ST. PAUL, WEDNESDAY, MAY 30, 1888.

In Georgia the wheat is ripe enough to be harvested, and the watermelons large enough to be stolen.

ALAN HASTHEAD has adopted a diet of skim milk as a preventative to Bright's disease with which he is menaced.

CONKLEING is not to be caricatured any more in the Judge, but publication having been bought by friends of the gentleman, including himself.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN is busy writing a new opera to be brought out in the early fall. He promises that it shall not be Pinafore revised and improved.

The cut rate passenger fare from Peoria to Missouri river points is ended. When the fare touched 10 cents the managers got so fearful as to what might happen to the fearful figure that they dove through both sides of the cipher and kissed each other quick.

MERBERG got the call on Ingersoll on Monday when he twitted him of indulging in court in his favorite entertainment of "lacrymose lamentations at funerals."

It is thought that Robert would have bid him go to H-eaven for that, if he had held any distinct idea of such a locality.

SOME of the ladies in Cleveland, Ohio, have resolved they will wear no gloves until the prohibition constitutional amendment is adopted. Mittens will thus become the fashionable thing, as the ladies were not rash enough to say that they would go through life with bare hands.

GRESHAM, it is said, will not permit Mahone to use the Virginia postoffice to further his personal and political ends. For reaching this determination the postmaster general is entitled to commendation. If he shall carry out the determination and succeed in squelching the pestiferous little dictator, he will deserve still higher praise.

The Philadelphia Press asks some leading questions concerning Mr. Walter Evans "306." It desires to be informed if he is honest, if he is competent, if he is efficient and if he is a Republican. Brother Smith draws a deep sigh and says all these things must be taken on trust. This is the way the Republicans make life a weariness to the President.

The fact that Evans, the new commissioner of internal revenue, carries the Republican delegation to the next national convention in his breeches pocket, is thought to have been the principal reason for his appointment. If this is so, it argues that Arthur is not as anxious to lay aside the cares of office at the expiration of his present term as he is trying to make the public believe.

HENRY WATTEBSON in an address before the literary societies of the Vanderbilt college at Northville last evening on the "Homicidal side of Southern life," said the homicidal spirit was a false and warning standard of manly courage and honor. The North never has been able to attain to this "courage and honor" without washing the stomach and bathing the brain in antiseptics and the intellect in dimedicten.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has been dining with Charles A. Dana, at New York, and that gossip here is that the stalwart executive is preparing to authorize. This is not very probable, though stranger things have happened. The vice-presidents in the executive office have been unfortunate in trying to kick against the prices. Mr. Arthur should remember the fate of Tyler, Fillmore and Johnson and not stray too far from the fold.

The Massachusetts Republicans are in about as close quarters with their brethren in Ohio—and like Japhet in search of a father—are trying to find some one to undertake the hazard of being the Republican candidate for Governor. The very best thing they can do is to nominate Ben Butler. They can then elect their candidate, and as Governor Bon will be elected any way, by this course the Republicans will be saved much trouble, and get some of the glory at the same time.

The Pennsylvania legislature is having a wearisome struggle with the congressional apportionment bill. The Republicans are willing to take nineteen of the twenty-eight districts. Senator Stewart, the Independent leader, thinks this is too greedy, and he is willing to give the Democrats ten districts. The Democrats claim a fair division and ask for fourteen, which under the circumstances seems no more than right. There is so much division that it is hardly possible that the matter can be decided this session.

ACCORDING to the preconceived plan Senator Plumb, of Kansas, "united with many other sagacious Republicans in predicting a great revival in the party's fortunes this fall." The prophets are as thick as their despair is genuine. Like Mr. Hayes' war-god Plumb has been "looking the field over carefully" and after reviewing the last opportunities and dry husks, he is gotten to shouting. This glibly amusement is shown especially for the benefit of the lamented. There never was seen so many happy mourners at a funeral before.

