THE ELECTION.

A QUIET DAY AND SUBSTANTIAL DEMOCRATIC VICTORY.

The Voting at the Various Precincts---Col Allen Walks Away with the First Ward Prize---Capt. Rhodes Buries Fisher---The Ladies Take an Active Part in Two Prederman Elected---The New Election Law to be Contested by John B. Brisbin -- S. L. Pierce Hankers After the City Attorneyship---List of the New Council and New School Board.

For the first time in the history of St. Paul every saloon in the city was closed on election day. The election was not an exciting one, but there is no doubt the closing of the saloons rendered it much more quiet. There was none of that boisterous, wordy controversy which is so characteristic of the ward statesman when three sheets or more in the win.'. The order was sufficiently painful to gratify a Scotch

In the First ward the Republicans appeared to be in doubt relative to Mr. Carpenter's candidacy for Alderman. He was nominated by the Republican committee while absent, and, though in view of there being two Democrats in the field, he might have been elected. other Republicans and Democrats combined took the liberty of withdrawing him. If he had been at home he would not have known whether he was running or not, and in his absence no one knew. Some of the Republican com-mittee visited the poll and contended that Carpenter was in the field, and Mr. Barden, of the committee, and Col. Allen had a lively tilt on the subject. Practically, however, the withdrawers won, and the contest lay between Davidson and Allen, Carpenter re-ceiving but eight votes. The Colonel laid him-self out to win, worked like a Trojan all day and came in on the home stretch with 41 to

In the Second ward first precinct, four candidates for alderman made it tolerably lively. For the first time, too, one candidate was a colored man. He found Republics are ungrateful, however, for he only received 34 votes. O'Connor had a handsome plurality, but a majority of two was all that was vouchsafed him. There was quite a hot contest for School Inspector, but J. G. Donnelly usually wins, and this time was no exception to his good luck.

In the second precinct of the Second ward there was no Alderman to be elected, and the School inspector contest was dull, as it was known from the start that Dufrene would win.

hordes friends rained and risher went home, buried under 115 majority.

The school inspectorship w s more exciting than the other contest, a very determined effort being made to defeat Albert Scheffer. His friends rallied handsomely, and he has too many of them to meet defeat. The ladies voted freely here, and at one time in the afterproper the ladies almost meropolized the policy.

Yesterday an accident happened to a soldier belonging to the garrison at Fort Snelling, which, in its attendant incidents, illustrated most forcibly the red-tape circumlocution way of doing business in the army, as well as fur nished an exhibition of that lack of sympathy for the needs and misfortunes of subordinate very generally believed to be characteristic of army officers.
