The Republican Jamberce in Honor of the Bribe-Giver Last Night-A Creditable Display Such as it Was-Seven or Eight Hundred Torches in Line -Spiritless Speeches at the Opera House-The Bribe-Giver Drinks Water or Something Else and Whines for Votes -The "Son of His Dad" Calls Attention to a Veteran Democrat.

The great, overwhelming, unapproachable and immense demonstration which the combined Republican party of St. Paul, Minneapolis, Stillwater and other cities have been making preparations for during the past two weeks and over, came off last evening, and the Grow hazards nothing in saying that it was a great disappointment to those who had so freely expended their money for the display. True, a portion of this disappointment is due to the state of the weather, but the Democratis turned out in numbers and lined the sidewalks to witness the "grand pageantry." Even they were disappointed, for the show did not come up to half their expectations.

The members of the various Garfield clubs in this city met according to announcement and proceeded to the vicinity of the Merchants hotel to await the arrival of the Iran and proceeded to the vicinity of the Merchants hotel to await the arrival of the state of the wanter of the party of the Merchants hotel to await the arrival of the state of the wanter of the party of the Merchants hotel to await the arrival of the state of the wanter of the party of the Merchants hotel to await the arrival of the strains bearing, the faithful from Minneapolis and Stillwater. Mr. Fitch made what might be called a flow-

roduced the crator of the evening, Thomas

Art. Fitch of Minnespolis.

Mr. Fitch made what might be called a flowcry speech. Nine-tenths of it was taffy. He has tramped from California through Arizona and Nevada to Minnesota. Taking out a few sentences and it would answer for almost nay occasion—say a church festival—as well as a protracted meeting. He commenced by giving his audience taffy about the interests of the two cittes being identical. Mr. Fitch is a stranger in Minnesota or he would know that Minneapolis acknowledges this fact only when she needs political or other aid from St. Paul.
He admitted the fact that St. Paul had the advantage of Minneapolis in one respect only, viz.: St. Paul had the most Democrats. This statement was received with loud applause.
Passing from this he asked the standing conundrum, "Why should a workingman be a Democrat?" and for nearly a half hour he endeavored to make his audience believe that there were no workingmen in the United States of America except the black men of the South. He rung the changes upon this from every standpoint. The Republican party was brought into power for the express purpose of befriending the black man, and all that a poor white man's interest and welfare. Redacing Mr.
Fitch's entire speech to a nutshell and it simply amounted to this—that the United States of America was created and kept in existence for the special purpose of looking after the negro, and any poor white laboring man who

The bribe giver had been sitting nervously in his seat all the evening running his fingers in his hair and shuffling about in his chair, evidently greating the property of th knows how to use. He said he was ashamed of Maine, because he used to live there, but the audience evidently pitied Maine, as every little while some one shouted "Bibley." After telling a thrilling story about his attempt to ride one of Bill fing's bulls, and getting thrown over the fence, he said he wanted to say a word "personal." By this time he was thirsty sgain, some two or three minutes having slapsed since his previous drink. As soon as he got himself outside of the water he glued his hands into his overcoat pockets again and said he felt had about the way he was treated by St. Paul two years ago. He said the mean, narrow jealousy of St. Paul towards Minneapolis had prevented his getting his full party vote, and he hoped they wouldn't use him so again. He had always been a friend (1) of St. Paul. The two cities were bound to be a big thing, and he was a friend of both.

were bound to be a big thing, and he was a friend of both. He proceeded with this whine for five minutes, and then took his seat with friend of both. He proceeded with this whine for five minutes, and then took his seat with his hands still in his pockets. The band oright to have played "The Rogue's March," but by some mistake struck up Yankee Doodle.

The posters had annoused "Windom, Washburn, Dunneil, Blaine and Fitch" as the speakers, and as most of them were absent. Walker Blaine was introduced as the son of his dad. He fell out of his overcout as rapidly as the "character changers" at theaters, and with a Dundreary lisp, told why he wam't a Democrat—as though that party was not a great deal more rejciced over the fact than he could possibly be. He essayed a little scripture and spoke of the Saviour as a Democrat, which while a historical fact was an unfortunate bit of intornation to give a Bepublican meeting, especially as he complimented that early member of the Democratic party. After telling a story which chronologically ranks B. C., the son of his dad lisped his last lisp, hitched up to his chair and fell into his overcoat.

had not held his hands in front of his duodenum. He thought St. Paul was a Republican city if the Republicans would flight for it.
He was sorry that local jealousy caused Washburn to be cut, and he hoped the bribe giver would receive a full party vote. This was such an effort that it evidently wrenched him and without further ado he separated his supplicating fingers and declared the meeting adjourned. He was evidently ashamed of himself for having asked the people of St. Paul to vote for Bill Washburn the bribe giver.

