WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Williams writes from Ridgeway, S. C., to the effect that he recently arrested W. J. Johnson, a merchant at Blytheburg, S. C., for violating the revenue laws, and that the prisoner was given a hearing and bound over to appear before the proper court. Subsequently the deputy was assaulted by friends of the prisoner while on a railroad train, and three pistol shots fired at him. The offending party defied the revenue laws and swore they would take the deputy's life. At latest account, however, the officer still lives.

In the Jeannette court this morning Melville continued his story, giving details of his personal duties. He took occasion to say that never in twenty years' experience in the navy was he associated with a more agreeable set of officers than those on the Jeannette. De Long and others messed together, and De Long encouraged daily conversation regarding the situation of the vessel. Melville's story this morning took the narrative up to a few days previous to the loss of the vessel.

The annual report of Gen. Sherman is given to the public to-day. It is accompanied by a report of the division commanders, of Gen. Sheridan and Inspector General Lusk. The report shows that the general staff consists of 574 officers, and 1,216 enlisted men. The army proper consists of 10 regiments of cavalry, 431 officers and 6,888 men; 5 regiments of artillery, 280 officers and 2,493 men; 25 regiments of infantry, 877 officers and 8,773 men; total, including unavailable men detailed at various points, being 21,622 officers and 253,024 men. He says the experience of the world shows that there is only one kind of an army available for active service, and that 250,000 are really needed to the defense of the United States.

He recommends that the limit of the army be increased to 300,000. The officers and men in the army are now overworked, and must continue so unless the number is increased. He reviews the work of the year somewhat in detail, arriving at the conclusion that there have been a less number of Indian outbreaks in the year than any other twenty years. Part of this is due to the advancement of civilization, and part to the efficient of civilization in the West. The report devotes considerable space to the growth of the great West, and says that now that the transition period is past it is the duty of the government to select certain strategic points for permanent army posts and construct comfortable buildings on them so as not longer to compel the officers and men to live in holes in the ground, and to erect cotton wood log huts as heretofore. There have been trials by court martial during the year. He recommends a change in the system of court martial, saying the present system was established by custom in the English army 100 years ago, when the habit was to dine at 3 o'clock and get drunk after dinner, which habit is happily done away with. The number of desertions during the year was 3,721 and of enlistments and re-enlistments 7,341. Commenting on the number of desertions he says many are those of men who enlist in Eastern cities, and after getting free transportation West desert, knowing there will be little effort to bring them back or punish. The remedy, he thinks, is in better treatment of those who stay, and more severe punishment of deserters. He recommends an increase of pay of men to $16 per month instead of $13 as now, and that the punishment for desertion be made more severe, inflicting capital punishment in aggravated cases, as is done by other countries. The general condition of the army and the personnel of its men improved, as has the general condition of the people of the country at large. The recent rifle contests have made a great improvement in the marksmanship of the men, and he recommends an appropriation for continuing the work. He recommends the adoption of some plans by which regiments and officers can be given definite terms in remote posts, and be allowed to return to the comforts of civilized life and their places be taken by others. He recommends the employment of teachers for schools at the posts, saying men from the army cannot be spared for this purpose, and remarking that as officers in spite of sage advice, will marry and have families, they ought to be provided for in the best manner possible.

Meigs Coryell and Henry Sters, of New York, were to-day appointed as civilian members of the naval advisory board.

It is understood from an officer of the department of justice that Chief Clerk Mulliken has been requested to resign his position. This makes the second officer of the department requested to resign within the past forty-eight hours. A feeling of insecurity is consequent among other officers of the department of justice, and the prediction is made by some that greater attempts to reorganize the whole establishment.

A special dispatch received here this forenoon reports that men in charge of the polls in various precincts of Richmond, Va., refused to allow voters in arrears for capitation tax to vote. Warrants have been sworn out and great excitement prevailed, which, it is feared, will result in disturbances.

To-day presents a holiday appearance. The executive departments are almost deserted, and business therein is practically suspended.

