ST. PAUL, SUNDAY, MARCH 17, 1878.

SATURDAY OF CONTESTED ELECTIONS—NEW ELECTION FRAUD.

It would be cheaper, actually save a large sum of money; it would be the very best economy, an act of public welfare, to submit the new election law for "incorporated cities of over 12,000 inhabitants," excepting the King's English and good grammar thereof, to the Supreme Court.

The principle of this latest monstrosity of reform, presumes that the secret ballot is false. The secret ballot was established to guard the voter. The Constitution of Minnesota protects it.

This monstrosity presumes another thing—that every voter is a scoundrel, and the judges the biggest thieves of all. Why? It places a sentinel, an armed soldier of party, over a free ballot. First, the voter is presumed to cheat; second, the judge sworn, with his right hand uplifted, or on the evangelists, to swear the voter, is presumed to swear himself and the voter to a lie—a bare faced lie.

The sole purpose, and canting, sly, double-dealing, slimy object, is to secure "honest elections" in incorporated cities of over 12,000 inhabitants, especially St. Paul and Minneapolis. Say, immortal Lycurgus, who elect and appoint the judges of election? Do not the voters themselves? Then, if the people of "incorporated cities of 12,000 inhabitants," let us be particular about the language, are Republican or Democrat, or professedly so, with money enough, can they not perpetrate forever their party, by appointing their own judges. We doubt whether in the time of Jeffreys such an outrage was attempted or perpetrated as in this unconstitutional scheme.

THE PRESS IN OLD TIMES.

Journalism is by no means of so modern an origin as many people suppose. The first journal in Rome was published more than two thousand years ago; it was issued yearly, and was called Annales Maximus, the editor being the Pontifex Maximus. It contained the most important events of the year, which were written on white wooden tablets, and distributed by the lictors or other public officers, deputed to the duty, and was only given to those citizens who could read. These, in turn, retailed the news to crowds of listening "plebs," as the common people were called. The public thirst after news, thus fed, rapidly increased, and resulted in the issue of a daily journal by the government. This daily was called Acta Populi Romani Diurna. It appeared as tablets hung out to the public view in prominent places through the city, the later news items being generally written with red chalk on the walls, underneath the morning edition. This morning paper, though some 2,044 years old, is still in existence. The contents comprised what would be called local items by our modern "typos." A few verbal translations may interest our readers. They are taken from a copy extant and published just 168 years "B. C."

MUNICIPAL CONCLIVUM.

Consul Suetonius was the acting judge to-day. Several citizens and soldiers were charged with riotous and unseemly behavior in a hostelry at the foot of the hill of Janus—a fight had occurred, originated by a soldier of the tenth legion, the Emperor's favorite regiment, casting the contents of a wine flagon in the face of a citizen. The citizens were each fined 2 pascos, ($5.00), and the soldiers were handed over to a picket sent by their Centurio. The landlord was reprimanded by the Consul. Three butchers were fined for selling meat, not duly inspected. The money thus paid was dedicated to the temple of the Goddess Laverna.

Frauds were not unknown as we find the following item. "Ausidius the broker fled to day taking much money and valuable, the property of others. He was overtaken and compelled to refund, and then placed in custody."

A public execution in the city is briefly mentioned, as follows:

The noted brigand, captured on the Ides of March by Officer Nerva, while crossing the Rubicon, was crucified on the Hill of Veli this morning. A heavy thunderstorm prevailed, and the lightning struck and split an oak tree at the foot of the hill.

Julius Caesar extended a fostering hand to the press, and furthered his ambitious designs by its agency. Suetonius, a Roman writer, says: "Julius Caesar, as soon as he entered his public office, caused the proceedings of the Senate to be circulated among the people." The Acta Diurna thus became political in character, but still contained news about buildings, births, deaths, executions and such like, thus resembling, in some degree, our modern newspapers.

At the Suffolk bank, while there was no run, there were a number of withdrawals. Yesterday the bank paid out $27,000 and received $6,000.

The trustees of the Franklin Savings bank approved the action of the officers requiring sixty days' notice. Everything quiet at this bank.

