HANLAN AND ELLIOTT. LONDON, June 15.—A correspondent of the Sportsman, on Saturday interviewed Hanlan and Elliott, who both expressed themselves very confident. They did only a very moderate amount of work Saturday and Sunday, merely enough to keep their hands in. Hanlan on Saturday had a few short bursts with Plaiated, at the rate of thirty-five to thirty-six strokes to the minute. He made the best travel speed of his life, his muscles are superbly developed, and his stamina race speed with little apparent effort. Elliott also rowed thirty-six strokes per minute in finished style Saturday. The practice of the competition, Hanlan was watched by thousands of people. Hanlan when paddling down the river Hatched Elliott and immediately turned around and both rowed leisurely in the direction of Boatwood, having about 150 yards distance between them. Hanlan on land, had completed the boatman by Hanlan's friends headed the other, after an eighth of a mile was traversed amid vociferous cheering. The Sportsman's analysis of the chances of the competitors is as follows: "The distance between Hanlan and Elliott will be five miles, to which he will add a mile and a half to the distance between them, to make a total of seven miles and a half. The distance between them will be five miles, to which he will add a mile and a half to the distance between them, to make a total of seven miles and a half. The distance between them will be five miles, to which he will add a mile and a half to the distance between them, to make a total of seven miles and a half."

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, June 15.—All the sporting houses in the city are crowded to-night. When the amount invested was small 2 to 1 on Hanlan was accepted, but on large sums 5 to 3 was the ruling price. Although the wind has changed within the last few hours, it is believed Monday will be a fine day. Col. Shaw has written to the Sportsman, offering to offer to take 5 to 2 in large amounts, but would obtain no better offer than 1,000 to 500, as the Sportsman's offer of 11 to 4 on Hanlan found very few acceptors.

OVER THE OCEAN. Many Persons Killed and Injured by a Boiler Explosion in a Prussian Port—Ennis' Chances in the Walking Match Jeopardized by His Recent Act of Gallantry—Speculation of the London "Sportsman" Upon the Hanlan-Elliott Match—Miscellaneous.

HANLAN AND ELLIOTT. LONDON, June 15.—A correspondent of the Sportsman, on Saturday interviewed Hanlan and Elliott, who both expressed themselves very confident. They did only a very moderate amount of work Saturday and Sunday, merely enough to keep their hands in. Hanlan on Saturday had a few short bursts with Plaiated, at the rate of thirty-five to thirty-six strokes to the minute. He made the best travel speed of his life, his muscles are superbly developed, and his stamina race speed with little apparent effort. Elliott also rowed thirty-six strokes per minute in finished style Saturday. The practice of the competition, Hanlan was watched by thousands of people. Hanlan when paddling down the river Hatched Elliott and immediately turned around and both rowed leisurely in the direction of Boatwood, having about 150 yards distance between them. Hanlan on land, had completed the boatman by Hanlan's friends headed the other, after an eighth of a mile was traversed amid vociferous cheering. The Sportsman's analysis of the chances of the competitors is as follows: "The distance between Hanlan and Elliott will be five miles, to which he will add a mile and a half to the distance between them, to make a total of seven miles and a half. The distance between them will be five miles, to which he will add a mile and a half to the distance between them, to make a total of seven miles and a half.
