

OUR FINNY TRIBES.

THE STATE FISH COMMISSION.

The Fish Hatchery Near St. Paul—Visit of the Legislature and other Distinguished Citizens of the State Yesterday—Great Interest Manifested—Interesting Notes and Data.

Since the delivery of a certain memorable speech by Representative Frye of Maine before Congress, some six years ago, the subject of fish culture has taken a deep hold upon the American public and in most of the States of the Union the most practical and enlightened means have been provided for the introduction and carrying forward of the great work.

About four years ago, taking advantage of a handsome beginning that had been made by Sherwood Watkins, Esq., as an individual enterprise at Red Wing, our State Legislature fell into line with the rest, and not only organized a State Fish Commission but provided the means necessary to inaugurate the important project of pisciculture on such a basis pro bono publico as would soon re-stock and supply the grand lakes and rivers of Minnesota with varieties of fish that would in a few years furnish not only a rare article of food, but in such plenitude as to make this source of supply an important item in the economy of our general subsistence as a people.

While many thousands of the best varieties of fish have been successfully hatched and distributed from the Red Wing institution, yet its limited capacity and general lack of the most important natural advantages have obliged our State Fish Commissioner to seek out a suitable site and establish a hatchery, not only on a larger scale, but nearer to the center of the State and more convenient to the necessary means of rapid transportation.

A LOCATION SECURED.

Two years ago, the present commission, consisting of Messrs. R. O. Sweeney and Wm. Golcher, of St. Paul, with Grover C. Burt, of Mankato, was created, and an appropriation of $10,000 made by the Legislature to go forward and perfect the good work already so creditably begun. During last summer the commissioners were especially fortunate in securing the lease to the State for a term of 15 years (by the mere payment of taxes, $15 or $20 per annum) of a most picturesque and desirable spot of ground, about six acres in extent, on Willow brook, just beyond the "point of rocks" and at the end of the gravel track of the St. Paul & Milwaukee road, near Pig's Eye, and only about two miles below the city. It is really a romantic and beautiful spot, half encircled by high, bold bluffs on the north, and looking southward out upon broad meadows, the busy railway, and the forest-bordered Mississippi. The ground is naturally terraced, and in the center, back near the towering bluff, is a grand cluster of boiling cold springs, which, when brought together as they have been, within their reservoir, form a real fountain of the purest water possible, and such supply as to meet all demands of the fishery even should it be greatly enlarged in the future.

It was to this new State institution that a hundred or more of the Senators and members of the Legislature, with as many more citizens of St. Paul and of the State, by invitation of the Commissioners, paid a short but very agreeable visit yesterday afternoon. Through the generous courtesy of General Agent Chandler the Minneapolis and St. Paul lying over train was standing ready at 3:30 at the Milwaukee and St. Paul Depot, to receive the excursionists, give them a pleasant ride to and from, and abundant time while at the point of interest.

Commissioners Sweeney and Golcher did the honors of the occasion, although we found on the grounds Superintendent Chandler, Watkins and assistants, who showed every attention necessary to make the visit pleasant and instructive.

THE HATCHERY.

The improvements upon the premises consist of a neat white cottage about 25x35 two stories, plainly furnished, a reception room, sleeping quarters, etc., as well as a "work" room for the superintendent and his helper Mr. Collins; a substantial one-story building about 20x40 feet on the ground, well lighted and airily perched upon the bank just above and about mid-way of the three connecting fish ponds.

Inside of said hatchery are numerous long zinc trays or troughs, each about twelve inches wide and four inches deep, set on a slight incline. These trays are partitioned off into spaces one foot square; the bottoms covered with clean fine gravel, and a depth of one inch of the pure spring water is constantly coursing through the trays from one end to the other, and in said streams, the eggs lying on the surface of the gravel, the myriads of fine young salmon, speckled trout, etc., are being constantly hatched and passed on out into the beautiful ponds in front. The entire party were afforded the opportunity of witnessing this interesting process of "hatching," and which was particularly pleasing to all present.

In the first two tiers of trays, and now undergoing these finishing touches of creation, were 20,000 eggs of our own home speckled brook trout. Next came a pair of trays in which 40,000 Lake Superior trout were coming forth. Then came 60,000 "Land Locked" salmon eggs received from the "Grand Lake Stream," Maine.

No artificial heating apparatus in the hatchery, the fresh living spring water which flows in numerous streams through the building affording its own thermostrical equilibrium both in summer and winter; so that while the place seems quite cool in summer, it has apparently the reverse temperature in the winter.

The 50,000 California salmon hatchlings that were taken out of the trays in November last, were now sporting themselves in the beautiful ponds out doors, and behaved splendidly while being fed, to the infinite amusement of their numerous onlooking guests. The said ponds are three in number, about 100 feet each in length by 30 or 40 feet in width, the three being so graded and located as to afford connections by a waste gate and pretty waterfall of four feet in height between each, and a fair constant current of the pure spring water passing through from the head of the first pond to the outlet of the last.

It is the intention of the managers to construct another tier of equally or more spacious ponds just below the present ones, the coming summer, thereby to secure the room and facilities for raising and keeping their own brooders—that is, the adult fish of various kinds from which they must derive the eggs for the hatching boxes, and for the general system of distribution over the State, which is the main object of the institution. There appear to be no fewer than a million of these young fishes now in the three ponds; they average about two inches in length, and seem to thrive

A Surprise Maquerade.

On Friday evening friends of Sheriff Thompson and his excellent lady, to the number of seventy-five, took possession of their residence without any previous warning, and proceeded to enjoy themselves without ceremony. The members of the party were masked, and at first glance, Mrs. Thompson was not quite clear in her mind as to whether it was merely an influx of tramps, or a well organized raid gotten up for the purpose of releasing the prisoners during the absence of the sheriff. The solemn ceremonies were kept up until an early hour in the morning, when the party adjourned with the unanimous verdict of a good time.

Return of Dr. Saulsbury.

Dr. Saulsbury, who went up to Day & Sons' lumber camp about a week ago, to attend a man injured by having a log roll over him, returned on Friday night. He was two days making the journey, and then remained two days in camp with the injured man, ministering to his wants.

The name of the man was Ed. Blake, and is relative of the Clay family, having his home in this city, and being unmarried. The Doctor found the injury quite severe, and in some respects, dangerous, being a compound fracture near the hip-joint, but he is in hopes that the young man will finally recover, with care and attention.

The Doctor gives a glowing description of life in the woods, and seems to have enjoyed the novelty of the trip very much. He reports no snow fall during the recent storm above Brainerd, and logging operations are lagging because thereof.

A Battered Horse.

A horse and cutter belonging to the drug firm of Young & Patterson was on Friday night taken from their shed in the rear of their store. The horse was evidently driven hard during the night, and at an early hour yesterday morning was found wandering about the streets of the lower part of the city unaccompanied by a driver. And now Hugh Young wants to administer a dose of medicine to the enterprising young man that borrowed his nag.