New York, March 16.—The schedules of Warren A. Ransom, Aaron P. Ransom and Robert Boyd, members of the firm of W. A. Ransom & Co., Broadway, New York, were filed yesterday. The liabilities are $550,000; assets $897,000.

CINCINNATI, March 16.—S. Trimble, banker and large dealer in grain at Gilead, Ohio, failed yesterday. Liabilities not known, but are probably heavy.

Anti-Free Trade Demonstration. ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 16.—The demonstration to protest against the passage of the Wood tariff bill, was a grand success.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN THE MORNING. The anniversary of good old Saint Patrick! Sunday, the 17th day of March, 1878!

Catholic and Protestant writers honor his memory. The chronicles of neither tell, with certainty, when he was born, or when he died, save that he lived in the fourth and died in the fifth century.

It is wonderful with what enthusiasm Irishmen, all over the earth, greet the anniversary of Ireland's patron saint. The emigrant ship has separated many a happy family, borne to the distant parts of the earth fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters, separated forever; the convict ship, bearing a foreign flag, has taken away many a poor soldier of liberty to die in a penal colony; and homes of sadness, so often, have been left, to darken the beauty of the emerald island.

WHAT WILL THE UNEMPLOYED DO? The signs of the times are more favorable. There are auspicious omens of a revival of business, and every one seems to be expecting a change in the tide of depression.

Forfeited His Bail. NEW YORK, March 16.—Phillip Stiner, at one time a prominent tea and coffee merchant, failed to appear to-day for examination on the charge of fraudulent bankruptcy, and his bonds in $10,000 were forfeited and his case sent to the grand jury and a warrant for the arrest of Stiner prepared.

Reward for Lynchers. RICHMOND, Va., March 16.—Gov. Halliday has offered $100 reward in each case for the arrest of the parties that hanged Charlotte Harris, colored, in Rockingham county, the night of the 6th inst.

DRAMATIC NOTES. Alice Oates and her English Opera Buff company commenced an engagement in the Globe theatre Boston, March 26th, to be followed April 1st, by Hessa Opera troupe.

Not long ago Mrs. Elizabeth Laurent, alias Gishling, applied for a bill of divorce against her husband, Henry Laurent, on the ground of his adultery with Mrs. Alice Oates, the opera-bouffe singer.

An exciting incident occurred at the new Academy of Music, Baltimore, Maryland, during the engagement of Alice Oates Opera company.

"During the performance of 'Girofle-Girofle,' in that part where the punch-bowls are set on fire, one of the girls in the chorus, passing too near, her head-ribbons were ignited by the flames, which swept to her wig, and in an instant that too was ablaze.

Major Gleason and Walter Illingworth each gave the city debt a lift yesterday, to the extent of $5 and costs for drunk and disorderly conduct.

Mr. Wm. Brude, the prescription clerk at the City drug store, is improving, and will be out in a week or so.

Is it not most time for the Stillwater Guards to come out and drill? Don't let the thing sleep too long, boys.

We are pleased to record that our friend Ernest L. Hospes, has recently been admitted as a member of the firm of Schulenberg, Boeckler & Co., St. Louis.

Those young men who delight in base ball are out on the streets again practicing. A sure sign of spring, and also a sign that some passer-by is going to get hit, or a horse run away, or something.

Messrs. Fayette Marsh and Jno. O'Schaughnessy will, in a few days, break ground for the erection of two new brick buildings on lower Main street, between the stores of F. Schultz and M. S. Willard.

Gerhardt Knips and family took their departure for their Nobles county farm Thursday. Mr. Knips was an old resident of Stillwater, and leaves many friends who wish him success in his new undertaking.

Mr. Ludwig Kahn, of Milwaukee, has leased the store of Wm. Holcombe on Main street, recently occupied by Jno. O'Schaughnessy, and will open it in a few weeks, with a full stock of dry goods, notions, &c.

Election is near at hand. Trot out your candidates. The office of municipal judge seems to be the centre of attraction. Two years ago there was a dearth of candidates for that office. Now, from what we can learn, there is a baker's dozen.

