

LATE MINNEAPOLIS NEWS

Last evening the patrol wagon was called to the last side, to bring to the station a heavy "drunk."

John Lally, the driver of the patrol wagon, expects to get the whole outfit moved into the new stables next to the police station to-day.

A Broadway street car, off the track on Hennepin avenue last evening, gave the drivers a heap of trouble and kept passengers waiting twenty minutes.

The city officials should at once insist that all the old dilapidated sidewalks in the city be placed in repair, as it is difficult to get such things done after winter sets in.

A Minneapolis weather prophet predicts several weeks fine and comfortably warm weather yet this fall.

A GAY DECEIVER.

They Loved Too Well But Not Wisely. Yesterday morning a warrant for the arrest of Charles Shepley, a gay and frivolous youth aged about twenty years, was placed in the hands of a police officer.

The warrant had been issued at the instance of a confiding maiden who had "loved too well but not wisely," named Lena Johnson and charged the youth with seduction under promise of marriage.

A search for the fast young man through the city and at his accustomed resorts proved fruitless, but it was finally learned from a reliable source that he had taken the Otawana train.

Going to the Minneapolis depot it was found that the train had just passed Rosemount, and so a telegram was dispatched to the marshal at Farmington, giving the young man's description and asking his arrest and detention until an officer could come for him.

In due time a reply came back that the man had been bagged. Last evening Capt. Berry rode for Farmington, and if the right man was captured will return with him this morning.

CONSTITUTIONAL PROHIBITION.

The Opening of the Third State Constitutional Convention in Harrison Hall—J. F. Chaffee's Address of Welcome.

The third state constitutional convention assembled in Harrison hall last evening. The convention consists of all ministers and their wives, the chairman and members of each of the county amendment committees, together with ten delegates from each senatorial district.

The objects of this convention may be outlined as follows: First—To ascertain what have been the results of the legislative elections in regard to our cause.

Second—To agree upon a form of amendment to be submitted to the people. Third—To plan for obtaining the proper petition, and for methods in bringing the matter before the legislature.

Fourth—To devise ways and means for the prosecution of our work. After devotional exercises the convention was called to order by the chairman of the C. A. A. C. Rev. J. F. Chaffee, who then delivered an elaborate address of welcome.

The speaker commenced by thanking the members present for their attendance, and said "in behalf of the committee of which I am chairman, I welcome you, Republicans and Democrats alike, so that you are in favor of our cause."

He then went on and spoke on the subject of personal liberty, touching mainly on the Germans, who he said were the proprietors of most of the beer shops and distilleries in the country, and the greatest advocates of the so-called personal liberty.

Mr. Chaffee elaborated his favorite idea of political "submission" instead of "prohibition" his method being to select from the nominees of the Republican and Democratic parties those who will work for the temperance cause, and wait for their election instead of putting a regular prohibition ticket in the field.

POLITICAL POINTS.

SCATTERING RETURNS FROM TUESDAY'S ELECTION IN MINNESOTA.

Ballot to Contest the Seat of Price from the Eighth Wisconsin—Gilbert L. Park, Democrat, Chosen in the Ninth—The Condition of the Canvass Elsewhere.

Second District. BLUE EARTH. Congress—James B. Wakefield (R.), 1,807; Felix A. Borer (D.), 1,204; J. A. Latimer (Alliance), 581. Legislature—Senators—L. G. M. Fletcher (R. and A.), 2,195; S. F. Barney (D.), 1,372. Representatives—Robert Roberts (R.), 1,576; G. G. Spaulding (R.), 1,731; E. W. Parker (R.), 1,646; Owen Morris, Jr. (R.), 1,651; H. M. Burgess (D.), 1,455; James Brown (D. and A.), 1,742; Robert H. Hughes (D.), 1,199; Lyndner Cook (D. and A.), 1,770; H. C. Howard (R. and A.), 883; M. M. Pratt (R.), 454.

WASECA. Congress—James B. Wakefield, 1,048; Felix A. Borer, 850. Legislature—Senators—Robert O. Craig, 1,301; A. W. Jennison, 682. Representatives—John C. White, 986; Anthony Sampson, 895.

