The GLOBE reporters ran across a number of persons residing within a few miles of St. Paul, yesterday. They were making a hurried visit to the city for needed supplies, and all of them say that the wheat harvest is in full blast, and that the yield is all more, than they expected. The weather so far has been the finest ever known.

A country cigar maker named Frank Murphy, was before his honor yesterday, charged with raising a ruckus on East Seventh street. Councilor Murray stated that his howling aroused the neighborhood, and it was explained that he wanted to fight the officer. A ministerial looking gent was loud in his encomiums of the defendant's character, but he paid $5 for the amusement and was discharged.

The city in the role of protector to the harlots. Pating them on the chin: Come into court, girls, and let us see your good dove; you can buy all the immunity you want, and we'll let you down light. The State to the city: Precious little good that taffy 'ill do 'em; havu't I told the giddy things that they must see me; but as long as they're long as they're long, I'll let 'em have it, and we'll let 'em have it, and we'll let 'em have it.

A shabby, grizzled and middle aged man named John McDonnell, was at the police court yesterday charged with being a vagrant. Early yesterday morning he was found by Sergeant Walsh pensively gazing into the abyss that yawns below Seventh street bridge. He stated to the court that he had just arrived in St. Paul, and had walked all the way from Nebraska, on his way to his home in the East. He seemed desirous to continue his journey and was given two hours in which to leave the city.

Mr. H. E. Newton, the enterprising editor of the Minnesota Farmer, is preparing for publication in that paper a very elaborate and valuable diagram of the business centre of St. Paul, including all the occupants now in business from Wacouta to Wabashaw streets and from the river to the Seventh street bridge. The diagram is particularly desirable, especially for the F-able and sickly. As a remedy for biliousness, dyspepsia, nervousness and bowel complaints, there is nothing comparable to this wholesome restorative.

The Hastings Arrests. In yesterday's GLOBE an exclusive account was given of the arrest at Hastings of three tramps supposed to be the Lake City thieves who robbed and frightened the teamster. Believing that the men belonged to the party of tramps who burglarized a hardware store at Shakopee, and who afterwards gave the police some trouble in St. Paul, Chief Weber telegraphed to Hastings yesterday morning for a description of the men.

In response to the telegram, Chief Weber received a description of the men yesterday afternoon, which tallied with the desperadoes whose operations caused so much trouble near the hardware store. Last evening Detective Bretet and Capt. Clark visited Hastings to identify the men.
