Suspected Thief Caught. Yesterday the police arrested a fellow claiming to have come from Minneapolis, who gave his name as Frank M. Hoover. The arrest was made on suspicion only and without any facts known to the authorities sufficient to convict him of any crime. The suspicion that caused his arrest arose out of the fact that he went into Lytle's to pound certain pieces of jewelry. When taken into custody he was searched and it was found that he had on his person a whole set of garnet jewelry evidently belonging to some lady consisting of earrings, breastpins, sleeve buttons, a gold chain, gold pens and gold pencil cases, all garnet. Besides the jewelry he had two overcoats, fur mittens and gloves and various other articles; among the latter were two revolvers. The chief of police telephoned to Chief Mungler, of Minneapolis, who sent down for him. The fellow is young, said about twenty-four or twenty-five, good looking and respectable appearing. All the articles are marked Frank M. Hoover, and as he claims that in his name, it is supposed that, having stolen the articles, he stole the name, or at least, appropriated it, for the purpose of getting in concealing the robbery. The gentleman from Minneapolis in his pilgrimage found an album, which he put in his pocket, and in this album is found a verse of poetry that makes one think that the author, instead of living at Minneapolis, must belong in St. Paul. It is evident that the St. Paul ladies have made a "dash" on the album, and this person writes in the album the following verse addressed to "Friend Frank":

You may think just what you please, That the Minneapolis girls are just the cheese, But don't forget, for goodness sake, That the St. Paul girls take the cake.

Remember This. If you are sick Hop Bitters will surely aid Nature in making you well when all else fails. If you are constipated, or are suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. Hop Bitters are a sure and ready remedy in all such complaints.

If you are wasting away with any form of kidney disease, stop tampering with this moment and turn to Hop Bitters. If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in the use of Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter, or a resident of a malarial district, or a victim of the scourge of all countries—malaria, epidemic, bilious, and intermittent fevers—by the use of Hop Bitters.

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, pains and aches, and feel generally, Hop Bitters will give you fair skin, rich blood, and sweetest breath, health, and content.

JOHN TOBIN.

A Former Railroad King Arrested for Drunkenness.

A dispatch from New York dated Sunday last says:—John Tobin, ex-president of the Hudson river railroad, and at one time a power in Wall street, was arrested last evening near the Staten island ferry for drunkenness. He was locked up in the First precinct station, and to-day was taken before Justice Morgan at the Tombs police court, who discharged him with a reprimand. Formerly a millionaire and a man whose operations set the stock exchange in an uproar and influenced speculation all over the country, he has become an utter wreck physically as well as financially. In the days of his prosperity his speculative schemes were on the scale of those of Cornelius Vanderbilt and Daniel Drew, and he dealt in shares by the 100,000. Now he is little better than a beggar, and the police say that

HE IS BARELY SEEN SOBER. John Tobin was one of the best known men in Wall street during the war. He was a wholesale wine and liquor merchant in Beaver street before he became prominent in speculation. His operations first began to attract attention in 1861, and they became more extensive year by year, until they reached a climax in the famous Hudson river and Harlem railroad "corners." Tobin was at one time the so-called "leader of the street," but it was only for a short time, and he never attained anything like the extended reputation of such a noted speculator as Daniel Drew. Tobin and Drew were on the same side of the market in big dealings in particular stocks, but they were never allies for any protracted operation. When at

THE HEIGHT OF HIS SUCCESS. Tobin was estimated to have about $5,000,000. One of his freaks caused a good deal of talk in the street, and throughout the city. At the close of one of his most brilliant and lucrative campaigns he made up his mind to draw out all his balances in broker's offices and in banks, and to convert the amounts into cash. He also determined to take the cash and all the securities which he had to his home up town. It is said in Wall street that, as a result of this realization of his assets, he carried to his house the comfortable sum of $1,600,000 in greenbacks, in addition to 14,000 in securities. But probably Tobin's largest gains in any single operation or series of operations were made in the famous Harlem "corner." In 1860 Harlem stock was only $8 or $9 per share, and Commodore Vanderbilt absorbed a mass of it at those figures. In the beginning of 1863 the stock was at $30; in July of the same year it was up to $22; in the following month the "corner" reached its culmination. Leonard W. Jerome, John Tobin, and their associates had a grip that could not be shaken on all the stock which was available for speculative purposes, and the unfortunate men who were "short" of the stock were forced to settle their contracts at $179. John Tobin was a larger holder of Hudson river railroad stock in 1863, and was president of the company in 1865, when Commodore Vanderbilt bought a controlling interest in the stock, at nearly par, and turned out Tobin from the presidency. All was convivial in his habits, he became a hard drinker after his wealth had been swept away. His riches were steadily reduced from 1866 to 1869. He continued to speculate in a trivial way, until of late he has become utterly broken down from dissipation.

PERVIOUS WORK. There were three or four of us Michiganders at the same hotel in Montgomery, says a newspaper writer, and all were amazed at the sight of so many colored men loafing their time away on the street. The man from Iowa county finally thought he'd make a few inquiries, and beckoning to a stalwart black, who had spent the last two hours on the curbstone, he asked,— "Have you any work to do?" "Not just now sah."

