Is the senate going to adjourn, leaving Gorham and Riddleberger lung up by the heels? Chicago Times.

Charley Johnson hangs by his ears. JEFF DAVIS is en route to Canada. It is to be hoped that the citizens of that country will offer him liberal inducements to remain among them.

TOMMY PLATT'S Senatorial career was brief but brilliant. It consisted of a single act—that of resigning his seat for the sake of advertising his subservency to Conkling.

HALF-BREDS is the contemptuous phrase with which the Conklingites designate those Republicans who oppose his arrogant dictation. It looks as if it will yet be turned into a term of honor instead of reproach.

The administration claims fifty of the members of the New York legislature. It is probable that this is an exaggerated estimate of Garfield's adherents, but even with half the number Conkling's return to the Senate can be defeated.

It would be a little unkind of Cornell to accept Conkling's seat in the Senate, but he will do it if he gets the chance, though he owes all that he is and has to Conkling. Gratitude is not a distinguishing characteristic of politicians.

Now that Conkling's goose has been cooked the administration may be able to spare a little time for the prosecution of the star route swindlers, who seem to have been overlooked during the recent rumpus. The rascals must be hunted down.

Two distinguished archbishops of the Catholic church are on the verge of the grave. Archbishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, and Archbishop Parnell, of Milwaukee. Both have labored long and ably in the service of the church, and go to their graves covered with years and honors.

Its getting to be nip and tuck between Conkling and the administration in New York, and the chances are that neither Conkling nor Platt will succeed in obtaining a vindication from the legislature. They find that men without patronage are not as great powers in the political world as they supposed.

With Grant kicked out of Mexico, and Conkling out of the Senate, what is to become of the stalwarts? It is very evident that they are losing their grip a little. Logan and Don Cameron appear to be the only members of the once famous cab, and neither of these gentlemen are feeling particularly bright.

GRANT is coming back from Mexico, having been refused the railroad concessions he asked from that government. It is possible that he will accept the presidency of the world's fair commission or anything else that will pay. He has run the pension business into the ground, however, and need expect no further favors in that direction.

CONKLING is not a candidate for reelection to the Senate, but give him a chance at the office and see how eagerly he will grasp it. He fancied that he would be able to run in again upon a wave of popular favor, but there are so many candidates for the office that there is a strong probability that popular favor will take a different turn, and leave him out in the cold.

If the Pioneer Press will follow the Tribune's suit and suspend its Monday issue there will be no newspaper immorality left for the clergy to combat. Breed can then devote his entire time to abusing the Democracy instead of as now being obliged to put in superhuman licks to save that shining light in the House of Hope—the business manager of the P. P.

THE New York socialists have protested against the execution of Henny Helfman, the female nihilist implicated in the plot for the assassination of the late czar of Russia. This settles the business for it is not possible that the junior Alexander will dare to oppose the wishes of so august a body as the socialists of New York, headed by so important a personage as John Swinton.

Relieved from duty for the day by the new departure at the Metropolitan, Messrs. C. Mitchell and A. Swift, of the Minnesota Tribune, attended church in St. Paul yesterday.

W. B. and J. Close, Le Mars, and J. B. Close, England, the famous Close brothers, whose farming, land selling and colonizing operations are the leading features of the progress of northwestern Iowa, are guests of the Metropolitan.

"Olivette" To-Night. The first production of Andrus's popular opera, "Olivette," in St. Paul this evening, will no doubt attract a large crowd. The New York Evening Post, one of the best musical authorities in the country, has this to say of it:

The gaiety and humor which characterizes the opera of "Olivette," is thoroughly comic, and the absence of all conventionalities to which there is always a strong tendency in the works of the more popular French authors of the day, the lightness and novelty of the airs are attractive in themselves, but it is to be regretted that the opera is marred by the absence of good fortune for "Olivette" has been brought out by a company who seem to appreciate the spirit with which such operas should be given.

MINNEAPOLIS JOURNALISM.

The Minneapolis Tribune of yesterday, announced that hereafter it would issue but six numbers a week, omitting the Monday edition. It couples this new departure with a reduction from a seven to a six column folio.

