

GARFIELD'S LAST DAY.

An Interesting Review of How He Passed His Last Hours.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 19.—The day opened gloomily at Elberon. The night had been one of comparative comfort, and at daylight the physicians thought that the president was a little better.

The vitality of the president once more astonished the physicians. Dr. Agnew said, when he came from the sick chamber, "The vitality of the president is something more remarkable than I have ever met with in any practice."

After the rigor had passed the president fell asleep, and although his pulse was still beating at 120 yet his temperature had not decreased more than a tenth of a degree or so below the normal point.

Gen. Swain said: "Oh, no. Don't do that, general. See if you cannot get some sleep."

Mrs. Garfield then gave him the hand glass. He held it in a position which enabled him to see his face.

In a moment or two he asked for his daughter Mollie. They told him that she would come to see him in the day.

Dr. Agnew came from the cottage at about 11 o'clock, and when he reached the villa he found the president in a gentlemanly way with a personal note from Gen. Grant.

After the noon examination there was very little change in the president's condition, except that it was noticed that there was mental confusion.

Mrs. Garfield sat for a part of the day at the window. Her face was pale and pensive, and she was very nervous and resigned.

STARTLING REPORT.

Alleged Falsity of the Autopsy—How the Bullet Was Found—Details Avoided.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The following special order has been issued from the navy department: "Struck down by the hand of a cowardly assassin, in the day of his vigor and usefulness, on the eve of departure from the capitol, in search of much needed rest, from the toils and cares of office, our chief magistrate, president and commander-in-chief, James A. Garfield, after bearing with fortitude untold suffering, succumbed and yielded up his life at Elberon, N. J., on the evening of the 19th instant.

The navy yards will be closed and all work suspended during the 90 days period. The period of mourning by half masted colors will cease at sunset.

Professor David Swing of Chicago, receives $10,000 a year for one sermon a Sunday. He is usually given several months' vacation in the summer.

Dr. Herriek Johnson, of the Fourth Presbyterian church, receives $8,000 a year from his congregation, and $2,000 for his services at the Theological Seminary of the Northwest.

The Dean of Westminster has $3,000 a year in addition to the $2,000 he receives as a canon and archdeacon, some of whom receive large salaries.

Mr. A. Wehrner, the champion hunter of Leavenworth county, has discovered a sure cure for indigestion, or at least he thinks he has.

The Best Remedy for Chapped Hands is Hegeman's Camphor Ice. It should be rubbed upon the part affected.

It is compounded with glycerine, which renders it more emollient than any other Camphor Ice, and is the best of all the Camphor Ice made.

It is frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins, and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs.