MURRAY. Congress—James Wakefield, 585; J. A. Latimer, 99; Phelix A. Borer, 53. Legislature—Senators—A. M. Crosby, 483; C. C. Goodnow, 260; Charles Saxon, 9. Representatives—W. H. Johnson, 465; I. D. M. Orcutt, 202; J. Craft, 24.

COTTONWOOD. Congress—Wakefield, 439; Borer, 18; Latimer, 304. Legislature—Senators—G. P. Johnston, 41; Geo. Knudson, 410; S. B. Stedman, 320. Representatives—Silas Blackman, 427; S. H. Soule, 318; John Bisbee, 10.

WATONWAN. Congress—J. B. Wakefield, 625; F. A. Borer, 112; J. A. Latimer, 89. Legislature—Senators—Geo. P. Johnston, 254; George Knudson, 498; S. Stedman, 65. Representatives—W. H. Soule, 207; Silas Blackman, 241; John B. See, 369.

Third District. SWIFT. Congress—Horace B. Strait, 694; C. P. Adams, 32. Legislature—Senator—Z. B. Clarke, 710. Representatives—Henry Anderson, 521; Ever Sampson, 509; Erik O. Erickson, 216; H. A. Larson, 213.

Fourth District. STENDBUM. Congress—W. D. Washburn, 469; A. A. Ames, 302. Legislature—Senators—W. H. Houlton, 550; H. C. Bull, 200. Representatives—J. M. Holstrom, 567; F. O. Porter, 505; J. Smith, 438; Hugh Milligan, 331; S. A. Gordon, 279; L. H. Rawson, 240.

WRIGHT. James Gillilan, 3,255; John M. Shaw and Wm. Lochren, district judges, (no opposition), 3,209 each. Congress—A. A. Ames, 1,419; W. D. Washburn, 1,731. Senators—L. H. C. Bull, 1,445; W. H. Houlton, 1,796. Representatives—S. A. Gordon, 1,433; L. H. Rawson, 1,276; Hugh Milligan, 1,273; F. C. Porter, 1,910; Jonathan Smith, 1,919; M. Holstrom, 1,824.

First District. HOUSTON. Congress—Milo White, Rep. 1,254; Adolph Biermann, Dem. 1,224; Anthony Hayck, 1. Legislature—Senator—James O'Brien, Rep. 1,434; D. L. Buell, Dem. 829. Representatives—Wm. E. Potter, Rep. 1,282; Truls Paulson; Rep. 1,34; Fred. Gluck, Dem. 953; Teman Gilbertson, Dem. 907; scattering 32.

Second District. POPE. Congress—Knut Nelson, 955; C. F. Kindred, 167; E. P. Barnum, 160. Legislature—Senators—F. B. Van Hoesen, 1,253; no opposition. Representatives—Olo Peterson, 704; N. Shook, 557.

WADENA. Congress—Chas. F. Kindred, 384; Knute Nelson, 210; E. P. Barnum, 159; scattering 1. Legislature—Senators—J. D. Howard, 163; scattering 3; W. W. Wilson, 274; J. D. Ensign, 37. Representatives—C. B. Jordan, 341; C. C. Parker, 349; J. B. Calvar, 17; scattering 1.

BECKER. Congress—C. F. Kindred, 501; Knute Nelson, 622; E. P. Barnum, 62. Legislature—Senators—R. L. Frazee, 657; S. G. Comstock, 457; W. J. Bodkin, 68. Representatives—T. K. Jorgenson, 783; J. W. Childs, 221; Lyman Loring, 175.

GRANT. Congress—Knut Nelson, 684; C. F. Kindred, 102; E. P. Barnum, 30. Legislature—Senators—C. F. Washburn, 592; Wm. H. Campbell, 94; E. B. Chew, 128. Representatives—Samuel Larson, 540; H. H. Wells, 266; Geo. I. Becker, 10.

