

From Sunday's Edition.

[The following matter on this page appeared in Sunday's Edition. The reason for this republication is because our regular mail rate of subscription does not include the Sunday issue, and comparatively few in the country care to pay extra for the Sunday edition, which lies in the St. Paul post office and goes out in the same mail with the Monday paper. The more important news, to the extent of two or three columns, is therefore published on Monday for the benefit of country subscribers who do not see the SUNDAY GLOBE.]

THE BRIBE GIVER.

PLAYING HIS USUAL GAME OF 'BURY' IN WASHINGTON.

The Facts Coming to Light Relative to the Offer of $5,000 to Springer for His Support—A Copy of the Document Making the Corrupt Offer to the Chairman of the Election Committee—The Matter Waxing Warm—And Springer Will Call for an Investigation To-morrow.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The reigning sensation of the day in Washington is the exposure of the attempt to bribe Springer, chairman of the committee on elections in the Donnelly-Washburn case. This is in accord with what has been proven against Washburn that the general belief is that the offer to Springer was prompted and authorized by Washburn in person. The Washington Post to-day says:

At the next regular meeting of the house election committee on Tuesday of the coming week, Mr. Manning will make certain charges against Mr. Springer, the chairman of the committee and demand an investigation to sustain his allegations against Mr. Springer in the matter of the Donnelly-Washburn contested election case.

Mr. Manning will add three points, which he claims to have evidence documentary and otherwise to substantiate. When Washburn's case was first referred to the sub-committee, composed of Manning, Beltzhoover, Armfield, Kiefer and Weaver, and after sufficient evidence had been taken to prove the frauds of which Mr. Washburn is now known to be guilty, an informal meeting of the Democratic members of the full committee was held at the house of Mr. Springer, at which those present unanimously agreed to support the sub-committee on any action it might take. Upon this the sub-committee went ahead, heard witnesses and arguments on both sides, and when the case was closed submitted a report, recommending the unseating of Washburn and the seating of Donnelly. With this result Mr. Springer professed himself to be in sympathy. His actions lately have shown that he has experienced a change of heart. It is the alleged facts which have led to this, that Mr. Manning is anxious shall be known.

Mr. Manning charges in substance that Mr. Springer has acted with the greatest duplicity throughout; that he has deceived his Democratic associates in the committee, with regard to his position, and that his conduct has been based upon corrupt grounds. Mr. Manning presents the following evidence of this: On the 9th day of March, Mr. Springer being then in New York, a letter was received at his house addressed to him, which his wife opened. It was in substance as follows:

WASHINGTON, March 7.—To Hon. Wm. M. Springer, Dear Sir—I earnestly advise that you do all in your power to prevent the House from unseating Washburn, of Minnesota, and putting Donnelly in his place. If you succeed in this, I am authorized to say that a present of $5,000 will be made to your wife.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) A REPUBLICAN.

Mrs. Springer, upon reading this, became very indignant, and immediately sent for the Hon. George W. Julian, of Indiana, Donnelly's counsel, and showed the letter to him. He sent for Mr. Donnelly, and the three read it and commented upon it together. Donnelly upon leaving went to Miss Sawyer, a member of the committee, and told her of the contents of the letter. As he was talking to her he received a message from Mr. Springer requesting him to call immediately. He did so and she informed him that she had doubts as to the propriety of her action in showing the letter in the absence of Mr. Springer, and requested that both he and Mr. Julian say nothing about it until her husband's return. This Mr. Donnelly promised, and visited Sawyer and Colerick and made the same request of them. Mr. Springer returned on the 9th and Mr. Donnelly immediately waited upon him, and after mentioning the fact of his having seen the letter referred to, he told Springer that he would be happy to aid him, as far as possible, to discover the author. He thought it was either Charles Johnson, Mr. Washburn's private secretary or the notorious Bill King, of Minnesota. Mr. Springer requested Donnelly to oblige him by saying nothing about the letter at all, and said, "I would not for $10,000 have it known that I have read such a letter."