It is not likely that the readers will miss one or two issues per week, of the Tribune, and we would suggest that it take a holiday in the middle of the week, omitting the Thursday issue for that purpose. The same argument by which the Tribune demonstrated to its own satisfaction—that the world would stand still and have nothing happen for twenty-four hours, in order to enable it to stop publication for one day in the week, can be made to apply to two days. There is even a stronger argument for the suspension on Thursday as well as Monday, from the fact that the Tribune establishment having only the Sabbath for publication, devotes that day to festivity, beer gardens and rollicking generally. If Thursday's issue was also omitted they could attend church on Sunday and devote Wednesday to sleeping. The GLOBE calls the attention of Brothers Blackley and Nettleton to this missionary suggestion.

The Tribune needs time to study the new revision of the New Testament and it ought to have it. The Minneapolis people do not need any other newspaper than the GLOBE.

THE PAPACY AND LIBERTY.

Rev. Samuel G. Smith's Series of Anti-Catholic Discourses. The First Methodist church was again crowded to its utmost capacity last evening to listen to the third of the series of anti-Catholic discourses, which the Rev. Mr. Smith is delivering. His subject last evening was "Papacy and Liberty," and the following is a brief abstract:

Essential Protestantism, he said, is not a dogmatism but an historic study. It accepts Jesus Christ as its present and living head. So it emphasizes authority. It claims the right of the undivided to exercise private judgment and conscience, and so it emphasizes liberty. It antagonizes the corrupt additions of papacy, and so appeals from the Catholic church, an intruder during the dark ages, to the primitive church founded by Christ and his apostles, which has no trace of Romanism in it. Protestantism, then, and not the Roman church, is the conservator of primitive Christianity.

The Protestants too, and not the Romanists, preserve the unity of the church; for it is the additions made by the Roman church against which we protest. The Romanists by their innovations divided christendom and became the great schismatic, so that to-day she is separated from the largest part of the Christian world. Thus the essential faith of Protestantism is the most ancient. Its constant effort is toward unity, and its abiding principle is liberty.

Will you show that Romanism is an essential despotism. Its principle of irresponsible authority and blind obedience crushes out reason, the soul's light.

Mr. Smith then quoted at length from the syllabus of errors issued by Pope Pius to prove that the Roman Catholic church presented: 1. An attack on conscience. 2. An attack on religious liberty. 3. An attack on the public schools. 4. An attack on the freedom of the press. 5. An attack on when the pope had the temporal power nothing was published but by consent of his holiness.

He claimed that one could not judge by the avowal of Catholics in Protestant countries, when by searching their dark records of crime against human rights in every country where they had possessed the power. She claims to be always the same, and so cannot escape her record.

Mr. Smith spoke of the danger of foreign socialists, and Roman Catholics, while eulogizing intelligent and thrifty foreigners. He closed with an appeal to the people to stand by the principles laid down by the fathers of our nation, and so to preserve our liberties.

A SUNDAY FIGHT.

Lively Rumpus on Minnesota Street Yesterday Afternoon. About as lively a ruction as St. Paul has had for many a day, occurred at the corner of Fourth and Minnesota streets yesterday afternoon, resulting in a harvest of black eyes and bloody noses. It was a free-for-all-go-as-you-please affair, and the liveliest man in the circus was witnessed by a couple hundred spectators.

As usual the fight was inspired by whisky and resulted from bad feeling between the members of the principal hotels. Bob Dine, Wm. Kelly and John Murphy, the two former having been the aggressors. The men had visited several saloons in the vicinity and the benzine commenced to show itself about that hour. Dine and Kelly were on Minnesota, near Fourth street, when Murphy came up and something was said about an old feud. Suddenly both men jumped onto Murphy and downed him. The ruffians then seized the stones from the street and commenced to apply them to the prostrate man's head.

Several friends of both parties jumped in and for a moment the melee was general. Among those who intervened the outrage was Mr. John Bell, a resident in that vicinity, who essayed the task of peacemaker and went to the assistance of Murphy. Matters commenced to look serious and great excitement was created. The police officers, Officers Larson and Bahr dashed upon the scene, and Dine, Kelly and Murphy were put under arrest.