"Have you ever tried farming?" "Oh yes."

"And how did you come out?" "Mighty slim, sah. De white folks down head don't encourage de black folks 'tall."

"Walk in de place, dar's de rent of de land, but dey won't do it. Den if I git de land an' set out to borry a mule, nobody will lend me one."

"Suppose you had a mule?" "Den what could I borry a plow? Can't raise crops unless y' plow. Den when I got de plow an' went ober to Kurnel Fite's to borry harness de kurnel wouldn't be home, or he'd be usin' all de straps he had."

"Couldn't you make it go if you had land, seed, mule, plough an' harness?" asked the Wolverine.

"I reckon I might, but I dunno. S'posin de mule expired, or de harness broke, or some nigger stole my plough?"

"An' de ole woman might die, or one ob de chill'n git snake bit, or it might rain fo' weeks without a break. Tell you what, boss, you men from de Norf think it looks hard to see so many ob us lyn' round de towns without work, but you don't know nuffin 'bout de perils of gittin' right down to hard work an' taking all de chances. my ole woman says it seems like flyin' in de face of providence, an' I reckon she's mighty nigh k'ect."

Training a Memory. Mr. Thurlow Weed declared that he owed his success as a politician to the cultivation of his memory, which is absolutely essential to the politician's success. When a young man he gave up all hope. His memory, he said, was like a sieve. "Dates, names, appointments, faces—everything escaped him." His wife told him to "train his memory." So that night on coming home he spent fifteen minutes trying to recall the events of the day. He could not then remember what he had for breakfast. Finally he found he could recall more. After a fortnight or so his wife said: "Why don't you tell it to me? It would be interesting, and my interest it would stimulate you." Then he began a habit of oral confession, which he followed for almost fifty years. Every night he told his wife everything that he could recall happening during the day; the dishes for breakfast, dinner and tea, the people he had seen and what they had said; the editorials he had written, the letters he had sent and received, and the very language used as near as possible; where he had walked or ridden—everything that had come within his knowledge. He could say his lesson better and better every year, and instead of growing irksome, it got to be a pleasure to run the events of the day in review.

A London Trick. An odd dog of swindlers has been revived in London with much success. It is commonly known as the "cripple and medicine lay" and its operation is simple enough. A vagabond with a sound but carefully bandaged arm drops a bottle of water with the cork popping, and pretends as some respectable person is passing. He at once accuses the latter of knocking the "medicine" out of his hand, bewails his forlorn condition, and the poverty which will compel him to endure all the agony of his broken limb without alleviation. MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Baptist church edifice is being built at Crookston.

The new Episcopal church edifice at Crookston is ready for occupancy. Le Sueur News, Dec. 6: Two hundred men employed as section hands on the line of railroad between St. Paul and St. James, were discharged last week, the company claiming that there was not enough work to keep them all busy.

La Crosse Chronicle: Yesterday Conductor Perkins brought to Ramsey on the Southern Minnesota road 538 people in four coaches. It looks impossible, but that's the record from actual count. About 250 were unloaded there, but his train brought 174 Chicago passengers to this city.

New Ulm Review: The body of the little Schultz girl was recovered from Hummel's lake on the evening of the 28th ult., the same day the girl was drowned. The body was found in eight feet of water. It appears that she walked into an air hole while her attention was attracted elsewhere.

So many county papers in cold weather come to the Globe office, poorly printed, pale in the face, color being deficient, that it is rather a thin undertaking to search their columns for local news, and hence many a respectable weekly contemporary fails to be quoted as faithfully a due proportion of state news.

Albert Lea Standard: The rate of taxation in this city is a trifle over 3 per cent, and will raise upon our valuation $18,176.53, which added to the saloon license money will make an income of over $22,000. After paying the necessary expenses of the city this should leave a large surplus to apply to the extinguishment of the indebtedness of the city and school district.

New Ulm Review: Andrew Anderson, the Reville county wife murderer, has been found guilty of manslaughter. Dr. Bartlett, of St. Peter, and three other physicians examined him and they all testified that Anderson was insane at the time he committed the murder, but the jury evidently concluded that he was sane and hence they pronounced the consequences of his crime. The prisoner was not sentenced, as a notice of a motion for a new trial was given.

Albert Lea Standard, Dec. 7: The "Albert Lea Route" has discontinued the sale of cheap tickets from Chicago to Chaska, selling only to this city, so that passengers for St. Paul and Minneapolis must pay full fare from here to those places or else wait and take the Milwaukee road, where tickets are still sold for twenty-five cents. Ticket Agent Watt goes down on the last train every night, and meets the train from Chicago at Marble Rock to pay the rebates to passengers on the latter train and sell the Minneapolis and Chicago tickets.

Never Gets Anywhere. [Elk River Star.] Gordon E. Cole is looming up as a candidate for speaker of the house of representatives, but Fletcher will undoubtedly loom up ahead of him. Cole is usually named in connection with every office in the state, from United States senator down but he never gets anywhere.

The editor of a journal in Guatemala printed an article which gave offense to Minister Logan. The latter complained to President Barrios, who at once arrested the offending journalist and suspended the publication of his paper.