"But Julian," urged Donnelly, "tell Julian that you will hold him responsible if it is shown in print. He will be blame and I will let you to pay him for it."

This last remark being repeated to Julian, he became indignant and went to Springer and demanded an explanation, whereupon Springer denied that he had made any statement.

Mr. Manning, in due time, heard of the letter and daily expected that Mr. Springer would bring the matter to the attention of the committee, but this he did not do and has not done.

Mr. Manning now charges that nothing but a corrupt construction can be placed upon such conduct.

In addition, he alleges that the fact of the letter being anonymous and its general tenor show that Mr. Springer was not entirely unaware of the identity of its author, in short that the letter was sent in pursuance of an agreement. These and other facts are alleged by Mr. Manning, who considers that they warrant an investigation, and he addressed a letter to Mr. Springer Thursday, in which he formulated charges as above stated, and announced to him the course he proposed to take.

Mr. Manning being called upon, substantiated all of the foregoing. If an investigation into Mr. Springer's conduct is ordered by the committee or the house, it is expected that some startling revelations of attempts by Washburn's friends to bribe other members of the house will be brought out at the attention of Mr. Springer stated that the article in the New York Tribune, yesterday, purporting to be a description of the scene in the elections committee, on Thursday, in which Mr. Manning viciously denounced him, was entirely unfounded.

[To the Western Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Donnelly-Washburn case is leading to new and unexpected complications. Mr. Springer, chairman of the House committee on elections, having received a letter from Representative Manning, stating that he proposed to prefer charges against him (Springer), affecting the motives which actuated his course and determined his vote in the case, Mr. Springer called the attention of the House to the matter and ask for an investigation.

Mr. Springer states that at the proper time he shall show his conduct in this country and that his vote was strictly in accordance with his convictions, and that not a shadow of foundation exists for any charge or insinuation of corrupt motives or improper influences.

Like Navigation Opened.

CHICAGO, April 3.—Four sail vessels, the first of the season through Buffalo, all on their way, left this afternoon. A considerable number will leave to-morrow and navigation may be said to have been fairly opened.

WASHINGTON CITY.

HEAP TALK DAY IN THE HOUSE OF CONGRESS.

A Variety of Subjects Variously Discussed—The Exclusion of Negroes from the West—The Rightly Contradicted—A New Departure for the Wisconsin and Minnesota Indians.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

(Second Session.)

The House, April 3.—The house met this morning, Mr. Carlisle in the chair, for debate only, and immediately went into committee of the whole on the state of the Union.

Mr. C. V. addressed the committee on the subject of the revision of the tariff, and argued especially in favor of a revision of the duty on steel rails, and in favor of placing chrome ore on the free list.

Mr. Joyce spoke in support of the bill providing for the improvement of the navigation of the Mississippi river, and argued especially in favor of the use of intoxicating drinks by the people of the country in two years cost them enough to pay the whole public debt.

Mr. Taylor addressed the committee in support of a bill to pension Mexican veterans.

Mr. Davis, of Missouri, advocated the passage of a bill to open up mail service and direct trade between the States of the Mississippi valley and Brazil.

Mr. Barry argued in support of a bill regulating the duties on the tariff of the United States.

Mr. Sparks argued in relation to the question of internal commerce, arguing that it was in the interest of Congress to fix the tariff of the United States to be charged by inter-state railroads for the carriage of freight. He expressed his disapproval of the bill adopted by the majority of the committee on commerce, and proposed a substitute which he believed to be more comprehensive and broad, and in his opinion, it should be.