Nathan Smith, recently appointed temporary chief clerk of the postoffice department, to-day informed Postmaster General Howe he could not accept the position.

Warden Crocker, of the United States jail, in his annual report for the fiscal year, says of Guitero, Dunbar, a large part of the year there was incarcerated a prisoner of peculiar character and remarkable nature. His case was rendered more difficult for management and treatment by reason of the notoriety he had gained by assassinating the president of the United States. He was given the treatment and protection of prisoners, and his ordinary normal condition was maintained through all the exciting scenes and trying ordeals he was called to pass. At the end of the drama in which he figured so prominently, although there has been a perceptible increase of crime in this district during the last decade, statistics show that the increase in the number of convictions for crime have been only about one-half as great in proportion as the actual addition to the population during the same period. There has been a greater number of the desperate and hardened class in custody than usual. The inmates during the entire year have been favored to a remarkable degree with good health.

Civil Engineer Bouditch, of Massachusetts, has just submitted to the national board of health an elaborate report on the general subject of seaside resorts for which it is understood he is to receive $1,000.

Dean, Republican candidate for congress in the Second district of South Carolina, saying a riot occurred at the polls near Florence in that district this morning, and two colored men were killed, several wounded and the election broken up.

MURDERERS LYNCED. VIENNA, La., Nov. 7.—The jail at this place was opened last night by a posse of men supposed to be from Jackson parish, compelling the jailer to open the first door, breaking their way thence to the prisoners they wanted. Four were carried from the jail who had been brought here from Jackson parish for safe keeping. One of them made his escape immediately. On reaching the jail door he was fired on three or four times without effect. Another, it is thought, was given a chance for his life, as he was thought innocent. The other two were found this morning about a mile and a half south of here, riddled with bullets. Negroes charged with robbery and attempted murder of an old white gentleman named Ray. He described them and identified them. The matter created quite an excitement here.

MURDER BY BUGLARS. SHARON, O., Nov. 7.—About 1 o'clock this morning Henry Heisel, an ex-saloonist at West Chester, was awakened by two men in his room, whose object was to rob him. Upon Heisel making defense he was killed with a club. Three bullet holes were also found in his head. His wife was awakened, but she was soon disabled and the burglars got away with about $50. Mrs. Heisel did not inform the parties. Great excitement prevails in the vicinity. So far no clue to the guilty parties.

THE OLD WORLD.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A colliery explosion occurred at Clay Cross mines, in Derbyshire, of which only meager reports are received. It is known, however, that thirty persons, mostly miners, were killed. Four of the managers of the mines were, however, blown to atoms. Frightful scenes are being enacted about the mouth of the shaft. Many large families are left without means of support.

The explosion, which was terrific in its force and deadly in its effects, shattered the buildings in localities five miles distant from the mines. A chair at the bottom of the shaft was blown up through the mouth of the colliery into the head gear. The greatest consternation prevails in the neighborhood.

Exeter canal has broken its banks, and the whole country bordering it in Cheshire, Warwickshire and Somerset, is flooded.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Eight thousand miners in North Wales have resumed work at an advance of 7 1/2 per cent.

In the commons this afternoon in debate on Sir Stafford Northcote's motion on the Egyptian policy of the government Lawson, supported by the extreme radicals, will move an amendment that no further military operations in Egypt be sanctioned that are calculated to interfere with the Egyptian nation obtaining control over its own institutions.

The attorney general, in answer to a question, stated that he was not doubtful whether West Gates' confession of complicity in the Phoenix park murders was true. Evidence to identify him had been sent to Jamaica, and inquiries were proceeding to ascertain the truth of his statements.

The under secretary of the colonies, in replying to a question by O'Kelly, admitted that the Cuban refugees had been arrested by Spanish authorities after being turned out of the British lines. The government had ordered the authorities at Gibraltar to send a full statement of the arrests.