The audience rushed out into the midnight
atr without a cheer or sign of enthusiasm.

Searle, the oil company's agent in St. Paul, was one of the first on hand, and by his direction attention was turned to saving the tanks and boiler room. For some time this was done with one stream, the first work being done with one stream, the first work being done on the biler room, and when this was a portion of the crowd proceeded to the Opera House.

At the Opera House.

Some doubt was expressed as to whether the crowd would be allowed to eccupy the Opera House, as the managers were very properly nawilling to open the doors without having some gaarantee that the rental should be paid. At the last moment Arderman Bell came manfully to the front and gave his personal obligation for the amount, when the folding a marvel how the itemen could work as nearly done with one stream, the first work being done on the biler room, and when this was all wetted down, the timber foundations of the two tanks were respectively played upon, and the fire thus completely checkmated. The Proceedings of the Protestant Episcopal Convention-The Tennesses Baptists -Congressional Councils.

The Episcopalians.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.-The fourteenth day's session of the Protestant Episcopal general convention opened with the presentation to the house of deputies of the report of the commit-tee on the general theological seminary. An ednowment fund of $250,000 has been estab-lished to provide suitable salaries for the pro-fessors and to enlarge the educational staff. Towards the sum there had already been re-ceived $52,000. During the last year there were ninety-four students—a larger attendance than at any period since its organization. The report closed with a presentation of a list of trustees, one or more from every diocese in the United States. The report was adopted and ordered printed.

Dr. Shattuck, of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee on expenses, recovered that AUERBACH, FINCH, respective churches annually to pay these expenses.

Dr. Shattnok said they would be obliged to look to the dioceses. There being every evidence of a long debate on the subject, the matter was placed on the calendar, to be taken up in the regular order.

The order of the day was then called, being the proposed amendment to article six of the constitution, the article reading as follows: The mode of trying bishops shall be provided bythe general convention. The court appointed for that purpose shall be composed of bishops only. In every diocese the mode of trying Presbyters and deacons, the mode to be instituted by the convention of the diocese, A proposition submitted by Mr. Bergevin, ef Pittsburgh, was embodied in a resolution that article six of the Episcopal convention constitution be amended by inserting after the words "convention of the dioceses" the words "until the general convention provide a general judicial system," and a further resolutian that the proposed amendment to the constitution be made known to the several diocesism conventions. Speeches were made in favor of the proposition by Mr. Bergevin, Rev. Dr. Schenck, Judge Comstock, Mr. Judd and Mr. Easter, of Springfield. It was vigorously opposed by Montgomery Bisir, of Maryland, Rev. Dr. Adams, of Wisconin, and Rev. Dr. Wilder, of Minnesota.

Rev. Dr. Adams, of Wisconin, and Rev. Dr. Wilder, of Minnesota.

After recess debate on the amendment of the constitution was continued, when Wm. Bergevin, having closed a speech, changed his proposed amendment and authorized the general convention to establish a court of appeal to revise the decision of diocesan cours. The amendment was adopted, 122 ayes to 117 noes, and the vote on article six of the constitution, as amended, declared lost on vote of the clergy; ayes 24, noes 19; one diocese dithe clergy; ayes 24, noes 19; one diocese divided. A message was received from the house of bishops nominating Rev. Jno. Houston Eccleston, of Northern New Jersey, missionary bishop of Washington Territory. The lord bishop of Huron, Canada, was introduced, and briefly addressed the house. Adjourned till to-morrow.

POTGHEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 21 .- The Congregational association of this State has decided upon the following address to the national council, which meets at $\frac{1}{2}$ t. Louis. The address says: As churches individually dependent upon, and loyal to our Lord Jesus Christ, and the better to promote that fellowship and remove the possible danger of separation and division, we suggest to you the consideration of the propriety of reaching such amendment to the constitution of the national council, in entire conformit with its assets. conformity with its essential spirit and purpose, as may be necessary to make it in the nature of a con-ference of churches, devoting itself wholly to Chris-tian communion and the diffusion of intelligence with regard to the character of our faith and to the discussion of practical and spiritual questions, with-out taking any votes not necessary to maintenance of its own order and organization.