Mr. Hank replied to a speech made some time ago by Mr. House, in which that gentleman had opened the Tilden campaign and reiterated the cry of fraud. The gentleman had expressed the sentiment that the people of the United States had been deceived by the frauds of which Mr. Washburn is now known to be guilty, an informal meeting of the Democratic members of the full committee was held at the house of Mr. Springer, at which those present unanimously agreed to support the sub-committee on any action it might take. Upon this the sub-committee went ahead, heard witnesses and arguments on both sides, and when the case was closed submitted a report, recommending the unseating of Washburn and the seating of Donnelly. With this result Mr. Springer professed himself to be in sympathy. His actions lately have shown that he has experienced a change of heart. It is the alleged facts which have led to this, that Mr. Manning is anxious shall be known.

Mr. Manning charges in substance that Mr. Springer has acted with the greatest duplicity throughout; that he has deceived his Democratic associates in the committee, with regard to his position, and that his conduct has been based upon corrupt grounds. Mr. Manning presents the following evidence of this: On the 9th day of March, Mr. Springer being then in New York, a letter was received at his house addressed to him, which his wife opened. It was in substance as follows:

WASHINGTON, March 7.—To Hon. Wm. M. Springer, Dear Sir—I earnestly advise that you do all in your power to prevent the House from unseating Washburn, of Minnesota, and putting Donnelly in his place. If you succeed in this, I am authorized to say that a present of $5,000 will be made to your wife.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) A REPUBLICAN.

Mrs. Springer, upon reading this, became very indignant, and immediately sent for the Hon. George W. Julian, of Indiana, Donnelly's counsel, and showed the letter to him. He sent for Mr. Donnelly, and the three read it and commented upon it together. Donnelly upon leaving went to Miss Sawyer, a member of the committee, and told her of the contents of the letter. As he was talking to her he received a message from Mr. Springer requesting him to call immediately. He did so and she informed him that she had doubts as to the propriety of her action in showing the letter in the absence of Mr. Springer, and requested that both he and Mr. Julian say nothing about it until her husband's return. This Mr. Donnelly promised, and visited Sawyer and Colerick and made the same request of them. Mr. Springer returned on the 9th and Mr. Donnelly immediately waited upon him, and after mentioning the fact of his having seen the letter referred to, he told Springer that he would be happy to aid him, as far as possible, to discover the author. He thought it was either Charles Johnson, Mr. Washburn's private secretary or the notorious Bill King, of Minnesota. Mr. Springer requested Donnelly to oblige him by saying nothing about the letter at all, and said, "I would not for $10,000 have it known that I have read such a letter."

"But Julian," urged Donnelly, "tell Julian that you will hold him responsible if it is shown in print. He will be blame and I will let you to pay him for it."

This last remark being repeated to Julian, he became indignant and went to Springer and demanded an explanation, whereupon Springer denied that he had made any statement.

Mr. Manning, in due time, heard of the letter and daily expected that Mr. Springer would bring the matter to the attention of the committee, but this he did not do and has not done.

Mr. Manning now charges that nothing but a corrupt construction can be placed upon such conduct.

In addition, he alleges that the fact of the letter being anonymous and its general tenor show that Mr. Springer was not entirely unaware of the identity of its author, in short that the letter was sent in pursuance of an agreement. These and other facts are alleged by Mr. Manning, who considers that they warrant an investigation, and he addressed a letter to Mr. Springer Thursday, in which he formulated charges as above stated, and announced to him the course he proposed to take.

Mr. Manning being called upon, substantiated all of the foregoing. If an investigation into Mr. Springer's conduct is ordered by the committee or the house, it is expected that some startling revelations of attempts by Washburn's friends to bribe other members of the house will be brought out at the attention of Mr. Springer stated that the article in the New York Tribune, yesterday, purporting to be a description of the scene in the elections committee, on Thursday, in which Mr. Manning viciously denounced him, was entirely unfounded.

[To the Western Associated Press.]

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Donnelly-Washburn case is leading to new and unexpected complications. Mr. Springer, chairman of the House committee on elections, having received a letter from Representative Manning, stating that he proposed to prefer charges against him (Springer), affecting the motives which actuated his course and determined his vote in the case, Mr. Springer called the attention of the House to the matter and ask for an investigation.