OTTER TAIL. Congress—Knut Nelson 3,119; C. F. Kindred, 533; E. P. Barnum, 657; scattering 10. Legislature—Senators—James Compton 4,234. Representatives—J. G. Nelson 3,430; J. H. Gray 3,620; Theodore Frazee 821; scattering 19.

KITSON. Congress—Knut Nelson, 369; C. F. Kindred, 241. Legislature—Senators—Halvor Steenerson, 346. Hugh Thompson, 263. Representatives—A. H. Baker, 356; J. S. Johnson, 251.

WISCONSIN. [Special Telegram to the Globe.] CHIPPEWA FALLS, Nov. 14.—Hon. W. F. Bailey, of Eau Claire, Hon. W. T. Price's opponent for congress in the Eighth district, is in this city attending court, and informed your correspondent that he will contest Price's election. He refused to state upon what grounds he would make the contest.

A telegram was received in this city late this afternoon announcing the election of Judge Gilbert L. Park, Democrat, for congress in the Ninth district by twenty-seven majority.

The official vote of this county will be made on Wednesday, and as near as can be learned Judge Park will have a majority in this county of 815. The entire Democratic ticket in this county is elected, except sheriff, which is very close between Everett Grebaker, and Putnam, Republican. Everett claims the election by twenty-seven majority. It is reported on the streets to night that Putnam will contest the election.

LOOKING AHEAD.

THE OUTLOOK IN POLITICAL CIRCLES IN THE NATION AT LARGE.

Why Mayor Grace Didn't Go—The Future Policy of President Arthur—The Rumors of Changes in His Cabinet—Tolden Sentences of Gov. Cleveland.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] New York, Nov. 14.—A man came to me yesterday with the following yarn: Mayor Grace, of New York, did not register nor vote at the election, though he was a directed politician, because one Boyd, a corporation attorney under Whitney, sent him word that if he voted he would be challenged, and his case presented to the grand jury as a man, not a citizen. My informant further said that an unsavory judge here put Grace through his naturalization, so he could be eligible for mayor on his promise to appoint Boyd to something big. The mayor not keeping the wicked promise, both the judge and Boyd threatened him two years later. That must be a fine judge if the story be true.

General Martin McMahon, a warm-Hancock man, said Sunday that the next nomination lay between Bayard and Cleveland. Mr. Levi Maish, ex-Democratic congressman from York, Pa., says Bayard is dead all through that region, not so much for winking at the river and harbor bill as for voting to retain the tax on matches, an odious Wilmington monopoly of which Bayard has been the protector. Maish says the monopoly bought up match factories in his congressional district to increase their monopoly, and that Bayard's intimate relations with the match bosses are discussed all over that Democratic region. He says Governor Patteson is an able man, a good public speaker, and full of will, but that Pennsylvania has no candidate whatever for president, and harmony in the state will be subserved by keeping presidential quarrels away from it.

Hugh Hastings continues to show that the boss system of yesterday was a small thing compared to that of old days. He says "Dewitt Clinton's letters to his friend, Mr. Post, which were edited by John Digswell and published in Harper's Magazine, show him to have been the most brazen and shameless political boss in the nation's history. His life is a record of political intrigue and corruption, bargaining to secure the spoils and elevate himself to position. Our state has never been without political bosses. Hastings on this evidence calls for Arthur to remove everybody and give openings to the party workers. A lot of worn-out, incompetent and jobbing political hacks take command of their party, arraign its policy in congress and its nominations before the people to suit themselves, renominate jobbers all over the country, seize the control of conventions in insolent disregard of the will of the voters, and get frightfully beaten. Therefore the president is to be urged, it seems, in the interest of these defeated and disgraced politicians, to gratify their malice, to salute over the city's appointments to make war on such servants of the people as had the honesty and independence to resist and help overthrow these shameless political gamblers. If Mr. Arthur counts among his "friends" any one silly enough to give him such advice, he had better strike him off his list. He can not do anything which will so quickly and surely and utterly ruin him as to let the people even suspect that he harbors a design to so grossly and scandalously misuse the public service.

