West Virginia. WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 6. - The contest in this Congressional district between Wilson, Democrat, and Hutchinson, Republican, has been very close—so close that the latter's election was a long time, until the last day or two, confidently claimed. It would seem from the latest reliable returns now that Wilson has about 62 majority. He had 3,400 plarality two years ago. New York Special (Nov. 4) to Chicago Times. The Democrats find that the increase of the Republican vote in this city this year over 1876 is 23,165, while the increase in the Democratic vote is only 10,574, making a gain of 12,594 votes for the Republicans. They say that this surprising growth of Republicanism here is of artificial creation, and another fraud yell of large proportions is being raised. They can account for this only on the theory that New York city was colonized to a frightful extent. Moreover, they say they know that the Republicans bought votes by wholesale, paying $5 for them in the morning and twice that sum late in the day; that into supporting Garfield, and that the managers of the street car companies compelled their employes to vote the Republican ticket. The executive committee of Tammany hall promise to give the matter their careful attention, and if appalling frauds are not nearthed it will be through no lack of searching on Tammany's part. These reports gave rise to-night to absurd rumors that New York State might after all be counted for Hancock, and the World office has been delaged with dispatches from all over the country

ASKING FOR INFORMATION.

Mr. William H. Hulburt, editor of the World, has sent to all inquirers the following dispatch:

The Democrats of the interior have done unexpectedly well when left to themselves, but there is no visible prospect that the returns from the interior of the State will ounteract the effect of the disastrous and inexcusable failure of the Democratic leaders of New York city and Brooklyn to cast the full Democratic vote for Hancock and English.

It is believed that the Democrats intend to

they possibly can over the alleged fraudulent voting of the Republicans in New York and Kings counties. The Tammany committee on the organization met to-night and did not adjourn until midnight. John Kelly offered a resolution declaring that it was well understood that a large number of persons not residents of the city had been imported into it, and had voted illegally, and that the counsel of the committee, Messrs. Wingate and Anderson, be autorized and requested to take such action as may be necessary to procure the arrest and punishment of such illegal voters, and to prosecute the cases in the priminal courts of this city, and that district committees and district committees and associations are requested to examine the registry of voters and poll lists for the purpose of procuring such information as will enable counsel to obtain warrants of arrest for these violations of the clection law. The resolution, at Mr. Kelly's request, was laid on the table for future acion. He read a statement showing that the Republican increase was 23 per cent., while the Democratic increase was but 10 per cent. The extraordinary large vote as compared with the registration should also receive attention. A long discussion followed, in which everybody agreed that there had been an extensive colonization by the Republican managers, and a lavish use of money, and all were certain that Tammany had not in any manner sold out, and that the nomi-nation of Mr. Grace had not injured the prospects of Gen. Hancock. Mr. Kelly then defended, in a half hour's speech, his action in PUTTING UP GRACE FOR MAYOR.

He said the only thing urged against Grace was that he was an Irishman and a Catholic, and he told the conference committee that if Grace was a capable man his nationality and religion were no objection at all. Mr. Kelly's fraud resolution was then adopted, and a committee of one from each assembly district was appointed to carry it into effect.

Holders of Bonds Who are Probably Laboring Under a Mistake—Coinage— Distribution of Dad's Dollars.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 .- It is ascertained that a few of the bonds of February 8, 1861, commonly known as issues of '80 have been filed in the treasury department for payment the last day of next month. Secretary Sherman is desirous of investing the surplus revenue in these bonds each week instead of holding the money in the treasury, and he has offered as high as $1.02\frac{3}{4} for them, $1.03 being their value when redeemed two months hence, but, Secretary Sherman says "the holders have not shown a disposition to sell even at this highly profitable rate."

From the tenor of letters received at the treasury department it is inferred that some owners of these bonds are confounding them with those payable in July next, being guided perhaps by the inscription, "Loan of 1861" on the face of the bond. The sixes of '80 are, however, easily distinguishable from the bonds due in July, as they are of a larger size, printed all in a block on thin white paper; whereas the '81s are printed with green, red and buff and borders.

The total coinage at the United States mints during October was, gold $3,978,835; silver $2,279,000. During the week ending November 6, 1880, there were distributed 504,495 standard silver dollars. During the corresponding week of '79 but 327,282 standard silver dollars were distributed.

Much Ado About a Biack Forger.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 .- The hearing in the case of Samuel L. Perry, the exodus leader, on a writ of habeas corpus sued out to prevent his removal to North Carolina as a fuginve from justice on charge of raising a school teacher's certificate from $15 to $45, was resumed before Judge Wylie in chambers to-day. G. K. Bagley, agent of the State, was cross-examined by Wilson. Judge Wylie stopped questions which implied a political motive for the remoavl of Perry, saying his duty was to decide on the case as presented and he would not presume that excessive punishment or prosecution would be inflicted on the man if returned. As the eyes of the whole country were on him and as his party was in the majority he would not be without friends. A lively exchange of views took place between Merrick for the State and Wilson, regarding the administration of law in North Carolina, and the existence of the Ku Klux. Prof. Greener asked on behalf of the petitioner if Bagley had ever heard of the KuKlux, but the question was ruled out. Marshal Fred Douglas was called to testify as to the state of the country, but he had not been in Lenair county. Arguments were then proceeded with and were in progress when the hearing was adjourned until Monday.

