the neighbors say is the very picture of me." Moran looked for a moment at Murphy, who was not, to say the least, remarkable for his good looks, and then said: "Och, well, what's the harm, so long as the child's healthy?"

"Are they college men?" "No; merely college boys. Just freshmen." "Ah! they're not the finished product—" "No; merely 'Rah material.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Automobilists in England are about as regardless of the safety of pedestrians as the drivers of these vehicles are in the United States. Just the other day, a London judge, recently suggested, in the course of an automobile case, that the speed indicators of autos might well be marked "Fine," "Imprisonment," "Man-slaughter," "Murder."

Women in Our Hospitals

Appalling Increases in the Number of Operations Performed Each Year—How Women May Avoid Them.

Going through the hospitals in our large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying on those snow-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting or recovering from serious operations.

Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themselves. Female troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country—they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right of the abdomen, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, dizziness, flatulency, displacements of the organs or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the female organs, and if not heeded the penalty has to be paid by a dangerous operation. When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation—but remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved thousands of women from surgical operations.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, headache, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings they should remember there is one tried and true remedy.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice and medicine have restored thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

HIGH CLASS DRUGGISTS AND - OTHERS.

The better class of druggists, everywhere, are men of scientific attainments and high integrity, who devote their lives to the welfare of their fellow men in supplying the best of remedies and purest medicinal agents of known value, in accordance with physicians' prescriptions and scientific formula. Druggists of the better class manufacture many excellent remedies, but always under original or official names and they never sell false brands, imitation medicines. They are the men to deal with when in need of anything in their line, which usually includes all standard remedies and corresponding adjuncts of a first-class pharmacy and the finest and best of toilet articles and preparations and many useful accessories and remedial appliances. The earning of a fair living, with the satisfaction which arises from a knowledge of the benefits conferred upon their patrons and assistance to the medical profession, is usually their greatest reward for long years of study and many hours of daily toil. They all know that Syrup of Figs is an excellent laxative remedy and that it gives universal satisfaction, and therefore they are selling many millions of bottles annually to the well informed purchasers of the choicest remedies, and they always take pleasure in handing out the genuine article bearing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package. They know that in cases of colds and headaches attended by biliousness and constipation and of weakness or torpidity of the liver and bowels, arising from irregular habits, indigestion, or over-eating, that there is no other remedy so pleasant, prompt and beneficial in its effects as Syrup of Figs, and they are glad to sell it because it gives universal satisfaction. Owing to the excellence of Syrup of Figs, the universal satisfaction which it gives and the immense demand for it, imitations have been made, tried and condemned, but there are individual druggists to be found, here and there, who do not maintain the dignity and principles of the profession and whose greed gets the better of their judgment, and who do not hesitate to recommend and try to sell the imitations in order to make a larger profit. Such preparations or fictitious fig syrup company, printed on the package, but they never have the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of the package. The imitations should be rejected because they are injurious to the system. In order to sell the imitations they find it necessary to resort to misrepresentation or deception, and whenever a dealer passes off on a customer a preparation under the name of "Syrup of Figs" or "Fig Syrup," which does not bear the full name of the California Fig Syrup Co. printed on the front of the package, he is attempting to deceive and mislead the patron who has been so unfortunate as to enter his establishment, whether it be large or small, for if the dealer resorts to misrepresentation and deception in one case he will do so with other medicinal agents, and in the filling of physicians' prescriptions, and should be avoided by every one who values health and happiness. Knowing that the great majority of druggists are reliable, we supply the immense demand for our excellent remedy entirely through the druggists, of whom it may be purchased everywhere, in original packages only, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, but as exceptions exist it is necessary to inform the public of the facts, in order that all may decline or return any imitation which may be sold to them. If it does not bear the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, do not hesitate to return the article and to demand the return of your money, and in future go to one of the better class of druggists who will sell you what you wish and the best of everything in his line at reasonable prices.