Gov. Cleveland is said by a friend of mine to be a modest bachelor, firm, determined, not an accomplished man, but a sound lawyer, and to spend his income without avarice or meanness, having no body to keep. This sentence is much quoted here:

"We must make our partnership significant in the fulfillment of this trust. Every Democrat must be a patriot devoted to the cause of pure government and to higher citizenship. The more he is allied to such principles, the better Democrat he is. Let us, by our official and every day conduct, impress upon the minds of the people that their cause is well placed."

It is whispered around town that Tom Bayard wrote his own interview. This is like kissing the back of your hand in a railroad tunnel to show that you are beloved. These presidential fellows are anxious to interview now. It is the royal road to the White house.

There are rumors in the air of official changes of great moment, involving the positions of members of the cabinet. The president only returned to the city Sunday, but also many stories of what he intended to do have preceded him. There is possibly a grain of truth in the clouds of gossip and chaff that are blown about the departments and hotels and upon the avenue. On one side it is asserted that the president has had his eyes opened by the election to the fact of which he was not before aware, that his advisers do not represent the majority element in the party; that the Republicans in the states from which four of his seven cabinet officers were chosen revolted at party management and elected either Democratic state tickets or a majority of Democratic congressmen. It is said that the president will, after the beginning of the new year, make two or three changes in his cabinet and reorganize on a basis of the wishes of a majority of the party. On the other hand these assertions are ridiculed as being on a par with the rumors that were so thick a month ago of Secretary Folger's intention to resign. Whatever the president's purposes may be, there is speculation enough rife to keep the correspondents in a continual state of alarm. Last night again it was asserted that Folger would resign after his annual report had been made to congress, and J. C. New was to get the place. The night before it was asserted New would resign, and Folger would remain. There was talk about the possibility of Mr. Brewster leaving the cabinet ever since Bro. Ingersoll undertook the amusing but dirty task of convicting the department of justice of jury fixing.

John C. New is not regarded here as a very great man for the cabinet. He has always rejoiced that he was the friend of Tom Brady.

Cigar Makers' Strike. DAVENPORT, Io., Nov. 14.—The employees of Kuberer's tobacco factory struck to-day, because of the reduced wages paid to forty girls, assistants of the cigar makers. The reduction was from $2 to $1.50 per thousand bunches. The number of men engaged in the strike is 280.

LOOKING AHEAD.

THE OUTLOOK IN POLITICAL CIRCLES IN THE NATION AT LARGE.

Why Mayor Grace Didn't Go—The Future Policy of President Arthur—The Rumors of Changes in His Cabinet—Tolden Sentences of Gov. Cleveland.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] New York, Nov. 14.—A man came to me yesterday with the following yarn: Mayor Grace, of New York, did not register nor vote at the election, though he was a directed politician, because one Boyd, a corporation attorney under Whitney, sent him word that if he voted he would be challenged, and his case presented to the grand jury as a man, not a citizen. My informant further said that an unsavory judge here put Grace through his naturalization, so he could be eligible for mayor on his promise to appoint Boyd to something big. The mayor not keeping the wicked promise, both the judge and Boyd threatened him two years later. That must be a fine judge if the story be true.

General Martin McMahon, a warm-Hancock man, said Sunday that the next nomination lay between Bayard and Cleveland. Mr. Levi Maish, ex-Democratic congressman from York, Pa., says Bayard is dead all through that region, not so much for winking at the river and harbor bill as for voting to retain the tax on matches, an odious Wilmington monopoly of which Bayard has been the protector. Maish says the monopoly bought up match factories in his congressional district to increase their monopoly, and that Bayard's intimate relations with the match bosses are discussed all over that Democratic region. He says Governor Patteson is an able man, a good public speaker, and full of will, but that Pennsylvania has no candidate whatever for president, and harmony in the state will be subserved by keeping presidential quarrels away from it.