The Rate War Revived.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The railroad war started afresh to day. This time the Illinois Central is the chief agressor, baving been selling tickets to St. Louis for $5, in order to protect itself against the large number of unlimited cheap tickets issued by other roads during the recent war, and for the redemption of which no provision was made. The Central claims to have good grounds for its action, since its president did not attend the New York meeting which patched up the fight. Rates to St. Louis to day were $4, and the Wabash again states that it will sell a dollar cheaper than other roads. Rates to Kansas City range from $8 to $10, according to which road sells them

At Hammersmith bridge Riley was leading slightly, Laycock rowing easy. Immediately after passing the bridge Laycock began to forge ahead and maintained his lead throughout. THE BIG BLOW OUT!

Radical Racket-Penny Trumpets, and Sick Citizens-Blowing for Garfield, and Dodging for Shame-The Fireworks Were Pretty, But the Procession! O. Mosest-A Weak Display and Fiat Speeches.

The great event-that was to be astonishng in the way of jubilation—the tremendous 'outburst of popular enthusiasm" has come and gone, and—two men are hurt, as will be found in another part of the GLOBE. At about the hour appointed, the procession, lighted by a few straggling torches, started from the State house and straggled away down Tenth street, to Jackson, where they turned and came out the latter toward Third. Near the corner of Jackson and Seventh the display of fireworks was really fine. But what cau we ssy of the parade? Taken as a whole, when it started it bade fair to prove at least a fair display, but taken as about an eighth, when it ended, it was a weak, sick, sad ending of what had been so pompously roared in the index. When coming down Jackson from Tenth the parade was fairly full, about one-half, on a perfectly fair estimate, made by Republicans, were boys. 'Tis true there were a few middle aged men and a few more starchy, "best dressed young men" with Picadilly collars and an imbedile expression, both worn to-gether, and when they passed Seventh nearly all were blowing penny trumpets or six penny horns. But the entirety of the procession began to be broken in upon before it reached Third street. The older ones, seeing the adolescent character of the tooting mob with which they were associated, began to drop out at every favorable opportunity. By the time Third was reached a goodly number of the more sensible portion had disappeared, though not at all mysteriously, for they could be seen slipping away in every direction. Seeing how the old thing worked Ury Porter cut across and headed the crowd again at the Metropolitan. There he found that the "Grand Demonstration" had dwindled down about one-third. Striking down to the Market house, he there found all the older and wiser heads had disappeared and that even a few of the Picadily's had slid out. But the mob of boys were all there, and in high feather. They screamed, they howled, they teoted on their tin trampets-but they were only imitiating the example set them by their elders at the beginning the march, and it was real boy fun. There was music, and rockets, and roman candles, and yelling, and general foolishness, and what more could a boy want to ensure him a high old time. The affair was a good game for the boys, and they will not forget it for a fortnight at least. The older heads who were inveigled into exhibiting themselves in a humiliating attitude being themselves in a humiliating attitude before the whole people of St. Paul, will remember it much longer. Men do not soon forget the mortifying events which have marked their career, and this "Grand Demonstration," as it was pompously heralded, will be a sore subject to several people for several years to come, and the onlookers will remember the heaptiful display of fireworks. remember the beautiful display of fireworks for the splendid scenic effects produced long after they have forgotten "what, in thunder, it was all about anyhow."

One of the exciting episodes of last night's bloviating conclave was a forensic display between a white torch bearer and a maiden of dusky hue, around whom a ring was formed at the Market house corner, the entertainment ending, after the passing of disgusting "compliments," by the white brother smashing his torch over the head of the African female. Though "police" was lustily called by onlookers, the man got away before he could be apprehended.

THE MARKET HALL BLOW.

About 9 o'clock a meagre number of those who had not grown disgusted with the rag-tag and bob tailed affair went into Market hall, the place in which it was announced addresses would be made by a number of distinguished citizens. The latter were on hand early, and with characteristic foresight they pre-empted the eligible seats on the platform, a place eminently calculated to display the prodigious capacity for pleasing the rabble and splitting the ears of the groundlings. But the rabble didn't show up, and there was a dismal vacancy about the hall that made even the most dis tinguished speakers look sick. Nearly every person in the course of their ifetime has experienced the awful incubus that arises from a sense of vacancy, or the absence of something to fill up a given circumference of space. All who have experi-enced this nightmare of the senses will appreciate the situation at Market hall last night. There were speakers enough, primed to the nozzles with radical taffy, but the "waiting multitude" did not materialize, and the uncertain glimmer of a few sickly lamps, and the hollow reverberation of each footfall reminded one very much of a fashionable

Had jolly Jack Falstaff been present he could have mustered a crew to the queen's aste, and one that would have made the immortal brigade of ragmuffins look sick. Finally Diabolic Driscoll, chairman, conseived the idea that it was about time the "mob" were regaled with some speeches. Then followed about as preposterous an exhibition of radical yarn as was ever spun over fifty minutes of time. To begin with, there was that pink of sublimated loilty and politeness, J. Ham Davidson, who spooned up the variations on the old, old story in a style "peculiarly" his own.

On the conclusion of his remarkable address it is impossible to describe the frantic efforts of the "mob"—to vamoose that hall. But some of the "trooly loil" hadn't had enough and they drank in more of the old stuff as it fell from the honeyed lips of ex-Governor Marshall, that paragon of political tinkers, Capt. Castle, Walter Blaine and the new apostle of radicalism, H. S. Fairchild. small fry, who held forth, but the "dropped" on the palaver and the "trooly" good were fain to close their yawp or talk to the walls. So they left.