The Republicans of Ohio are so much alarmed for the fate of their party that they have importuned Capt. Conger, chairman of the state committee to change the time of holding the nominating convention, and pursuant to his call a meeting is to be held to-morrow to see what can be done. The passage of the Scott liquor law has not proven so smart a caper as it was imagined it would. Foster's bossism has made a royal road of quaking among the very elect. In addition to this movement, an effort is to be made to prevent a decision by the supreme court regarding the Scott law as long as possible, and until after election if that can be brought about. Things are working.

Such returns as are at hand from the Virginia election show that Mahoneism is tottering to its final fall. With the resource of unlimited patronage at command Mahone has suffered a defeat that is important as a precursor to his defeat in the fall elections, when members of the legislature are to be chosen. The President has already begun to recede from his alliance—offensive and defensive—with Mahone. Mahone made a bitter crusade upon the other parties and fought valiantly to retain his power. Having lost the prestige of success Mahone is reduced to the rank of a small man, and having no particular influence in Virginia, or anywhere, he is being shorn of his quota of patronage and kicked out of camp. The administration has no interest in any one who does not bring a gift to its mill. The country will now be made to resound with the tales of Mahone's corruptness. He has committed the sin of failure, which it is impossible to overlook. The riddance is a good one, no matter what means were employed to gain it.

They go hence to Rochester in a few days from which point they will extend their trip to Massachusetts and New Hampshire to gaze again upon the old familiar hills and faces of the land of their nativity, and will probably spend the summer months "down East."

The New Erie House and Public Market.

The council committee on public buildings held a meeting at the office of the city attorney last evening, with that official and Market Master McMann, in attendance. The plans of Architect Bassford for the new fire engine house, corner of Eighth and Minnesota streets, were accepted and the building is to be fifty by 150 and three stories in height, as heretofore outlined, and will contain apartments for the chief of the department, the superintendent of the fire alarm telegraph, general repair shop, etc. The cost is to be $20,000.

The matter of regulations for the Market house was then taken up, and City Attorney Murray was instructed to draw up an ordinance to be laid before the council.

The matter of the council for that purpose is to be in its principles, and will prohibit huckstering, and the purchase, for sale, from gardeners, before 10 o'clock a. m. To accommodate extreme outlying points, however, it is probable provision will be made for establishing market limits on St. Anthony hill, Dayton's bluff and on Mississippi street, over beyond the Manitoba railroad shops, where sheds will be erected, and marketing allowed, under the same restrictions governing the central market.

MANKATO.

On Sunday Anna Bicket, a German girl working for Mr. Shaubert in Linnetown, purchased a quantity of strychnine at one of our druggeries here, and later in the day she was found dead at Mr. Shaubert's house. She said at the time that she wanted the strychnine to kill rats. No cause is assigned for the rash deed. Her parents live in Minneapolis, she having come from that place Saturday. The coroner summoned a jury and an inquest was held and the facts above elicited, but no cause could be found.

Doings of the Assembly.

SARATOGA, May 29.—The General Presbyterian Assembly to-day united with the Episcopal and Methodist conferences asking the government to keep faith with the Indians, grant them lands and protect these lands in the Indian territory and the reservations from intrusion. Over two-thirds of the assembly voted with Mr. Herriek Johnson in an amendment on the prohibition subject in which he declared against prohibiting as a distinctive measure, but hailing with joy efforts to check intemperance and the sale of intoxicating beverages by the power of Christian conscience, public opinion, and the strong arm of the law.

Actions of the Synod.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 29.—The Reformed Presbyterian synod had an animated debate to-day on the subject of allowing instruments to be used for church music. Some were for and some against, but all had to agree that instruments "were not prescribed in the Holy Scriptures." Ministers were instructed to present twice on the Sabbath. The buying and selling of members of the New York Sunday Tribune by members of the General Presbyterian assembly, in session at Saratoga, on Sunday afternoon, was denounced. It was voted to hold the next meeting May 4, 1884, at Northwood, Ohio.

The report of the treasurer, H. K. Taylor, was presented and accepted.