Hugh Hastings continues to show that the boss system of yesterday was a small thing compared to that of old days. He says "Dewitt Clinton's letters to his friend, Mr. Post, which were edited by John Digswell and published in Harper's Magazine, show him to have been the most brazen and shameless political boss in the nation's history. His life is a record of political intrigue and corruption, bargaining to secure the spoils and elevate himself to position. Our state has never been without political bosses. Hastings on this evidence calls for Arthur to remove everybody and give openings to the party workers. A lot of worn-out, incompetent and jobbing political hacks take command of their party, arraign its policy in congress and its nominations before the people to suit themselves, renominate jobbers all over the country, seize the control of conventions in insolent disregard of the will of the voters, and get frightfully beaten. Therefore the president is to be urged, it seems, in the interest of these defeated and disgraced politicians, to gratify their malice, to salute over the city's appointments to make war on such servants of the people as had the honesty and independence to resist and help overthrow these shameless political gamblers. If Mr. Arthur counts among his "friends" any one silly enough to give him such advice, he had better strike him off his list. He can not do anything which will so quickly and surely and utterly ruin him as to let the people even suspect that he harbors a design to so grossly and scandalously misuse the public service.

Gov. Cleveland is said by a friend of mine to be a modest bachelor, firm, determined, not an accomplished man, but a sound lawyer, and to spend his income without avarice or meanness, having no body to keep. This sentence is much quoted here:

"We must make our partnership significant in the fulfillment of this trust. Every Democrat must be a patriot devoted to the cause of pure government and to higher citizenship. The more he is allied to such principles, the better Democrat he is. Let us, by our official and every day conduct, impress upon the minds of the people that their cause is well placed."

It is whispered around town that Tom Bayard wrote his own interview. This is like kissing the back of your hand in a railroad tunnel to show that you are beloved. These presidential fellows are anxious to interview now. It is the royal road to the White house.

There are rumors in the air of official changes of great moment, involving the positions of members of the cabinet. The president only returned to the city Sunday, but also many stories of what he intended to do have preceded him. There is possibly a grain of truth in the clouds of gossip and chaff that are blown about the departments and hotels and upon the avenue. On one side it is asserted that the president has had his eyes opened by the election to the fact of which he was not before aware, that his advisers do not represent the majority element in the party; that the Republicans in the states from which four of his seven cabinet officers were chosen revolted at party management and elected either Democratic state tickets or a majority of Democratic congressmen. It is said that the president will, after the beginning of the new year, make two or three changes in his cabinet and reorganize on a basis of the wishes of a majority of the party. On the other hand these assertions are ridiculed as being on a par with the rumors that were so thick a month ago of Secretary Folger's intention to resign. Whatever the president's purposes may be, there is speculation enough rife to keep the correspondents in a continual state of alarm. Last night again it was asserted that Folger would resign after his annual report had been made to congress, and J. C. New was to get the place. The night before it was asserted New would resign, and Folger would remain. There was talk about the possibility of Mr. Brewster leaving the cabinet ever since Bro. Ingersoll undertook the amusing but dirty task of convicting the department of justice of jury fixing.

John C. New is not regarded here as a very great man for the cabinet. He has always rejoiced that he was the friend of Tom Brady.

Cigar Makers' Strike. DAVENPORT, Io., Nov. 14.—The employees of Kuberer's tobacco factory struck to-day, because of the reduced wages paid to forty girls, assistants of the cigar makers. The reduction was from $2 to $1.50 per thousand bunches. The number of men engaged in the strike is 280.

LOOKING AHEAD.

THE OUTLOOK IN POLITICAL CIRCLES IN THE NATION AT LARGE.

Why Mayor Grace Didn't Go—The Future Policy of President Arthur—The Rumors of Changes in His Cabinet—Tolden Sentences of Gov. Cleveland.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] New York, Nov. 14.—A man came to me yesterday with the following yarn: Mayor Grace, of New York, did not register nor vote at the election, though he was a directed politician, because one Boyd, a corporation attorney under Whitney, sent him word that if he voted he would be challenged, and his case presented to the grand jury as a man, not a citizen. My informant further said that an unsavory judge here put Grace through his naturalization, so he could be eligible for mayor on his promise to appoint Boyd to something big. The mayor not keeping the wicked promise, both the judge and Boyd threatened him two years later. That must be a fine judge if the story be true.

