

THE LATE DR. ALLEY.

A FITTING MEMORIAL SERVICE AT THE HOUSE OF HOPE.

The Formal Church was Decorated—The House of Hope was the scene of the services.

The morning services at the House of Hope church yesterday, were in the nature of a memorial to the late Dr. Alley, who was for over 10 years a member of this board of elders.

Dr. Alley, whose taste and skill had rendered his house so beautiful upon the day of his funeral, and presented to the eye an entering symbol appropriate to the service which had brought the congregation together.

Soon after 10.30, the seats upon the platform were occupied by Mr. Breed and Messrs. Knox, H. J. Horn, H. R. Taylor, Williams, W. B. Dean, and Charles Cochran, the surviving members of the session.

Mr. Knox then read a short account of the connection of the doctor with the session of the church, speaking of his manner of discharging all the duties which the office of elder laid upon him; of his character as a man and as a Christian; of his labors and his testimony which he had borne during his course to the comforting power of the religion which he professed, and of the loss which the church, and especially his fellow officers in the session, had sustained by his death.

Mr. Cochran followed Mr. Horn, speaking of Dr. Alley's work among and friendship with his work as a physician and as a superintendent of the Sabbath school members of his home, and his influence on the school of the church.

Mr. Knox was the next who addressed the congregation, reading a very carefully and beautifully prepared paper upon the work of Dr. Alley as an elder of the church, covering somewhat the same ground as the paper read by Mr. Horn, but with much more detail.

He alluded first to the fact that Dr. Alley was elected to the office of elder, caused by the death of Mr. Potts, speaking of the loving, cheerful character of the latter, and of the fitness of the former to succeed, because of his likeness in all the higher virtues of the Christian character.

He finished by describing a little meeting which, by the doctor's request, the session had held at his house a few weeks before his death, and in which the resignation and composure with which the Christian patiently waited for the end to come in very striking words.

It had been perfect peace, and when one very dear to him expressed an astonishment that the Lord permitted him to be in such pain he replied: "Don't wonder. Some great good will come to you from all this."

"Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

SUNDAY SINNERS.

John Smith's Dilemma—He Wants Water—Marsden's Escape.—The Sunday batch of sinners who will be marched up for a Monday inspection by Judge Flint are:

John Smith, (it strikes us that name has appeared in print before), and Fred Marsden.

Mr. Smith is the drunken individual who made a successful and attractive procession, Saturday evening, from the city hall to the water works. He was registered at that hotel as an unknown stranger.

Mr. Smith was left in a very becoming Sunday school. Sorry and penitent, and paying the future all over with good resolution.

Fred Marsden was taken in early Sunday morning, 10 o'clock, at Swede Annie's. Smith was taken in by the police.

In addition to this, another name unknown, and too drunk to tell, was taken in off the streets Sunday morning helplessly drunk. "His only cry is water, water."

Society for the Relief of the Poor.—To the Editor of the Globe: In our recent communication in regard to the work of the society for the relief of the poor, we have had the opportunity to speak of that part of the work which related to the poor and unfortunate of our own city in whose welfare it is to be presumed that every good citizen feels to be a personal interest.

It is believed that those who have this matter in charge are doing the best they can under the circumstances. But the system is one that has descended to us from past generations, and is as much behind the demands of the times as it is in front of the needs of our business men.

WINDY WIND.

A Gusty Sabbath and a General Blowhard of a Day—Franks of the Blasting Blast.

The early riser yesterday morning, was given the promise of a splendid day. He who mortored in bed was the gainer by not receiving a disappointment to the promise.

About 8 o'clock, Sunday preparations for church were commenced; bonnets and wraps were taken out and inspected.

Now and then the windows were rattled by a big puff of wind, and then the sunshiny promise of a good day loomed up in a restoration of quiet and calm.

The hour of 8.30 o'clock A. M. was fingered out on the city hall clock. The occasional puff of wind had accumulated enough strength and persistency to be called a bit of blow. Some folks thought they wouldn't go to church because it was too windy.

Now with all this whirl of wind and its force power, little damage was done in this city, and only an occasional scare was caused.

It prevented some people from going to church, kept others in-doors all day, and made the streets wear a deserted look. It was a provoking cause of annoyance to those who had to go out, and to those who were vented out, were the greatest sufferers.

A STORMY EMBRACE.—At street corners they were fiercely embraced by the contending parcels of wind, coming up or down both street, and in some instances one parcel took a sudden twist by a sudden providential lift in the flurry.

The slick shiny stovepipe was seen floating along or flying aloft, and it recovered itself with an additional 25 cents to the $5 already expended for style. They have to be ironed before exposed to another Sunday airing.

A hat at large on such an occasion seems imbedded with volition. It does not slip off, but it slips away from the owner make a grab, and then playfully skips away.

The bridge was a fine point from which to get a full benefit. A little girl—we say little girl, she had grown some—had a special benefit accorded her about 1 o'clock. From a modern, fashionable pin-back specimen, she suddenly expanded into a full inflated balloon.

THE CAPITOL EXTENSION.

Architect Buffington Replies to the Criticism on the Building and Asks the Public to Suspend Judgment.

The criticisms that are being showered on the extension of the State Capitol, instigated by a few timid persons, and fanned by the unfortunate and unaccountable falling in of the top arch of the auditor's vault, prompt me to make a plain statement of fact, and plead that no hasty judgment be formed.

The giving way of the arch has not as yet been traced to any particular cause, but a number of conditions seemed to have conspired to cause it. As to the construction of the arch, it was in material and in contemplation abundantly strong.