Murphy was released on bail yesterday afternoon, and the case will be sifted this morning.

THE CORRESPONDENCE.

Wherein Garfield Hoped Brady Would Help—Dear Hubbell Tells All About It.

"Why don't you give to the public the letter you wrote to Gen. Garfield requesting him to ask Brady to ask the star route contractors to contribute for campaign expenses?" I asked to-day of Congressman Hubbell, the chairman of the Republican Congressional committee.

"Never wrote such a letter," was the reply. "There is no such letter in existence, and never was."

"What is all this talk of the star route organs about then? If there is anything wrong, it's a good time to make a confession."

Mr. Hubbell said: "There was nothing to it. I was working hard. We were not riding around on crutches in our committee, but working with our coats off to elect Gen. Garfield President."

WE WERE HARD UP, and wanted money to pay printing bills. I remember it all, and have no objection to telling the whole story. I went to Brady as I went to others whom I knew, and asked why he didn't know Garfield wanted him to give Campaigns are made, according to the old proverb, not treated. He gave me the right in refusing to support his projects in Congress.

Mr. Hubbell said he was going to the White House and would get the letter if it had been preserved. He would not give it to me, but I let him keep the letter. He handed it back to me shortly after."

"Why not make your letter public," asked the correspondent, "since Brady has published Garfield's answer?"

"Why, I kept no copy of such letters." "Why didn't the President give it out?" "The President of the United States can't take notice of such things. He would never see the letter if he were to see it. Besides the letter was a private one."

from me to him, and Gen. Garfield is not in the habit of publishing the private letters which he receives."

"The letter was yours, and you can with propriety make it public."

Mr. Hubbell said he was going to the White House and would get the letter if it had been preserved. He would not give it to me, but I let him keep the letter. He handed it back to me shortly after."

"THE ORIGINAL LETTER, of which this is a copy: 'HEADQUARTERS REPUBLICAN CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE, WASHINGTON, D. C., AUG. 19, 1880.—(Personal.)—My Dear General: I am a good deal annoyed in interesting friends with the story of the campaign. Many are apathetic, and while they are profuse in good wishes and ready to encourage by words, yet that does not pay printing bills and other expenses. Gen. Brady, if he would perhaps do something to help you, I am satisfied that, on an intimation from you that such a thing would be appropriate, he would perhaps do something for me. Indeed, he has intimated as much to me. Won't you please set him right, or in some way express a desire for his aid, for I will need help very much now. Respectfully yours, J. A. HUBBELL, 'To Hon. James A. Garfield, Mentor, O.'"

"THERE IT IS," said Mr. Hubbell. "The original document. If you print it, I wish you would print the reply of Gen. Garfield with it, so the whole story can be seen at once. Don't make it appear, however, that I have any quarrel with Brady, for I have none. After all, the campaign was over. I advanced some money of my own, and Gen. Brady gave me his check for a part of the sum. I suppose it was his own personal contribution."

THE FOLLOWING IS GEN. GARFIELD'S REPLY TO Mr. Hubbell's letter, August 23, 1880.—My Dear Hubbell: Yours of the 16th inst. received and contents noted. Please let me know if you hope he will give us all the assistance possible. Please let me how the Departments generally are doing. As ever yours, J. A. GARFIELD.

"THE Hon. Jay A. Hubbell, Washington, D. C. The Duke of Sutherland in Chicago. CHICAGO, May 21.—The Duke of Sutherland and retinue arrived early this morning, and went to the Grand Pacific hotel, where they will be entertained during their stay here. They will visit the chief points of interest to-day in the company with the mayor and other citizens. The duke is accompanied by a retinue, and was greeted with hearty cheers at the wharves by the duke, with Dr. Russell, the noted correspondent, and Hon. Jno. B. Drake, occupied a box at the Grand opera house. The play, which is comedy, 'The Braggart Soldier,' was the party entered the theater the orchestra played 'God Save the Queen,' and the audience, good naturedly, waved their handkerchiefs and fans, and applauded."