General Martin McMahon, a warm-Hancock man, said Sunday that the next nomination lay between Bayard and Cleveland. Mr. Levi Maish, ex-Democratic congressman from York, Pa., says Bayard is dead all through that region, not so much for winking at the river and harbor bill as for voting to retain the tax on matches, an odious Wilmington monopoly of which Bayard has been the protector. Maish says the monopoly bought up match factories in his congressional district to increase their monopoly, and that Bayard's intimate relations with the match bosses are discussed all over that Democratic region. He says Governor Patteson is an able man, a good public speaker, and full of will, but that Pennsylvania has no candidate whatever for president, and harmony in the state will be subserved by keeping presidential quarrels away from it.

Hugh Hastings continues to show that the boss system of yesterday was a small thing compared to that of old days. He says "Dewitt Clinton's letters to his friend, Mr. Post, which were edited by John Digswell and published in Harper's Magazine, show him to have been the most brazen and shameless political boss in the nation's history. His life is a record of political intrigue and corruption, bargaining to secure the spoils and elevate himself to position. Our state has never been without political bosses. Hastings on this evidence calls for Arthur to remove everybody and give openings to the party workers. A lot of worn-out, incompetent and jobbing political hacks take command of their party, arraign its policy in congress and its nominations before the people to suit themselves, renominate jobbers all over the country, seize the control of conventions in insolent disregard of the will of the voters, and get frightfully beaten. Therefore the president is to be urged, it seems, in the interest of these defeated and disgraced politicians, to gratify their malice, to salute over the city's appointments to make war on such servants of the people as had the honesty and independence to resist and help overthrow these shameless political gamblers. If Mr. Arthur counts among his "friends" any one silly enough to give him such advice, he had better strike him off his list. He can not do anything which will so quickly and surely and utterly ruin him as to let the people even suspect that he harbors a design to so grossly and scandalously misuse the public service.

Gov. Cleveland is said by a friend of mine to be a modest bachelor, firm, determined, not an accomplished man, but a sound lawyer, and to spend his income without avarice or meanness, having no body to keep. This sentence is much quoted here:

"We must make our partnership significant in the fulfillment of this trust. Every Democrat must be a patriot devoted to the cause of pure government and to higher citizenship. The more he is allied to such principles, the better Democrat he is. Let us, by our official and every day conduct, impress upon the minds of the people that their cause is well placed."

It is whispered around town that Tom Bayard wrote his own interview. This is like kissing the back of your hand in a railroad tunnel to show that you are beloved. These presidential fellows are anxious to interview now. It is the royal road to the White house.

There are rumors in the air of official changes of great moment, involving the positions of members of the cabinet. The president only returned to the city Sunday, but also many stories of what he intended to do have preceded him. There is possibly a grain of truth in the clouds of gossip and chaff that are blown about the departments and hotels and upon the avenue. On one side it is asserted that the president has had his eyes opened by the election to the fact of which he was not before aware, that his advisers do not represent the majority element in the party; that the Republicans in the states from which four of his seven cabinet officers were chosen revolted at party management and elected either Democratic state tickets or a majority of Democratic congressmen. It is said that the president will, after the beginning of the new year, make two or three changes in his cabinet and reorganize on a basis of the wishes of a majority of the party. On the other hand these assertions are ridiculed as being on a par with the rumors that were so thick a month ago of Secretary Folger's intention to resign. Whatever the president's purposes may be, there is speculation enough rife to keep the correspondents in a continual state of alarm. Last night again it was asserted that Folger would resign after his annual report had been made to congress, and J. C. New was to get the place. The night before it was asserted New would resign, and Folger would remain. There was talk about the possibility of Mr. Brewster leaving the cabinet ever since Bro. Ingersoll undertook the amusing but dirty task of convicting the department of justice of jury fixing.

John C. New is not regarded here as a very great man for the cabinet. He has always rejoiced that he was the friend of Tom Brady.

Cigar Makers' Strike. DAVENPORT, Io., Nov. 14.—The employees of Kuberer's tobacco factory struck to-day, because of the reduced wages paid to forty girls, assistants of the cigar makers. The reduction was from $2 to $1.50 per thousand bunches. The number of men engaged in the strike is 280.