The annual report of the secretary was submitted as follows:

In presenting this report for the year just closing it is well to review the work done and note the progress made.

READING ROOM.

The reading room has been well supplied with papers, both secular and religious. A new library case was lately secured and already it is filled with books. A number of books were donated, and thirty-seven volumes of magazines bound. The library now consists of more than 800 volumes, with an additional loan of 150. The attendance at the reading room has been good and much larger than last year.

RELIGIOUS MEETINGS.

The following religious services were held:

The young men's meeting was held regularly every Saturday evening and the attendance good.

The devotional meeting held Sabbath morning was very helpful, and has had an increase of attendance over the preceding year.

The young men's Bible study has continued through the year through the untiring efforts of Mr. Nash. The class although not large has been faithful in attendance and in the earnest and prayerful study of the word.

The worker's training class met the fourth Thursday evening in every month, and a brief Bible reading, an essay on some biblical subject, and a topic relative to association work for general discussion made up the main part of the programme for the evening's work.

The method followed has been highly commended, and has met the approval of the class.

The day and week of prayer appointed by the international committee was observed. Laymen and ministers assisted in the services, and a good interest was manifested.

Special religious meetings were held from time to time with good results.

The union teachers' meeting was resumed under the direction of Rev. Mr. Breed, in January last, and continued until the 1st of May. This has been one of the most practical meetings in Bible study in the city, and many of the teachers have availed themselves of the opportunity offered for a more thorough preparation of the lesson.

It is to be regretted that they cannot be sustained for a much longer period during the year.

A union gospel meeting under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. was held Sabbath evenings during the months of July and August last in Market hall. Aside from the hearty assistance rendered by our home ministry, valuable aid was given by several noted divines from abroad. The stirring addresses of Rev. Dr. Cuyler especially will long be remembered by our young men who had the good fortune of hearing him.

The gospel meetings and song services held Sunday afternoon have been well attended, and since January 1 have had a crowded attendance almost every Sabbath. This is the only general meeting regularly held. From the warm-hearted expressions of many who attend these meetings and especially the encouraging remarks of strangers who have come in and testified to the great truth derived from hearing the word of truth so forcibly expressed, we believe that untold good has been done, and as to the results we simply leave them with him who knows and understands the heart of every man. A number of requests for prayer have been presented, and souls have been blessed and brought out of darkness into the sunlight of gospel truth.

THE SECULAR WORK.

Besides giving due heed to the religious part of our work some attention has been given to the social. Several strangers' social meetings were held, and at each meeting a number of strangers were present. Two general socials or receptions were given during the year. At these the first part of the evening was devoted to music, reading or addresses, followed by the serving of refreshments, mainly furnished by the ladies. The remainder of the evening was spent in a service of song. Several lectures and talks were given during the fall and winter by ministers and business men of the city. Most of these were well attended and all greatly enjoyed. A musical entertainment under the direction of our president was given to a crowded house. A literary class was organized in January, which met regularly every week for three months. Three public entertainments were given by the class, which called a large audience. Through these influences a large number of strangers have been led to the rooms and their acquaintance made. This work should be continued, encouraged and enlarged upon so that it may become more useful and effective.

Y. M. C. A. WANTS.

The wants of the association are always many. But there are some special needs which should receive due consideration and immediate action. A good sized audience room is needed. Our Sunday afternoon meetings and public entertainments have been more than crowded at times, and the compactness of the audience discourages attendance, as several have so expressed themselves. This should be remedied as soon as possible. We are in great need of the standard monthlies and quarterlies for our reading room. They would add much to our general reading, and I assure you that they are eagerly sought after when miscellaneous numbers are placed upon the tables. A much larger increase in membership could easily be secured if every member would only take it in hand to secure the membership of worthy young men with whom they come in contact. In conclusion I would urge upon the officers and members a more hearty co-operation in the great work before us. Thousands of young men are coming to our city annually. They are far away from home restraints, and they soon become careless and even reckless. They need your assistance. Will you lend them a helping hand? Secure for the Y. M. C. A. pleasant, comfortable rooms and plenty of them. Refresh and supply them well, and then direct, support, invite and assist, and by the aid of him who directs all things wisely and for the best a far greater work will be accomplished. Brethren, take hold and work, work, work, "for the night cometh, when no man can work."