LAKE CITY, Colo., May 21.—The sheriff of Rio Grande county last night captured three of a gang of highwaymen near this place. Among them was the notorious criminal Billy Rebeck, who escaped some time ago from a detour of United States marshal at Kansas Pacific train while being taken to Detroit penitentiary. Leroy resisted capture and was badly wounded in the leg by the sheriff's revolver. This gang robbed a mail coach on the 14th inst., killing a passenger, named Frank Bartlett, and citizens threatened to lynch the robbers."

MEMORIAL TABLET. CHICAGO, May 21.—The site of the old Fort Durbin was to-day perpetuated by the erection of a memorial tablet, under the auspices of the Chicago Historical society. The Fort was for many years a landmark. It was established in 1804, vacated in 1823, and reconquered in 1828. From it withdrew finally from it in 1836, and in 1839 it was again reconquered. This corner is free, and all true lovers of real art, and the beautiful in nature, should avail themselves of the opportunity to listen to Col. Fairman to-morrow evening. The lecturer is not only a great artist, but is gifted with rare oratorical powers."

Prof. Cromwell, whose magnificent Art Illustrations are world famous, says that he had some time ago suffered excruciating tortments from rheumatism, and had tried all kinds of medicines and so called cures—all without effect. He heard, however, of St. Jacobs Oil, and he heard of it a trial, which he did, and its effect upon him was almost magical. A complete cure was effected, and since then he had never suffered from rheumatism."

Plies. Plies are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some ailment of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At this time symptoms of indigestion are present, and a morbidness of the stomach, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Internal itching and itching piles often attend the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and causing the hemorrhoids to fall. Do not delay until the drain of the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, and when you cannot obtain it, send for it, and it will be repaid, on receipt of price. Address The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio."

Many of our citizens went down to the Union Park concert yesterday, and enjoyed themselves "to the fullest extent of the law." It is announced that John A. Thompson and Mr. Mrs. Josiah Moore will leave this evening for an extended visit in New England.

Prof. Downey of the State university, by special request, gave his lecture on the "Religious Uses of Adversity" in the tabernacle last evening. To-morrow evening Geo. N. Morgan Post, G. A. R., will hold a regular meeting in Good Templars' hall. The meeting will be addressed by Comrade Marsh.

W. P. Roberts, of this city, and Miss Margie Martin, of Lake City, will attend the Right Worthing Grand Lodge, I. O. G. Is the real cause for withdrawing the Monday issue of that paper occasioned by conscientious scruples against working on the Sabbath, as claimed, or is it purely a question of economy? Who can answer?

The common council will meet on Wednesday evening, when an "official organ" will be elected. There are three competitors for the "honors"—the Tribune, Journal and Herald. The latter bids the lowest and the first the highest.

A large number of our leading citizens attended the lecture of Col. Fairman at the Hennepin avenue Baptist church last evening. The subject was "Skepticism from a Layman's Standpoint," which was handled in a thorough and able manner.

The following is a list of students who take part in the exercises on class day at the university: Tree orator, H. B. Bonwill; class orator, W. L. King; poet, W. C. Bryant; historian, Miss S. E. Palmer; prophet, Q. J. Rowley; president of the class, W. H. Savage.

A large number of Minneapolisians took advantage of the beautiful weather yesterday, and enjoyed an excursion on the motor to lakes Calhoun and Harriet. These popular pleasure excursions are now the fashion of boating, fishing and basket picking.

It is a noticeable fact that the representative men of our city fail to manifest the interest in Decoration Day observance which they have always heretofore expressed. The enterprising parties who are this year doing the preparatory labor necessary to the success of the occasion are generally the younger people. Why is this? Is patriotism degenerating?

Fire Art. To-morrow evening Col. Fairman will deliver his second lecture upon "Fine Art: Language of Nature," in the lecture room of the Universalist church. Through a misapprehension, the lecture of Saturday evening was not so well attended as it should have been. It had been erroneously advertised to occur in Curtis' hall, instead of the Universalist church, and besides, many supposed an error was made in the date. This course is free, and all true lovers of real art, and the beautiful in nature, should avail themselves of the opportunity to listen to Col. Fairman to-morrow evening. The lecturer is not only a great artist, but is gifted with rare oratorical powers."