LOOKING AHEAD.

THE OUTLOOK IN POLITICAL CIRCLES IN THE NATION AT LARGE.

Why Mayor Grace Didn't Go—The Future Policy of President Arthur—The Rumors of Changes in His Cabinet—Tolden Sentences of Gov. Cleveland.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.] New York, Nov. 14.—A man came to me yesterday with the following yarn: Mayor Grace, of New York, did not register nor vote at the election, though he was a directed politician, because one Boyd, a corporation attorney under Whitney, sent him word that if he voted he would be challenged, and his case presented to the grand jury as a man, not a citizen. My informant further said that an unsavory judge here put Grace through his naturalization, so he could be eligible for mayor on his promise to appoint Boyd to something big. The mayor not keeping the wicked promise, both the judge and Boyd threatened him two years later. That must be a fine judge if the story be true.

General Martin McMahon, a warm-Hancock man, said Sunday that the next nomination lay between Bayard and Cleveland. Mr. Levi Maish, ex-Democratic congressman from York, Pa., says Bayard is dead all through that region, not so much for winking at the river and harbor bill as for voting to retain the tax on matches, an odious Wilmington monopoly of which Bayard has been the protector. Maish says the monopoly bought up match factories in his congressional district to increase their monopoly, and that Bayard's intimate relations with the match bosses are discussed all over that Democratic region. He says Governor Patteson is an able man, a good public speaker, and full of will, but that Pennsylvania has no candidate whatever for president, and harmony in the state will be subserved by keeping presidential quarrels away from it.

Hugh Hastings continues to show that the boss system of yesterday was a small thing compared to that of old days. He says "Dewitt Clinton's letters to his friend, Mr. Post, which were edited by John Digswell and published in Harper's Magazine, show him to have been the most brazen and shameless political boss in the nation's history. His life is a record of political intrigue and corruption, bargaining to secure the spoils and elevate himself to position. Our state has never been without political bosses. Hastings on this evidence calls for Arthur to remove everybody and give openings to the party workers. A lot of worn-out, incompetent and jobbing political hacks take command of their party, arraign its policy in congress and its nominations before the people to suit themselves, renominate jobbers all over the country, seize the control of conventions in insolent disregard of the will of the voters, and get frightfully beaten. Therefore the president is to be urged, it seems, in the interest of these defeated and disgraced politicians, to gratify their malice, to salute over the city's appointments to make war on such servants of the people as had the honesty and independence to resist and help overthrow these shameless political gamblers. If Mr. Arthur counts among his "friends" any one silly enough to give him such advice, he had better strike him off his list. He can not do anything which will so quickly and surely and utterly ruin him as to let the people even suspect that he harbors a design to so grossly and scandalously misuse the public service.

Gov. Cleveland is said by a friend of mine to be a modest bachelor, firm, determined, not an accomplished man, but a sound lawyer, and to spend his income without avarice or meanness, having no body to keep. This sentence is much quoted here:

"We must make our partnership significant in the fulfillment of this trust. Every Democrat must be a patriot devoted to the cause of pure government and to higher citizenship. The more he is allied to such principles, the better Democrat he is. Let us, by our official and every day conduct, impress upon the minds of the people that their cause is well placed."

It is whispered around town that Tom Bayard wrote his own interview. This is like kissing the back of your hand in a railroad tunnel to show that you are beloved. These presidential fellows are anxious to interview now. It is the royal road to the White house.