KING PAYS $250.

And the Prosecution for Manslaughter is Ended—The Seed Wheat Libel Suit.

[Special Telegram to the Globe.]

WABASHA, May 29.—This was the day set for the decision of Judge Start upon the motion for a new trial in the case of John King, pilot of the steamer Centennial. It will be remembered that last summer the steamer Centennial ran over a fishing skiff at Lake City and one of the men was drowned. Capt. Tom Davidson and Pilot John King were indicted for manslaughter and the former acquitted and the latter convicted at a previous term of court. When court assembled this morning Hon. S. L. Campbell, of counsel for the defense, stated that his client could not afford the expense of a new trial. The last trial had cost him nearly a thousand dollars and he preferred to submit to the sentence of the court. It was not claimed that Mr. King's conduct was criminal. On the contrary the evidence had shown his excellent character. He was a poor man with a large family and counsel trusted the court would deal leniently with him. The court then withdrew the motion for a new trial.

Judge Start, calling Mr. King up, asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed, and he responded "nothing." In response to questions by the court he said he was a poor man with a family of six children. The judge stated that the law left the penalty to be inflicted largely at the discretion of the court. The good character of the defendant and the fact that during a quarter of a century as pilot no life had been lost were taken into consideration, previous to the Centennial disaster, went far to mitigate the offense. The court did not feel that the ends of justice demanded a sentence to the penitentiary. The court would therefore impose a fine, and in fixing that amount would be a small sum to a man of means, would be large sum to a poor man like the defendant. The fine imposed would therefore be $250, and the defendant to stand committed until the fine was paid.

A few minutes later Mr. King paid the fine and was discharged.

The next court item was the libel suit of Geo. R. Bryant, familiarly known as seed-wheat Bryant against Col. W. H. Feller. Bryant was a member of the legislature in 1869, elected in opposition to Senator Ramsey, but at the critical time he changed front and voted for Ramsey. He was accused of having sold out for $1,500 and about a year ago, as he seemed likely to secure a land warrant in Dakota, Col. Feller wrote a letter repeating this accusation, and published it in the Plainview News. Mr. Bryant went before the grand jury and had him indicted. From present indications there is not much danger of conviction. This is the first suit for criminal libel which has ever come to trial in this state.

A Senator Spilt Upon.

CHICAGO, May 29.—Senator Condee, of this city last week in the state senate, while certain nominations for Chicago justices of the peace were pending, made the assertion that Justice P. Phillips, seeking re-nomination, was under the control of the Chicago gamblers and was a tool of Mike McDonald. Yesterday Condee was accused by McDonald while walking on the street in this city, and after some words, the latter spit in the senator's face, according to the version published this morning. Condee was interviewed but made no mention of the incident and bystanders assert he failed to resent the act.

Cat Stories.

In the house of a clergyman in Lowell, Mass., the "harmless necessary cat" is a great family pet, the good dominie following the example of Montague in beguiling many an idle hour with the graceful gambols of puss, and surreptitiously conveying dainty morsels to her from his own dish. On going to breakfast the other day, what was parson's surprise to see in the very center of his plate a young rat, placed there with almost mathematical precision by the cat, as if to express her gratitude for the many favors received from her master by returning the best gift in her power to make, denying herself a tidbit to prove her affection. It is needless to say that puss' breach of decorum was condoned in view of the spirit which was intended to prompt it.

A Baltimore cat, who has been kept in a cage with monkeys, has become independent in the monkey's social point of view. Once when she was taken out of the cage she, too, became incontinent. For two days she moped around, grew thin, and refused to eat, and the keepers were forced to put her back. Her delight was unbounded.