Mr. Springer states that at the proper time he shall show his conduct in this country and that his vote was strictly in accordance with his convictions, and that not a shadow of foundation exists for any charge or insinuation of corrupt motives or improper influences.

THE SAINT PAUL DAILY GLOBE.

BREEZY DOGS.

A MILD ZEPPHYR FANS A KANSAS TOWN.

An Old Church Yard Vault Caves In, Exposing the Bones of Thousands of Long Buried Dead—A Lustrous Fiend of Badgerdom Gone Up for Ten Years—Merry Asked for a Justly-Sentenced Criminal—The Pittsburgh Alms House Murder.

NEW YORK, April 3.—William Simpson, Jr., a pawnbroker, was shot this evening in his store, 27 Chatham street, by George C. Randolph, under indictment for an attempt to extort money from him by threats. Randolph and Simpson had at one time visited Miss Lumberly, whom Randolph married in December, 1877. Immediately after the marriage Randolph began demanding hush money from Simpson, and when Simpson refused to pay, Randolph refused to pay him, and on the 12th inst. Randolph, in connection with Simpson's former visits to the lady, various sums were paid from time to time, and at length Simpson received a check for $1,000. Immediately, however, Randolph renewed his demands, and upon writing a threatening letter was arrested. He was released on bail this afternoon. Randolph refused to speak with him, and Randolph drew a pistol and fired, the bullet striking the upper lip and ripping open the cheek, passing out the right ear. Simpson, who was in the room, was thrown over the counter, but a pistol to his back and fired a second bullet, which penetrated the liver and lodged near the spine. Randolph was arrested. The wounds are dangerous.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The vault of the Wesley M. E. church caved in, exposing to view an immense number of bodies, the rotted coffins being broken by falling brick.

Twenty or twenty-five years ago, when the age of sanitary reform began, the health authorities caused the vaults to be closed and their use abandoned. They were then filled. It was estimated that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both. As they after that fully 5,000 bodies had been deposited in both.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS.

The Liberal Victory a Complete One—D'Israeli Dished—The "Times" Insists That Gladstone Must Go Into the New Ministry—Supposed Effects in Russia, Germany, Turkey and India.

LONDON, April 3.—The defeat at York city of James Lambert, the conservative chief secretary for Ireland, is received with wild delight by the home rulers and nationalists in Ireland. Sir John Lubbock, liberal, defeated at Weid- district in the event that the Marquis of Hartington is successful in northeast Leicestershire, the latter having been elected for the Radnor district and not for Lancashire as previously announced. The poll for London union opened the 31st inst., and will remain open till the 6th inst. The voting is now over. Up to noon to-day Robert Lowe, liberal, chancellor of the exchequer in the Gladstone government, received 507 votes and A. Charles 494. A correspondence of the Times, at Berlin, says that the higher official circles there are of a liberal victory in the parliamentary elections in England are regarded with no small fear and trembling. The universal belief in Germany is that the liberal party would be much assured under a Tory than under a whig government.

The Saturday Review, independent, says: A constituency could not have given a much more liberal result than that which has been achieved, but why they have given it nobody can exactly say. Very probably many electors were tired of the government, merely because it had lasted six years in office, but there are some things the elections have placed beyond doubt. They show that publicans have not exercised the influence it was expected they would, that the liberals have not decided by a large margin, and that the moderates have much improved, and that the moderates have neither advanced nor gone over, but have voted with their party.

In an article on the consequences of the liberal victory, the Saturday Review says: It is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done. In the second place, we are in the presence of a general election, and we are in its effect abroad that the liberal victory will be the most far-reaching. We do not believe there will be joy at St. Petersburg at all. Gladstone's victory is a severe blow to the Tory idea. The next man who professes faith in the monarch and multitude must appeal to the latter on socialist grounds, and must specify the sacrifices that will be made for the people to their senses. No other man will ever have the banner of prestige as Lord Beaconsfield has done.