There are rumors in the air of official changes of great moment, involving the positions of members of the cabinet. The president only returned to the city Sunday, but also many stories of what he intended to do have preceded him. There is possibly a grain of truth in the clouds of gossip and chaff that are blown about the departments and hotels and upon the avenue. On one side it is asserted that the president has had his eyes opened by the election to the fact of which he was not before aware, that his advisers do not represent the majority element in the party; that the Republicans in the states from which four of his seven cabinet officers were chosen revolted at party management and elected either Democratic state tickets or a majority of Democratic congressmen. It is said that the president will, after the beginning of the new year, make two or three changes in his cabinet and reorganize on a basis of the wishes of a majority of the party. On the other hand these assertions are ridiculed as being on a par with the rumors that were so thick a month ago of Secretary Folger's intention to resign. Whatever the president's purposes may be, there is speculation enough rife to keep the correspondents in a continual state of alarm. Last night again it was asserted that Folger would resign after his annual report had been made to congress, and J. C. New was to get the place. The night before it was asserted New would resign, and Folger would remain. There was talk about the possibility of Mr. Brewster leaving the cabinet ever since Bro. Ingersoll undertook the amusing but dirty task of convicting the department of justice of jury fixing.

John C. New is not regarded here as a very great man for the cabinet. He has always rejoiced that he was the friend of Tom Brady.

Cigar Makers' Strike. DAVENPORT, Io., Nov. 14.—The employees of Kuberer's tobacco factory struck to-day, because of the reduced wages paid to forty girls, assistants of the cigar makers. The reduction was from $2 to $1.50 per thousand bunches. The number of men engaged in the strike is 280.

WATCH CAREFULLY YOUR HEALTH.

Are your hands and feet cold? Does your pulse beat irregular? Does your heart quickly palpitate at the least exertion, or nervous excitement? Does your face often flush from a rush of blood to the head? Are you troubled with dyspepsia, indigestion or some urinary disorder? Beware! all this is a timely warning of approaching decay. Death may at any time suddenly ensue from apoplexy. Do not delay. Your system needs some true medicinal tonic. Nothing is so good as Brown's Iron Bitters. This excellent remedy will assist nature in quickly regaining her lost hold on health and life. It strengthens every part of the system and restores the different organs of life to their normal condition. In diseases of an exanthematic nature, having a tendency to weaken both mind and body, it invariably acts like a charm.—Journal.

The New York Chamber of Commerce and other commercial bodies unite in recommending State Senator O'Donnell as a member of the railroad commission.

Benjamin S. Beckwith, a well known member of the Petroleum Exchange, died last evening at his home in Port Richmond, L. I., aged fifty-six.

Rayleigh, N. C., Nov. 14.—Unofficial returns from the election of the state legislature show a Republican majority on joint ballot.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 14.—The vote in this state is so close between Bennett and Dockery for congressman at large, that it will probably take the official vote of all the counties to decide the result. The chances, however, seem to favor Bennett, Democrat, by 500 majority.

Rayleigh, N. C., Nov. 14.—Unofficial returns from the election of the state legislature show a Republican majority on joint ballot.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 14.—The vote in this state is so close between Bennett and Dockery for congressman at large, that it will probably take the official vote of all the counties to decide the result. The chances, however, seem to favor Bennett, Democrat, by 500 majority.

Rayleigh, N. C., Nov. 14.—Unofficial returns from the election of the state legislature show a Republican majority on joint ballot.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 14.—The vote in this state is so close between Bennett and Dockery for congressman at large, that it will probably take the official vote of all the counties to decide the result. The chances, however, seem to favor Bennett, Democrat, by 500 majority.

Rayleigh, N. C., Nov. 14.—Unofficial returns from the election of the state legislature show a Republican majority on joint ballot.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 14.—The vote in this state is so close between Bennett and Dockery for congressman at large, that it will probably take the official vote of all the counties to decide the result. The chances, however, seem to favor Bennett, Democrat, by 500 majority.

Rayleigh, N. C., Nov. 14.—Unofficial returns from the election of the state legislature show a Republican majority on joint ballot.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 14.—The vote in this state is so close between Bennett and Dockery for congressman at large, that it will probably take the official vote of all the counties to decide the result. The chances, however, seem to favor Bennett, Democrat, by 500 majority.

Rayleigh, N. C., Nov. 14.—Unofficial returns from the election of the state legislature show a Republican majority on joint ballot.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 14.—The vote in this state is so close between Bennett and Dockery for congressman at large, that it will probably take the official vote of all the counties to decide the result. The chances, however, seem