FARGO POLITICS.

How Things are Booming—Comments on the Legislative Ticket.

"Hello there," was the chirpy salutation addressed to the ear of a Globe reporter in the lobby of the Merchants hotel yesterday afternoon, as the scribe had just lighted his post-prandial twenty-five cent Havana cigar, and on looking up the good natured face was encountered of Ald. G. J. Kissner, formerly of St. Paul, and now one of the staunch business men and Democrats of Fargo.

The reporters who was on the lay for a snap, which being anglicised means hungry dawning for an interview on the political situation in Dakota, and more particularly for a fair expression of views on the status of affairs in the booming city of Fargo, where the excitement is said to be red hot and still a heating over the recent nominations for the Dakota legislature.

In response to invitation the writer accepted a chair, and thereupon followed an interesting chat in reference to the movements of the crops, the development of the golden land of promise, together with a lively sprinkling of palaver about the workings of politics in that part of the great empire.

After discenting eloquently upon the material resources of the territory and the future prospects of Fargo as the great emporium city of the northwestern belt, Ald. Kissner, who is one of the city fathers on the Democratic side of Fargo politics, was induced to say something about the action of the convention which met in that city last Thursday.

When asked how the ticket was accepted by the people he said the interest was centered pretty largely on the nomination of Major A. W. Edwards, the heavy weight Republican editor of the Argus, for the Dakota legislature. In this respect he considered from a Democratic point of view that the nomination was the best that could have been made.

Major Edwards, he said, was a progressive, liberal-minded and wide-awake citizen, and in view of the fact that the Democrats were so much in the minority as to have no great chances of carrying a ticket of their own, they would accept the situation and vote for the best man. In view of the status of affairs, he thought, so far as he could learn, that the nomination of Major Edwards would be supported by not only his own party, but by a large majority of Democrats.

THE KINDRED BOOM.

How the Campaign is Progressing in the Fifth District.

VERDALE, Oct. 10.—The embers no longer lie mouldering, but the few faint streaks of light from the political camp fire have united into a steady flame that shall increase in power, magnificence and brilliancy, purging the political atmosphere of the disreputable and noxious vapors from the old east at the doors of our gallant young leader, by Nelson's clan of hirelings who flout gilt edged lies in our faces and circulate cheap fiction knee-deep throughout the Fifth district, for the purpose of "maintaining the honor" of the great, grand old party and preserving the "good credit" of several "big guns" whose pinched up souls have become so dwarfed that an ordinary gun was quite large enough to cover them with a suit of clothes and an ulster overcoat to boot.

We see what straits these bolting gentlemen are driven to when the nominee of the tent convention, who has voluntarily consented to be a mark for target practice, is now prevailed upon for fear of death to the whole outfit, to race around among the nimrods beseeching them in tones of melting pity not to shoot, as some one is liable to get hurt.

How weak, too, is the pitiful plea of the Hon. Knute, that he is poverty stricken, thus endeavoring to work upon the sympathies of the voters, when it is well known that Thundering Gordon declares he has as big a barrel as Kindred and Nelson is welcome to it.

Another transparent dodge is of appealing to the Norwegian element to vote for Nelson because he is a Norwegian. Mr. Nelson is entitled to a liberal and pointed application of boot leather from every lover of liberty in the Fifth district. Free speech and free action is a species of intimidation and bulldozing equal to anything ever practiced in the Southern states. Certainly, educated villany is worse than honest ignorance. Does Knute deny having used undue measures to influence his countrymen to support him? Does he deny having appealed to the score of nationality?

Col. G.H. Johnson of Detroit, spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience at McNair's hall Saturday evening. The speech was off hand, vigorous, pointed, and a complete refutation of the many charges of Knute Nelson. The colonel reviewed the canvass from its inception to the present, clearly proving Mr. Kindred to be the regular nominee of the Detroit convention, and picturing very plainly the desperate and nefarious schemes of the fairly beaten. It is truly a commendable spirit that induces men to hang on like grim death, but the bull dog characteristic that constrains them to howl after all the bits is taken out of them, is not very flattering to manhood. Mr. Nelson feels confident of success. His position with respect to the result of the coming election reminds us of the old lady's sure test for good indigo. She says, "take a cup and fill it part full of water, then put a little indigo into the water. If the indigo is good it will—it will—if the indigo is good—it will—it will sink or swim, and for the life of me I can't tell which." So our friend Nelson, now so certain of the result, will be as much at his wife's ends as was the old lady, when it comes to the test.

The better sense of our people will prevail. Kindred will be elected, and Mr. Knute will go where the woodbine twine, to recline in the arms of oblivion, with all his hopes fallen all his castles demolished, all his bright visions of supremacy vanished.

O, what a sad ending for a man of such noble mind, of such lofty bearing, of such self-sacrificing spirit. "But ah, for us all some sweet hope lies. Daily bursts from human eyes, and in the smothered muffle may. Roll the stone from his grave away." Three cheers and a tiger for C. F. Kindred and the true blue genuine American spirit, which is as broad as our continent and as pure as the fresh air of the mountain top.

Know-Nothingism is as detestable to-day as ever it was and every American citizen should stand shoulder to shoulder with his brother to fight to the bitter end this double-headed monster of NATIONALITY which cuts such a figure in the present campaign. We want no war of races. But truly the evils we need to fear are within our own borders. No foreign foe can touch us unless by seeming to be one among us he proves his allegiance to his native land by flocking like sheep to the call of his brother foreigner, without consulting the interests of the country, Voters of the great Fifth district, rise in the majesty of your might and swear to be free. Strike from you this evil. Stamp under foot this treachery and show to the world that the Union, for which Washington and Henry and Warren bled, suffered and died, shall be perpetuated. In union is strength but a house divided against itself shall not stand. Courage, not cowardice; faith, not doubt; hope, not fear; work, not play; loyalty, not traitorism; and independence, not subjugation, are the sentinels guarding the temple of freedom. Let one of them sleep at his post and the inmates are in the clutches of the enemy.

Then as we love our freedom, our home, our country, our life and our all, let us "Work for those who love us, For those who know us true, For the cause that needs assistance, For the wrongs that need resistance, For our future in the distance, And C. F. Kindred too."

Due Credit.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13.—The members of the colored labor league are deserving of credit for the fearless manner in which they worked and voted on Tuesday last. They did most excellent work and cast some 600 or 600 votes for the Democratic ticket.