Now as to the stability of the building: To an uneducated, or even a professional mind, erroneous opinions may be thoughtlessly formed, upon the clamor of the critics, and always ready to be heaped upon the construction of any public building, in which the whole public should appreciate their property right.

It should be remembered that the structure is in no way complete, and that many girders, columns, bolts, stay-braces, etc., have yet to be placed in position, all of which will add to the strength of the structure.

When Mr. Gale turned the crude hall over to a working committee, the Association had there were many unworkable things, with unfavorable comment and criticism, who freely expressed their fears, and there were many derogatory statements published in the newspapers.

To be more specific in the comparison it will be seen that the columns in the capital building are 8 1/2 feet in diameter, and are placed from 10 to 12 feet apart, a standard authority, (page 243), a weight of 268,000 lbs. As 800 will be required for the columns, it can be seen that the weight of the columns at any time be crowded into the Resolute's hall, 732 pounds would be the weight sustained by each joint.

It may be further remarked that while the capital extension, as I have shown, sufficiently strong, is as I have shown, sufficient to support the weight of the roof of its floors whatever weight may be placed on them, it should be remembered that the building is not a costly structure of iron or stone, and built with a view to everlasting durability.

It is to be regretted that the construction of the building is not so perfect as it should be. It is to be regretted that the construction of the building is not so perfect as it should be.

It is to be regretted that the construction of the building is not so perfect as it should be. It is to be regretted that the construction of the building is not so perfect as it should be.

CITY GLOBULES.

Officers Nugent and Beer found a strolling drunkard this morning about 1 o'clock on Washburn street, and locked him up out of harm's way.

The police picked up a stray bay pony Saturday night, on the premises of 264 Washburn street. The animal was bridled and saddled. The outfit was put away at No. 34 Iglehart street.

N. G. Dyer, No. 79 Third street, had a brown pony, white star in forehead, branded N. S. on right fore shoulder, stolen from the rear of Plymouth church Saturday evening about 9 o'clock.

A little fire in the rear of 159 West Third street occasioned considerable excitement, owing to the high wind blowing. A few buckets of water supplied by active citizens in the neighborhood prevented a serious conflagration.

The "bold riders" returned from their horse-back raid through the Southern part of the State last evening. The boys have been absent nearly two weeks, riding about 1,000 miles, and had a jolly good time. The ride yesterday was from Red Wing, a distance of sixty miles, the trip being made in less than twelve hours, horses and riders looking as fresh as if they had only been out for a morning canter.

There are 2,900 patrons of the public library in Milwaukee. It cost $600 to entertain and feed the Presidential party in Milwaukee. The Janesville people are considering the subject of constructing water works.

Not less than eight boys were seen drunk on the streets of Racine on a late Sunday night. An incendiary fire occurred at Oshkosh the other night, which destroyed an unoccupied residence.

The Waukegan fire company say that if the project of purchasing a fire engine is defeated they will disband. H. Loomis, boot and shoe dealer, of Columbia, Columbia county, made an assignment to Michael Adams, Esq.

There are reports of numerous depredations by "gangs of rascals" that have squatted in the vicinity of Beardsley, Waukegan county. The quality is good and free from lime, but not half the usual crop.

The Limburgher cheese factory on Kin-Kin-Kin avenue, Milwaukee, is said to emit an offensive odor to the average inhabitant. Jackson Dickerman, of Milton, dug fifty bushels of Peleees potatoes, some 800 worth, from an acre of land. They are large and fine.

THE THIRD DISTRICT.

The Washburn Family Under the Weather—Hard Lines for the Titan.

Close Contest.—[Detroit Record.—Rep.] While we don't believe that Donnelly can be elected; we do say that in our opinion, the contest will be the closest ever yet held in this district.

Will Keep up to the Mark.—The Hennepin county Mirror says that Donnelly will poll as large a vote in Hennepin county as could any Democrat who lives outside the county.

Chances Good.—[Dundas News.] Donnelly's chances for election to Congress are better than they have been for years, if the workmen of Minneapolis and St. Paul, stand by their nominee.

A Stamp Which Will be Iverted.—[Hastings Union.] The St. Paul Globe asserts that Washburn is as stupid as our own beloved Strait. Good Lord! two such creatures representing Minnesota in Washington is enough to stamp the State as a commonwealth of dummies.

Donnelly's Campaign.—[Wilkin County Gazette.—Rep.] We expect that he will speak in every school house in the district this fall, and he will be sure to point out to his hearers the exact spot where heaven marked his old time enemies with the celebrated brand "M. C."

The Peoples Friend.—[Benton County Press.] Wait until Donnelly takes his seat in Congress, and then you will find out that the people of the whole State will rejoice. Donnelly is the man they want to see there, unless Bill Washburn institutes another rascally returning board, which he has not so far heard of our national capitol defending and advocating the peoples' rights.

The Democrats are confident that Mr. Donnelly can and will clean out Washburn for Congress in the Third district. The Maine election helped to demoralize the Republicans of Minnesota, and if the ball is kept rolling, in the eternal fitness of things, Donnelly will scoop the pine land ring and its aristocratic leader, Washburn.

An Honest Man.—[Le Sueur County Herald.] Our readers will find the Hon. Henry Poehler's name at the head of our columns, indeed, our many readers could not expect otherwise. We are always in favor of the election of an honest man, one that will work for the interest of his constituents and consult their wishes in public matters.

Friend of the Working Man.—[Little Falls Transcript.] Donnelly served three terms in Congress and came out comparatively poor, while many Congressmen became wealthy. That simple fact speaks volumes for his integrity. Donnelly is the friend of the working and industrial classes of this country, and he is a man with whom bribery is impossible.