Lord Lyndhurst, liberal, re-opened the debate on Northcote's motion to reject the closure resolution.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Clairon announces that the president of the bourse committee has received a letter threatening to blow up the bourse. The publication caused considerable excitement, and members of the exchange gathered in groups and discussed the origin and motive of the letter in the most animated manner. Count Cassagnac's adherents announce their opposition to Prince Napoleon's propaganda published in the journals France, and say it was designed solely to influence the electors in the provinces of France.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—A coalition party is forming with Gambetta, Ferry and Duclere as leaders, with a program anti-anarchist and strong anti-English policy on Egyptian affairs. In the event of the coalition party carrying a majority in the chamber of deputies, Ferry will be elected president of the council, Duclere continuing as minister of foreign affairs.

The Increase of Theaters. [Steele Mackaye in the North American Review.] If we look back two generations we find only three or four buildings devoted to amusement in New York city, with an average attendance per night that could hardly have exceeded 15,000 persons. During the last season in that city some fifty entertainments had been patronized by a nightly attendance of from 25,000 to 80,000 people. Throughout the United States it is safe to say that 500 amusement attractions are usually presented to the public every day of the season, with an average patronage of about 400 persons each. This calculation gives us an amusement-going public of 200,000 individuals a day. As the theatrical season generally covers 300 performances to each house, the average annual attendance at the various halls and theaters throughout the country probably ranges from 50,000,000 to 60,000,000.

An Aesthetic Costume. At the reception of Mrs. Langtry, says the New York Times, Oscar Wilde addressed himself to the party. He was dressed as probably no grown man in the world was ever dressed before. His hat was of brown cloth, no less than six inches high; his coat was of black velvet, his overcoat was of green cloth, hisly trimmed with fur; his trousers matched, hisly trimmed with fur; his gaiters and his shirt were of many colors. A pair of brown cloth gloves and several pimples on his chin completed his toilet. His flowing hair and the fur trimming of his coat were just of a shade, and they gave him the appearance of having his hair combed down one side of him to his heels and up the other.

The receipts of the police court for the month of October amounted to the snug little sum of $1,050.

The foundation of the new depot is nearly completed. The carpenters have commenced on the building.

Although there have been quite a number of cases of scarlet fever in the city lately, no deaths from the disease are reported to have occurred.

There are a great many cases of diphtheria in this city at the present time. Quite a number of deaths from this disease have lately occurred.

No special policemen were employed yesterday. The night force was called out for duty about the polls, but no disturbance of any kind occurred, though the streets were filled with people all day long. The saloons were all closed before the opening of the polls.

Miss Margaret Mather was greeted last evening by one of the largest audiences that has assembled in the Opera house since the opening night. A more fashionable gathering has seldom been witnessed at any entertainment in Stillwater, embracing as it did a large portion of the elite of the city. Miss Mather appeared as Juliet. The lady sustained the enviable reputation in her rendition of the character, and to the eminent satisfaction of those present.

Wm. Genessa, employed on the pile driver, had two of his fingers instantly taken off and a third mangled in such a manner that it will scarcely be possible to save it. Yesterday morning while Genessa was engaged in removing the yokes from the leaders he slipped, and to prevent falling, caught hold of the rope by which the heavy hammer is hoisted. The engine was running at the time, his hand was drawn toward the rope to which the weight was attached and there the fingers of the iron wheel over which the rope worked. The fingers were taken off as quick as though done with a knife.

Such Are Seen Presented by Contracted Sarcinosis.

The recent experience of a London lady of rank, who wished to sell some jewelry, goes to prove that shams are not newer than other things under the sun. Regarding what were supposed to be splendid rubies the jeweler said: "They are certainly very showy, madam, but unfortunately only clever imitations in glass!" The lady, much chagrined, then called attention to the heavy settings, to which the jeweler replied, after the usual tests: "The setting is only gilt!" Another article produced for appraisal was a superb bracelet, the gift of a continental sovereign to the wife of a distinguished diplomatist. The skillful manufacturer and specific gravity of this splendid object had been extolled for generations in the family of the possessor, and so highly was it prized that it was invariably sent out to the bankers whenever the family went out of town
