WASHINGTON, May 18 .- The senate, in executive session, postponed for a week the contested Pennsylvania nomination of Samcontested Pennsylvania nomination of Samuel L. Jackson as collector of internal revenue for the Allegheny district, as a matter of courtesy to Senator Mitchell, who had arranged to leave Washington to-night for Pennsylvania. The previous part of the session was consumed by the uncompleted consideration of the contested case of Lewis R. Buckner, nominated as collector of internal revenue for the Louisville, Ky., district. Senator Sherman made a speech against this nomination (on the double ground that the incumbent merits retention in office and the umbent merits retention in office and the resent nominee is not a fit man for the lace) and it then went over. An Insane Girl Takes Her Own Life -[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

noon about 5:30 o'clock the body of a woman was found near some logs inside the boom on the Wisconsin side. The body was identified as that of the Baker girl, who has been missing from home for the last three weeks. It is stated that of late the girl has had frequent fits of insanity; that in one of them she jumped from the bridge and was drowned. The body was discovered by a man named Thomson, who towed it in near the shore and tied it to altree, to await the arrival of the coroner from Hudson. As soon as the news of the finding of the body became known, large numbers of people crossed over the bridge to get a view of the body, although the rain fell most of the time during the afternoon. No inquest was held on the body, as it was thought to be unnecessary. Assistant Coroner Clark, of Washington county, made an examination of the person, but found no marks of violence. The remains were badly swollen and the face much disfigured. The mother of the girl refuses to believe that her swollen and the face much distinguist. The mother of the girl refuses to believe that her daughter committed suicide. She claims to believe the person of the girl was outraged and the girl murdered, and her body thrown in the lake, but there is no evidence to sustain such a theory, but much to prove that she took her own life.

Brumm (Pa.) said the Democrats had treated Greenbackers with such disrespect that at the last congress they had not even given them a hearing. At this session, however, the Greenbackers had been treated well. They had been backers had been treated well. They had been recognized on committees of the house; they had been recognized as a party. He had heard Democrats say, "We don't know when the Greenbackers are right or wrong; but, right or wrong, we will not even treat you with respect." A Meeting of Melody.

Cincinnati, May 17.—The afternoon concert of the May festival was attended by an audience of nearly 4,000. Like all the afternoon concerts, it was made up of a light programme, introducing Materna, Cary, Remmertz, and Miss Crouch. Materna sang "Osusianna Non Vic."," from the "Marriage of Figaro," and a duo with Miss Cary, by Mendelssohn. Miss Cary sang "Voi Che Sapete," and Remmertz sang "Non Pia Ondies," both from the "Marriage of Figaro." Miss Crouch gave Bruch's "Penelope Weaving a Garment." All the soloists were received with warm applause, particularly Materna and Cary. The chief feature of the programme was Beethoven's Sevenah Symphony, which was superbly rendered by the orchestra.

A burning chimney connecting with Montgomery's cooking range, Prince block, corner of Third and Jackson streets, created intense excitement for a few minutes about 6 o'clock last evening. The smoke poured out from the chimney in great, black waves, and owing to the heavy damp atmosphere settled about the block indicated the presence of a good deal of fire. The entire fire department responded promptly to the alarm, but their service was not required, the real trouble having been found and removed before the nearest engine was in position to work.

Residents, more especially of the outlying precincts of the city, will do well to use great caution in securing their premises at night. Wednesday night Mrs. J. A. Swenson, residing at the corner of Marshall avenue and Arundel, imagined she heard some one prowling about the house. Her husband laughed at what he called her nervous whim, but when the girl of the house got up in the morning she found one of the bay windows open, and the house plants set out in the open, and the house plants set out in the yard, the would-be burglar having evidently been frightened away just as he got a way cleared for a quick egress.

In his complaint, Robert charges Jennie with infidelity. It has been common report in fast circles for some time past that the two were not dwelling together in peace and harmony, and it was the general supposition that the woman was going to commence divorce proceedings, also alleging infidelity against Diamond. secretary had the effect of stopping for a time the work of agitation. Taking advantage of the situation, process servers again prepared to oust the tenants in arrears. In county Galway alone three hundred tenant farmers have been evicted inside a week and the work goes on, while the national organizations are yet in dread of making any overt opposition. The measures of repression proposed in parliament are creating a revulsion of feeling throughout the country. There was a desire and hope that the murderers might be brought to justice, but now the growing feeling is that parliament is determined to believe, no matter what happens, that there are no good traits or tender feelings in Irishmen and means to push oppression and coercion to extremities. The result is that the fire of revolution, which had been permitted to smoulder, has been raked up by the action of the commons and theirepression bill recently thrust upon the people, has rekindled the fire. Already murmurs of discontent and dissatisfaction are heard at the course pursued by Parnell. The disclosures made voluntarily by the Irish leader and those forced by Forster have had a very bad effect and a truce will not be tolerated by the mass of the people engaged in the agitation. The feeling gains ground that Parnell's opportunity to distinguish himself is slowly slipping away. The people are not in favor of any compromise with the government which means complete pacification. The revolutionary organization, which is a very large body, both in Ireland. Every favorable measure proposed and adopted is acceptable, but "more" is the cry, and "more" will be demanded until home rule is granted, and thus many will insist on complete separation from England—in fact, Irish independence and a republican form of government. Parnell is not a member of the lrish revolutionary organization. It was not and is not politic that he should be, but the opinion of the nationalists is that if he would continue to be the Irish leader, he must push forward without looking back a 1RISH REMONSTRANCE.

DUBLIN, May 18.—The Irish judges, except the lord chancellor, have unanimously re solved to send a strong remonstrance to the solved to send a strong remonstrance to the government against the proposed abolition of trial by jury in the repression bill, whereby juries could be taken from a special jury panel that would be perfectly reliable. The resolutions adopted declare that the duties involved on the judges by the bill would be to seriously impair public confidence in the jury.

Northcote said he hoped the second reading of the repression bill would be completed to night. If not debate would be continued in night. If not debate would be continued in the morning sitting Friday. He would take the committee of supply Tuesday. He wished to continue it from day to day. He would take the second reading of the arrears bill Monday. He would also take up the provisional supply on account for the month. He would therefore sit the whole of next week including Saturday if necessary.

The speaker announced that the only paragraph in O'Donnell's amendment to the repression bill in order was that declaring the bill a faral obstacle to good government and tranquillity. O'Donnell denounced the bill.

Col. Thurst, liberal member for the county of Cork, supported the bill. He condemned the cowards who issued the no-rent manifesto, the cowards who issued the no rent manifesto, and did not protest against the murders committed in its support.

Gladstone stated that the warrant out against Sheridan was not cancelled.

Trevelyn, chief secretary for Ireland, was re-elected to parliament and was cheered as he took his seat.

Trevelyn called attention to the failure of justice in Ireland. The government would be justice in Ireland. The government would be slow to use their power with regard to public meetings, and where meetings were held they would regard less the utterances of the speakers than the evident intention of what was uttered. He defended the provision of the bill against the publication of seditions articles. He said the government had reason to think that in their efforts to suppress outrage they would have the assistance of those who had become tired of the terrorism to which they have been so long subjected.

Dillon maintained that the failures to convict were not the result of intimidation, but popular sympathy. The bill, he declared, would have no other effect than to provoke would have no other effect that to provoke secret organization. When the measure expired the league would rise again, and parliament would have to do its work over again.

The debate adjourned until to-morrow.