Miller Bros. of this city, have opened a branch store at Worthington, and have shipped to that point a large stock of furniture of every description, which will be handy for the new settlers at that point, and we hope, profitable to the enterprising Miller Brothers.

R. J. Wheeler and Smith Ellison returned from their trip to the Gulf of Mexico. Mayor Durant was expected home last night. We learn that the party killed five alligators while down there, three of which they captured. The amount of small game bagged was too numerous to mention.

To-morrow night, at Opera Hall, the citizens of Stillwater will have an opportunity of witnessing the thrilling and blood-curdling drama of O'Neal, the Great. Cannon will roar, blood will flow, and those great battles on the banks of the Carlingford, in Ireland, will be fought over again. All for seventy-five cents; reserved seats extra. Children, thirty-five cents.

DOUBTING PETERS.

Continuation of the Run Upon the Boston Savings Institutions—Demands of Depositors Promptly Met—Failures, Etc.

Boston, March 16.—The panic among the savings bank depositors continued to-day, and the crowd in front of the Five Cent savings bank was even greater than yesterday. It paid to-day altogether $90,000. A small proportion of the depositors around the door were of the laboring class, deaf to all statements of the safety of the institution. The directors resolved not to take advantage of the sixty days notice.

At the Provident savings institution there was a considerable number of persons, mostly women. The bank paid out yesterday probably about $80,000, and probably an equal amount to-day. The officers say they think the run has been caused by the passage of the bill regulating payments by savings banks by commissioners, which it is apprehended will operate against depositors who may wish to withdraw.

At the Suffolk bank, while there was no run, there were a number of withdrawals. Yesterday the bank paid out $27,000 and received $6,000.

The trustees of the Franklin Savings bank approved the action of the officers requiring sixty days' notice. Everything quiet at this bank.

Anti-Free Trade Demonstration. ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 16.—The demonstration to protest against the passage of the Wood tariff bill, was a grand success. The visiting delegations came into the city with bands playing, flags flying, and by noon the city presented a very animated appearance.

Municipal Court. [Before Judge Flint.] CIVIL.

Wm. L. Minter vs. Joshua Fisher: action to recover possession of certain premises. Judgment for plaintiff with costs.

CRIMINAL. Yesterday was a comparative field day with the criminal branch of the municipal court, but most of the business was already anticipated by THE GLOBE'S exclusive chronicle of the previous day's arrests.

John Welsh confessed to being drunk and disorderly, and was committed for thirty days, in default of $20 and costs.

Alonzo Garner offered a similar plea to a mild drunk and was sent up for four days for the want of $3 and costs.

Martin McNulty and William McGinnis were jointly and collectively convicted of an aggravated drunk and disorderly, and were fined $10 and trimmings, being allowed one week's grace in which to liquidate.

"James Fitzgerald," said Detective Brissette, "is a man we don't want in the city any way," so the court, totally unimpressed by "St. Patrick's day in the morning," gave the gentle James one hour in which to make himself as scarce in St. Paul as a Dispatch reporter with twenty-seven street-walkers besetting his path.

Ed. Bergh was the last on the penitentiary bench, excepting that he didn't seem to be penitent. Bergh, according to the officer's story, was caught at the capitol with another man's overcoat worn underneath his own, and that other man, Mr. Mackey, detailed the facts concerning the prisoner's visit to his, the witness's, office, and the simultaneous disappearance of the prisoner and the overcoat. Then, too, Bergh had a dog collar in his pocket, with the name of the governor's clerk thereon inscribed. Bergh, sworn in his own defence, did a tale unfold so conclusively demonstrating his innocence that the court promptly fined him $20 and costs, and ordered him to be committed for thirty days by reason of default.

"And Has It Come to This?" Our city cornet band, which should be, by all that is right and proper, the pride of our city, is going to disband. We must say that the citizens of Stillwater never have fully appreciated the worth or services of that band.

Every little town around Stillwater have had the band on the 4th of July for the last five or six years, and yet Stillwater has not as much as agitated the question of a celebration and keeping the boys at home. Would it not be well to give the boys a lift, and get them on a firm footing? Or do you prefer to pay three prices to an outside band when you need one?
